Chou Tells Yanks Mao Opened The Thaw

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Premier Chou En-lai called every American visiting or living in Communist China to a meeting Tuesday night at the Great Hall of the People in Peking. Following is a report on the meeting telephoned by Julian Schuman, who works as a translator in Peking, to UPI in Tokyo.)

By JULIAN SCHUMAN

PEKING (UPI) — Premier Chou En-lai told about 60 Americans Tuesday night that Chinese Communist Party chairman Mao Tse-tung himself made the decision to invite the U.S. table tennis team to China, paving the way for a thaw in Peking-Washington relations.

Chou met with what Chinese officials said was every American living in or visiting mainland China in the Great Hall of the People, the same room where he received the American players last spring.

Chou's talk to the group, who included visiting Black Panther leader Huey P. Newton and former U.S. State Department official John Service, was a free-wheeling discourse on China's foreign policy. He did not refer to the current internal situation which has been the subject of considerable speculation abroad.

During the two-hour meeting Chou said:

China agrees with President Nixon that this is now an era of negotiations, but Chinese leaders also believe that, if necessary, it is an era of armed struggle.

China is willing to negotiate its border dispute with Russia, using the 19th century territorial treaties as the basis for talks.

China is keeping an open mind on Nixon's visit: "It is all right if the talks succeed and it is all right if the talks fail."

No matter how far negotiations go, China will never let her guard down and stop preparing for war.

Chou said the decision to invite the U.S. table tennis team was made by Mao at a time when the attitude of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and the U.S. State Department was to wait for a while. He said he was looking over the first foreign ministry dispatch to the U.S. team in Japan when Mao decided on an immediate invitation.

"There were two messages, but the world only knows the second," Chou said.

Discussing Nixon's visit, Chou said, "He publicly expressed his willingness to come to China and negotiate. We had made no response, it would not have been proper for a state so antagonistic. Therefore we agreed to (presidential adviser Henry) Kissinger's coming.

"For us, it is all right if the talks succeed and it is all right if they fail," Chou said.

At this point, about 30 minutes before a simultaneous announcement was to be made in Washington and Peking, Chou told the Americans of the presidential assistant's second visit to Peking.

"This time Kissinger is coming openly," Chou said.

He said Peking's willingness to negotiate was nothing new.

"We did this (negotiated) with the arch enemy Chiang Kai-shek for almost ten years," he said. He also cited the present negotiations going on in Korea and the negotiations with Russia on the territorial disputes.

Although critical of the stationing Soviet troops on the Chinese borders, Chou said China's basic policy was to negotiate with Moscow.

"There are one million (Soviet) troops on our borders — army, air force, naval units in the coastal areas, nuclear weapons and guided missiles," Chou said. "They have sent 300,000 troops into the Peoples Republic of Mongolia, including missile units. The Mongolian government did not behave like the Czechs, so what is the purpose? It obviously is against China, to create a state of tension along our borders.

"Nevertheless, our policy is to negotiate to solve the boundary questions and bring about good neighborly relations," Chou said. "Even when Russian troops were massed on the borders, we still received (Premier Alexei N.) Kosygin on Sept. 9, 1969 at the Peking airport."

When Kosygin was in China then, Chou said, Peking called

As Friday's opening of the Marin County Fair drew near today, the Ferris Wheel dominated the fairgrounds near the Veterans Memorial Building (rear) at the Civic Center. The Ferris Wheel, together with other rides and games, is new to the fair this year, the site having shifted from a garden setting in Ross. Demos Chop Up Marin In State Remap Plan

Gerrymandering At Its Finest: Behr

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SACRAMENTO — Senate Democrats today unveiled a radical reapportionment plan for the next decade that would give Marin four state senators, split three of its cities, and lump much of its population into an irregular district with San Francisco and pieces of San Mateo and Alameda counties.

Other parts of Marin would become part of a huge district running almost 200 miles north into Shasta County.

Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, would be thrown into a new Fourth District with Sen. Fred W. Marler Jr., R-Redding, a popular and powerful conservative who has represented many of the same counties in Behr's new district since 1965.

Both Behr and Marler immediately denounced the plan by the Democrats, who as the majority party could ram it through the Legislature — but would need votes from Republicans to overrride a veto promised by Gov. Ronald Reagan if he found the plan is designed to increase the Democrats' current narrow majority in each house.

The existing combined at-large districts in San Francisco of Democratic Sen. George Moscone and Republican Sen. Milton Marks would extend far into Marin, as well as San Mateo and Alameda counties. The 1970 federal census found the San Francisco districts the most under-populated in the state.

The already controversial plan was disclosed at a press briefing by the Senate Elections and Reapportionment Committee, which will hear it at 9:30 a.m. tomorrow. Prompt committee endorsement is expected, but a tough and long fight on the upper house floor appeared certain.

The boundary between the Fourth District (Behr and Marler) and the combined Ninth and Tenth districts (Moscone and Marks) would run up the middle of Richardson Bay to the Richardson Bay Bridge, north along Highway 101 to Lucas Valley Road, west along Lucas Valley Road for a few miles, then west of Fairfax to Kent Lake, back to the Bolinas Ridge, south to Pan Toll, and down Panoramic Highway to Rocky Point. Thus. Moscone and Marks — would represent Sausalito, Marin City, Tamalpais and Homestead Valleys, Mill Valley, Alto, Corte Madera and Larkspur west of Highway 101, Kentfield, Kent Woodlands, San Rafael west of Highway 101, San Anselmo, Ross, Terra Linda, Fairfax, Sleepy Hollow and Muir Beach.

Behr and Marler, until they face one another in an election, would represent Belvedere, Tiburon, Strawberry, Corte Madera and Larkspur east of Highway 101, San Quentin, San Rafael east of Highway 101, Santa Ventia, the north side of Lucas Valley including Marinwood, Novato, Woodacre, Stinson Beach, Bolinas and the rest of West Marin.

Behr's existing district, which he was elected to represent last year, includes all of Marin and Napa counties and most of Solano County. But it is short of the ideal district — under the one-man, one-vote principle — by 51,489, thus requiring its extension elsewhere to pick up population.

The intricate domino game played behind closed doors by

PROPOSED GERRYMANDER — Democrats in the California Senate propose splitting Marin County and the Fourth Senatorial District represented by Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, among four senate seats. The Ninth and Tenth at-large districts in San Francisco would be extended up the west side of Highway 101 to Lucas Valley Road, splitting San Rafael. Behr's district would bulge northward into Tehama County, and Behr would lose southern Solano County to the Seventh District.

Marin Asks Halt Of Nuclear Test

By WAT TAKESHITA

The Marin County Board of Supervisors voted unanimously yesterday to ask Congress and the President to halt the five-megaton underground nuclear explosion planned for this month in the Aleutians, (Other supervisors stories, page 6.)

The supervisors, expressing concern that the huge explosion on Amchitka Island might be a danger to the Bay Area, acted after a "stop the bomb" delegation told them the explosion might activate the San Andreas Fault with disastrous result.

Spokesmen for several anti-bomb groups conceded that such disaster was not a certainty but it was entirely possible and asked supervisors to call a halt to the nuclear test until the impact of the explosion could be studied.

PIRATES BEAT GIANTS, 9-5, FOR PENNANT

Bulletin

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Pirates beat the San Francisco Giants today 9-5 to win the National League pennant.

Richie Hebner, yesterday's hitting hero, and Al Oliver powered the Pirates to their third straight win behind the sterling relief pitching of 21-year-old Bruce Kison and veteran Dave Guisti.

After the Giants tagged starter Steve Blass for five runs, including homers by Willie McCovey and Chris Speier, Kison came on to hurl 4 2-3 runless ball. Meanwhile, the host nine parleyed three-run homers by Hebner and Oliver to win going away.

Marin City Firehouse Bids Thrown Out

Marin County supervisors yesterday tossed out all bids for the new Marin City firehouse and sheriff's substation because the cost is 30 per cent over the estimate.

M. Worden Builder of Mill Valley bid $95,160, as compared with the architect's estimate of $74,800. Other bids ranged to a high of $107,777.

Michael A. Chrystal, senior administrative analyst in the county administrator's office said the contractors apparently raised their cost estimates because they fear vandalism and theft during construction.

"I think this talk of vandalism is nonsense," said Michael Wornum. He wondered whether the county could take over the insurance against vandalism and thus cut the bid price.

"I just don't feel we should proceed at 30 per cent over estimate," said Arnold M. Baptiste.

"I'd say throw out the bids and see what's wrong," suggested John F. McInnis.

The supervisors rejected all bids and asked County Administrator John F. Barrows to see how the construction cost could be reduced.

Safety Of Explosion In Court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal court intervention in the Cannikin nuclear test on Alaska's Amchitka Island could lead to the release of secret government papers alleging the underground blast would seriously damage the environment, according to Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska.

The U.S. Court of Appeals yesterday ordered the U.S. District Court to reconsider its refusal to halt the test tentatively planned for "early" this month. No specific date has been named.

The blast would be the most powerful ever set off underground.

"The decision opens the way for release and publication of the secret studies conducted by the government, which are believed to recommend that the Cannikin test be canceled be-

Johnson Quits Sausalito Schools

By PAT ANGLE

Nathaniel Johnson yesterday made good on his often repeated threats to resign from the Sausalito School Board, doing so just as the board was about to oust him for excessive absenteeism and possible residence outside the district.

Trustee Robert A. Thompson told the Independent-Journal that Johnson, the former, board president, had been warned of the board's intentions by Supt. Lawrence A. Lindberg.

"Johnson knew the board was becoming increasingly dissatisfied with his nonparticipation and nonattendance at meetings and more and more suspicious that he did not live in the district," Thompson said.

"It was a question of whether he resigned first or was asked to resign."

Lindberg, who has been looking into the matters of Johnson's absenteeism and residence, confirmed Thompson's statements.

Johnson could not be reached Monday, yesterday or today to comment on his resignation or Thompson's allegations.

Although Thompson, one of the school board's three conservative members, agreed that he and Johnson had nearly always disagreed on political issues in the district, he said politics had nothing to do with the board's plans.

"It had come to the point where Johnson almost never came to meetings and consequently did not represent the interests of the people he was elected to serve," the trustee told the I-J.

District records show that Johnson missed 11 out of 30

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Selassie In Peking

HONG KONG (UPI) — Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia arrived today in Peking on a state visit to China at the invitation of the Chinese government, Communist China's party newspaper said today.

Desegregation Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Education and Labor Committee has broken a deadlock of more than two months and approved a $1.5 billion bill to help schools desegregate, rejecting President Nixon's request that none of the money be spent for busing children.

The panel approved the bill on a 24-3 vote Tuesday. But the Nixon antibusing proposal is certain to be offered as an amendment to the measure when it comes before the House. It is likely the amendment will be approved.

Hirohito Honored

LONDON (UPI) — Emperor Hirohito today received one of the highest honors of science-fellowship in the Royal Society. He is now entitled to add the letters F.R.S. to his name, a distinction cherished by scientists the world over.

As the emperor drove from breakfast at Buckingham Palace to the ceremony at nearby St. James' Palace, a man leaned from the crowd of 200 and shouted abuse at the emperor. The man, who refused to identify himself to police, said he was a war prisoner of the Japanese and had been tortured for three months.

The rest of the crowd was subdued but interested and applauded as Hirohito, in a black morning coat, descended from the carriage and was escorted by the Duke of Beaufort to the ceremony in the flower banked throne room.

He's Seen All 50

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has become the first President to visit all 50 states while in office, but few residents of the last state on his itinery marked the event.

Nixon attended a reception for Republican Party fund raisers Tuesday night at the estate of wealthy businessman John W. Rollins outside Wilmington, Del., completing the cycle of 50 states in less than 33 months.

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon's visits were "consistent with the philosophy that he holds that the President should get out to visit the country."

One Of 25 Is Drunk

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One out of every 25 drivers on the road between 6 p.m. and 3 a.m. are legally intoxicated — "not just drinking but drunk."

Administrator Douglas W. Toms of the Federal Traffic Safety Program gave the statistic Tuesday in calling for a wide-ranging attack on highway deaths.

He said the attack should include a crackdown on drunken drivers, probationary licenses for youthful drivers and restricting some older drivers to daylight driving.

Student Loans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Loans worth more than $1 billion went to 1.1 million college students during the last school year under the government's guaranteed student loan program, the U.S. Office of Education said today.

These were the highest annual loan and student totals since the program, the government's largest student aid plan, began in 1965.

War Victory 'Close'

TOKYO (UPI) — Soviet President Nikolai Podgorney told North Vietnam's leaders today that they are close to victory in the Indochina war, and that Soviet military aid will continue.

"The liberation movement of the Indochinese peoples has been so successful that the future victory is already well in sight and the day of victory is not far off," Podgorney said in address in Hanoi.

The text of his speech was broadcast by North Vietnam's official news agency VNA and heard in Tokyo.

Poland Offers U.N. A Stand-By Force

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Poland offered the United Nations Tuesday a stand-by force of its army for possible use in peace-keeping operations.

Poland was the second Soviet Bloc nation to offer its troops for U.N. peace keeping, the other being Czechoslovakia two years ago.

36 Illegal Aliens Jailed In Banuelos Plant Raid

GARDENA, Calif. (UPI) — Federal agents raided the Mexican food packing plant owned by U.S. treasurer-nominee Mrs. Romana Banuelos Tuesday and arrested 36 illegal aliens.

About 35 other workers in Ramona's Food Products Co. escaped, agents said, by running out side and back doors and scrambling over a six-foot chain link fence.

Mrs. Banuelos, who was working in the plant at the time, said she did not know illegal aliens were employed by her company.

She said the raid may have been "part of an attempt by Democrats to block my nomination as treasurer of the United States."

The firm was founded by Mrs. Banuelos, 46, and she now serves as president, while her husband, Alexander, is secretary-treasurer.

President Nixon last month tapped Mrs. Banuelos, who built her $6 million yearly business empire from a taco stand she opened 22 years ago, as the next treasurer.

"I am not doing anything wrong," Mrs. Banuelos said. "If I asked every person who came to us for a job about their immigration papers, I'd start a fight."

Six agents of the Bureau of Immigration and Naturalization took part in the raid. Of those arrested, 27 were women and nine were men. They were bused to the U.S. border station at San Ysidro, officials said.

An immigration spokesman said there was no law against hiring illegal aliens.

George K. Rosenberg, district director of the Immigration Service, said it was the sixth raid at the Mexican food packaging plant in three years.

He said that in August, 1969 he sent Mrs. Banuelos' company a letter asking it to stop employing illegal aliens.

Mrs. Banuelos said she did not receive the letter.

Tonight's Agenda

Modular housing and proposed revisions to the city's park plaza plan will be among items considered by the Sausalito Planning Commission when it meets at 8 p.m. today in city hall.

Goldwater Views Peking To U.N.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., believes the admission of mainland China will make the United Nations a sounding board of communism.

Goldwater said in a Senate speech Tuesday that he believed the admission of China would lead to successful campaigns for the admission of North Vietnam, North Korea, and East Germany.

But he said he saw nothing "devious or evil" in President Nixon's plan to visit Peking.

"I would rather see President Nixon in that particular role than any of our former presidents or any of our softheaded liberal diplomats," the 1964 Republican presidential nominee said.

Hickel Hedges On Support To Nixon

NEW YORK (UPI) — Walter Hickel hedged Tuesday when asked if he would support for a second term President Nixon, the man who fired him as secretary of the interior last November.

"I don't want to lock myself in, or lock myself out, without knowing just what the alternatives are," Hickel said at a news conference in answer to a question whether he would back Nixon for re-election.

Aircraft Bomb Try In Beirut

BEIRUT (UPI) — An explosion ripped through a pile of suitcases today just before they were to have been loaded aboard a Royal Jordanian airliner for a flight to Amman with 47 passengers.

The plane had arrived from Amman two hours late and its tardiness apparently kept the time bomb from exploding in flight. The passengers were in the airport lounge at the time.

"It was a miracle," the airliner pilot said. "The plane had been scheduled to take off for Amman two hours ago. If we had moved on time we would have blown up in midair somewhere over the Mediterranean."

The luggage was aboard an airport trolley and had reached the wingtip of the plane, a French-built Caravelle, when it blew up.

The plane was not damaged and there was no immediate report of injuries to airport personnel.

Security officials said the explosive device had been hidden in one of the suitcases on the trolley.

Lebanese intelligence officers began to question passengers immediately after the incident.

Flournoy Asks A Minitax Bill

SPEAKER BOB MORETTI
New blast at Reagan

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — State Controller Houston Flournoy today urged Gov. Ronald Reagan and the legislature to forget tax reform temporarily and pass a mini-tax bill to save California from another "Great Depression" fiscal crisis.

The Republican official and keeper of the state's checkbook said payroll withholding must be enacted immediately and additional taxes raised "even if no immediate agreement can be reached on tax reform."

Meantime, one of the tax reform negotiators, Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco, accused Reagan of attempting to "drive a wedge" between himself and Democratic Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti.

Both Moretti and Moscone are potential Democratic contenders for governor in 1974.

Flournoy's demand for approval of a minimum tax bill to ease the state over a $330 million budget deficit and do away with the need to issue tax anticipation notes followed by one day collapse of tax reform negotiations between the governor and legislators.

Reagan and Moretti declared they were ready and willing to resume the bargaining over property tax relief but voiced little optimism that deep philosophical differences could be overcome.

The governor leaves Friday for a two-week tour of the Orient.

The governor insisted at a news conference Tuesday he did not "storm out" of the 17th negotiation session on Monday but declared he told the Democrats that Republicans had made a last offer and "if we were to have property tax relief and tax reform, it was up to them."

Reagan said he left the meeting swiftly to catch a plane for a Los Angeles speech but that he hoped the talks wouldn't collapse and told negotiators he was prepared to return to the bargaining table.

Asked whether the Republicans' offer, submitted shortly before talks broke off represented their final bid, Reagan replied, "That's it."

Moretti and the governor agreed that controls over how much taxes local governments could raise was the issue which finally broke the talks. Reagan said Moretti later asked for and he agreed to send the speaker specifics of the Republican spending control proposal but indicated little optimism this would bring the Democrats back to talk formally.

Demos Chop Up Marin In State Remap Plan

the committee since January, however, forced other changes in Behr's district as lines were pushed around the map to satisfy political needs.

Behr lived in Mill Valley until early this year, whe he moved to Tiburon, thus he already lives in his proposed new district.

Marler, as of only last Friday, was supposed to be thrown into the First District, represented by Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka. But Collier successfully demanded that the committee put Marler elsewhere, so Behr's district boundary was bulged in a wedge extending north to take in Marler's home in Redding. Collier's district would continue to include virtually all of Sonoma County.

Behr told the Independent-Journal that the plan "represents the finest flowering of gerrymandering." He said "it would be difficult to conceive of a district drawn with less community of interests."

(The Sacramento Valley counties in Behr's proposed new district are predominantly devoted to timber, agriculture, cattle and dairy industry, and have little in common with Bay Area counties.)

Noting that Marin traditionalally was the population anchor of the Fourth District, Behr said under the Democratic plan the county "will be one-fifth of a district dominated by San Francisco and one-fifth of a second district which moves so far north that it has to be seen to be believed."

Including Redding in the district "is a real compliment to Senator Marler," Behr said, "since it obviously means that Senator Collier does not dare face him as a potential threat in the next election."

Behr urged people "who are as appalled as I with the Democratic plan" to protest immediately to the elections and reapportionment committee and its chairman, Sen. Mervyn M. Dymally, D-Los Angeles.

Marler, who holds the influential position of Senate minority leader, told the I-J that the Democrats' plan was "using Marin County to supply population to satisfy other political requirements." The senator, whose own Second District was shifted to downtown Los Angeles to carve out a Mexican-American district, said "it makes no sense to cut up Marin County and stick it in with agricultural counties."

Such a highly disparate district would face "a great danger of constant internal conflicts," Marler said.

Moscone, Democratic leader of the Senate, assured the I-J that "there was no effort to hurt Behr, but to help Behr." Moscone said putting Behr in a district with Marler should be "a matter of indifference" to Behr because the Marin senator could defeat Marler.

Moscone predicted that all of the senators except Marler will accept the Democratic plan "at least in a grumbling fashion." As for Marler, he said, "fate picked him" as the sacrifice to satisfy the population shift requiring another Los Angeles district.

Marks declined to comment on the reapportionment plan, saying he needed more time to study it.

Behr's new district would have 498,437 persons, 391 less than the ideal district, or, off the ideal by only .08 per cent.

The new district would include all of Butte, Colusa, Glenn, Napa, Sutter, and Tehama counties, and portions of Marin, Sonoma, Solano, Yolo and Shasta counties. The Sonoma portion would be a band along the bay shoreline.

With 186,688 registered voters in the new district, party percentages would be 51.3 per cent Democratic and 44.6 per cent Republican, a slight gain in Republican registration over the percentage in Behr's existing district.

In Marin, 92,935 residents would be in the new Fourth District, and 113,103, in the Moscone-Marks at-large district.

Their district, now limited to San Francisco, also would include Burlingame, Hillsborough and parts of Daly City, South San Francisco, Millbrae and San Mateo in San Mateo County. In Alameda County, it would include the unincorporated black ghetto near San Leandro.

The new Ninth-Tenth District would give Democrats the registration edge with 59 per cent of the voters.

Still unclear was whether Behr and Marler would have to run in next year's election, since both were elected only last year to four-year terms. Legislative Counsel George Murphy has advised that senators in even-numbered districts will not have to run again next year, even though their districts may be reapportioned out from under them.

Murphy, however, has been challenged successfully before in court tests, and his ruling in this sensitive issue is almost certain to be tested as well.

Also due for a clash in the Legislature is Moscone's hope to switch the number of his district from the Tenth to the Ninth so he can be reelected next year and have a "free ride" in 1974 to campaign for governor. However, Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, D-North Hollywood, already has stated publicly he will oppose such a move — since as an assemblyman he has to run every two years, and he also is shooting at the governorship in 1974.

The precedent for dividing Marin into separate legislative districts was set four years ago when Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, was given Marin south of Novato to add to his western San Francisco district.

Congressional reapportionment still has not been unveiled, but Mailliard's district is expected to take in the rest of Marin this time.

Also pending disclosure is the Democratic plan for Assembly districts. Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, is expected to lose some of his Sonoma County territory, but retain all of Marin.

Kentfield Trustees Work On Bylaws

Kentfield School District trustees began reviewing and updating board bylaws at a special workshop meeting last night.

Supt. Anthony G. Bachich said the board will meet again at 8 p.m. tomorrow in Wolfe Grade School, to continue updating the district's policy handbook, which has not bee revised since 1967. He predicted that up to eight sessions will be needed to complete the review.

Richmond-San Rafael Span Traffic Up

Traffic on the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge totaled 617,948 vehicles in June, up from 569,929 in June 1970. Revenue totaled $464,320, down from $464,709 the preceding June because of toll reductions.

In the year ending June 30, 6,857,616 vehicles crossed the bridge, up from 6,340,467. Revenue for the year amounted to $5,124,743, down from $5,210,211 the preceding year.

Big Post Offices Will Be Remodeled

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Postmaster General Winton M. Blount today announced the U.S. Postal Service will spend $40 million to improve lighting, heating, air conditioning, toilets and eating facilities in 800 of the nation's largest post offices.

"In all candor it is overdue," Blount said. "Some of our postal employes have worked for years in unsuitable or unsafe or unsavory surroundings. They deserve a good working environment and I have ordered a top priority effort to see that they have it."

Wornum and a second by Peter R. Arrigoni, Jr., supervisors approved a resolution asking the President and Congress to halt the experimental five-megaton blast because it may be a threat to the Bay Area and to wildlife in the Aleutians.

Chairman Louis H. Baar argued that the protestors should appeal to congressmen in Washington, not to county supervisors, because nuclear tests are federal actions and completely outside the realm of county supervisors. However, Baar voted a "reluctant yes" on the resolution to make it unanimous.

Paul Giampaoli of Ross, speaking for Concerned Citizens of Marin and the Party of the People of Marin, warned supervisors that the Atomic Energy Commission had planned the underground blast on Amchitka Island on Oct. 10, but the date had been postponed until later in the month.

The island is only 57 miles from the northern end of San Andreas fault and could trigger earth movements that could slough the Bay Area into the ocean or cause a disastrous tidal wave, said Giampaoli.

He said the government has proclaimed Amchitka Island as a natural wildlife refuge. "Sea and wildlife is in danger of extinction."

"I want to know what safety precautions have been taken," said Giampaoli. "I don't wanna be poisoned by fallout or pushed into the ocean. You are the only ones we can go to for help."

Other speakers who urged a halt to the bomb were Greg Fearon, student body vice president at College of Marin; Arthur Lisch of Novato, Party of the People of Marin; and Barbara Bloomquist, who said she represents Another Mother for Peace.

In moving for a halt to the test, Wornum said he can certainly see possibility of danger in view of reports of nerve gas being disposed of underground and fallout damaging and killing livestock. "I think this is playing Russian roulette with our environment."

Arrigoni added that the government should provide the county with a report on the environmental impact of the Amchitka blast, if such a study has been made.

The antibomb delegation of about 20 applauded the resolution by the supervisors.

Oakland Man Leaps To Death

An Oakland man leapt to his death from a point near the South Tower of the Golden Gate Bridge yesterday while a bridge employee watched.

The California Highway Patrol said Rhey Bartlett, 32, stopped his car in a northbound lane at about 2 p.m. and scaled the railing while a painter, William Gavery, watched.

The body was recovered a short time later by a fishing boat and taken to Fort Point, San Francisco.

Film On Hopper At Sonoma State

"The American Dreamer," a film depicting the lifestyle of actor-director Dennis Hopper, will be shown in Ives Hall at Sonoma State College Friday, Saturday and Sunday at 7:30 p.m. and 9:30 p.m.

The film, sponsored by the World Peace Organization, is a first-run production being shown at colleges rather than at commercial theaters. The film was produced by Lawrence Schiller and L. M. (Kit) Carson.

cause of its harm to the environment," Gravel said in a statement after the Appellate decision.

The unanimous, unsigned opinion by the three-judge court found that District Judge George L. Hart erred when he ruled in the government's favor in a suit brought by seven conservation groups. They charged that the Atomic Energy Commission did not meet standards set by the National Environmental Policy Act when it evaluated the effects of the $190 million explosion.

Critics claim the test could set off earthquakes, cause tidal waves in the Pacific and endanger marine and wildlife. But the government, which acknowledges that it would be too powerful for the Nevada test site, claims it would not harm the environment.

The appeals court said Hart accepted the government's argument that Congress' appropriation of money to conduct the test constituted "a conclusive determination" that the AEC had complied with all its obligations.

Furthermore, it said his summary judgment against the conservationists erroneously shut off all lines of inquiry from opposing scientific opinion. The District Court should see to it that this line of inquiry continues, Tuesday's opinion said.

It added that there were "unresolved questions of fact" that needed to be argued and that the district court's action "was plainly inappropriate."

Seven groups —the Sierra Club, Friends of the Earth, National Park and Conservator Association, the Wilderness Society, American Indian Affairs, Inc., SANE Inc. (Society Against Nuclear Explosions) and Amchitka Two —filed their suit here July 8.

Hart denied the motion for injunction Aug. 31 and the seven groups appealed.

The test, code-named Cannikin, is designed to test the Spartan missile warhead for the Safeguard antiballistic missile (ABM) system.

Astronaut Will Speak On Friday

Astronaut Vance DeVoe Brand will be guest speaker at a no-host luncheon of the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau, Friday noon at the Holiday Inn in San Rafael.

Brand, back-up command module pilot for Apollo 15 and a five-year veteran of the space program, will give a 20-minute talk on "What We Are Doing in Space — And Offshoots." Brand will visit Marin to participate in the opening ceremonies Friday for the Marin County Fair at the Civic Center.

Luncheon reservations may be made by telephoning the chamber office, according to Carroll A. Snyker, manager.

Committee On Park Will Meet Tonight

The ad hoc committee to establish a regional park district in Marin County will meet at 7:30 p.m. today in the Marvin B. Pomeroy home, 92 Golden Hinde Boulevard, San Rafael.

Pierre W. Joske, county parks and recreation director, said a member of his staff would attend the meeting as an observer.

The committee is composed of conservationists who wish to explore creating an autonomous park district, to replace the present control by the county board of supervisors, according to committee chairman Robert Young of Terra Linda.

CHINA

for negotiations to relax tensions. An agreement was reached to maintain the status quo and negotiations then proceeded.

Referring to Nixon's statement that the current era is one of negotiations, Chou said it was indeed "an era of negotiations — and one of struggle by armed force.

"As for us, we do not like armed struggle and we do not provoke others. Not only have we not gone to Long Island, we have not gone to Honolulu. Even with the U.S. Navy in the Taiwan Strait, we are for negotiations."

History has taught China important lessons, Chou said.

"If we are only prepared for negotiations without preparing against armed war, that is not good," he said.

"If a war is launched against China, what should we do?" How have we prepared? It may sound impossible to our friends, but we must think of it.

"Suppose the Soviet army goes straight to the northern banks of the Yellow River, the Americans go to the southern banks of the Yangtze River, and Japan invades and occupies Tsingtao to Shanghai and India joins in and invades Tibet?

"What should we do? We are ready. We must dig underground tunnels, and this has been done in every big and small city.

"Only when one dares to engage in war, can one negotiate, and if one wants peaceful negotiations, he must be prepared against war. China has had no soldiers abroad, no overflights of anyone's territory and no naval forces on anyone's oceans or seas. We are holding on to our own territory and carrying out defensive measures."

Chou only briefly mentioned the United Nations situation, saying there had been no change from the Foreign Ministry statement issued Aug. 20—China firmly opposes two Chinas, one China, one Taiwan; and any independent Taiwan. All were unacceptable, he said, and if anything the third even less so.

Chou said, however, he hoped to see more Americans visiting China. "More and more have been coming," he said. "Though Japanese visitors have been the most numerous, the number of Americans coming should catch up with them in the 1970's."

Joint Session On Ridge Park

City councils from three Marin communities will hold a joint meeting Oct. 14 in Mill Valley to review progress on the North Ridge regional park proposal.

Meeting at 8 p.m. at city hall, councilmen from Larkspur, Corte Madera and Mill Valley also will discuss possible methods of financing the park.

$1,343 Collected For Student Exchanges

The Foreign Student Exchange Club of Terra Linda High School has collected $1,343 in its annual fund drive to send students abroad in the summer and to bring a foreign student to the high school.

Margaret Council, co-ordinator for the drive, said the $1,343 figure was preliminary because about one-third of Terra Linda didn't get covered in the door-to-door drive Monday night. She said another date would be set to complete the area.

JOHNSON

meetings in the 1970-71 school year, and has missed nine of 11 meetings held since July 1 in the present year.

Thompson said there would be no valid reason for the board's conservative coalition to move for Johnson's ouster because of his politics.

"How can he be a threat to those who disagree with him if he never comes to board meetings or functions as a trustee?" Thompson said.

He said some trustees and the superintendent have for the past several months questioned whether Johnson, a musician in a San Francisco nightclub, is involved in a San Francisco entertainment business and attends San Francisco State College, and whether he was a resident of the Sausalito district and eligible to serve on the board. Johnson lived in Marin City when elected to the board in 1965, but moved out of that community last year.

"We have been unable to determine where he actually lives and he has consistently refused to give his address to the superintendent or his fellow trustees," Thompson said.

"It is becoming increasingly difficult to find a place to leave notification of school board meetings for him. In fact, it has become a major project to find Johnson for anything."

According to Thompson, Johnson has been using the Sausalito School District office as his Sausalito mailing address, a fact which the superintendent confirmed.

In addition to recall by the voters, a school district trustee can be removed from his post in two ways. He can be ousted if the county grand jury brings charges of misconduct or corrupt behavior against him, according to a county schools spokesman.

Also, the state education code provides that a seat on a school board can be declared vacant if the board or the county superintendent determines the seat holder has moved from the district or has failed to discharge his duties for three consecutive months except if prevented from doing so by illness or authorized absence.

Thompson said the school board had hesitated to oust Johnson for "some time, despite his ridiculously poor record as a board member. We felt that to ask for the resignation of the only black member of the board would only intensify political and racial antagonisms in the district."

Thompson added, "Our district faces many serious problems and we need board members who are willing to get in there and work for solutions. "Their political views are inconsequential. Even some of the people who disagree violently with this board have shown they are vitally interested in what goes on in the district."

Johnson's letter of resignation, delivered yesterday afternoon to the superintendent, marked the second time he had quit. He first resigned in June of 1970 in the wake of the firing of black principal Sidney F. Walton Jr., the recall of two liberal trustees and the resignations of two moderate board members.

Then, a week later at graduation exercises at Martin Luther King School, Johnson announced publicly that he had changed his mind.

With the recalls and resignations, Johnson became the final surviving member of the school board which initiated integration in the district in 1965.

Johnson's letter to the board yesterday was a brief, one-sentence note, which read: "At this time I submit my resignation and extend many thanks and regards to all and the best of luck in your endeavors."

Tam High Students Demanding Trustees To Reconsider Firing

About 60 Tamalpais High School students have demanded that the Tamalpais High School District board reconsider its firing of English teacher Kenneth Anderson.

According to Supt. Wilber D. Hawkins, the students made their demand Monday before the board, which refused to discuss the matter since it is now is litigation.

Dr. Hawkins said the student group denounced Anderson's firing as politically motivated and unwarranted.

Their complaint followed by two weeks a similar position taken by the Tamalpais Federation of Teachers, the union to which Anderson belongs.

Anderson's firing in May, according to district officials, was based on 11 charges ranging from his alleged encouragement of antisocial attitudes among students to his failure to follow district policies.

His dismissal is pending a court hearing in Marin Superior Court. Anderson, meanwhile, remains on the district's payroll although assigned non teaching duties.

The Tamalpais High School District board also:

MEETINGS — Took no action on a request from Trustee Jerrold M. Ladar that the board consider changing its meeting days from Mondays to Saturdays.

POLICIES — Received but took no action on the first of nine revisions proposed by Dr. Hawkins to streamline district policies.

GRIEVANCE — Referred the district's student grievance procedure back to staff for modification in the light of district reorganization plans.

I-J EDITORIAL — Took exception to an Independent-Journal editorial which questioned whether trustees actually read the reams of material submitted for their study by the district staff. Trustees said they not only read all of it, but appreciate having it, Hawkins said.

INTEGRATION — Were told that a proposed "tri-county consortium" of Marin, San Francisco and San Mateo counties to discuss integration of students had been scraped because of lack of funds.

COMMITTEE — Referred back to staff for additional information a proposed citizens' advisory committee of 100 persons. Hawkins said the board wants clear guidelines on the scope and functions of the group.

RESIGNATION — Accepted the resignation of Francis P. Shafer, assisting principal at Sir Francis Drake High School, after 38 years with the district.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to Monday when the board will meet with district principals and central office officials to discuss goals and priorities for the district.

New Program For Adults To Be Considered

The Marin Community College District board, meeting tonight at 8 o'clock at Room 101 of the College of Marin's new science building, will consider a remedial education program for adults in Marin City.

The program, to teach basic reading and mathematics skills, would use the Manzanita Center and cost the district about $22,000.

The board also will consider naming the schools within the planned Indian Valley Colleges in Novato and approving a child care center for the College of Marin.

New Youth For Park-Rec Panel

A senior at San Rafael High School, Marty Davis, was named to the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission by unanimous vote of the Marin County Board of Supervisors yesterday. (Other supervisors stories, page 1.)

Miss Davis will succeed another youth, Raymond A. Bresnan, who resigned after three years on the commission.

Supervisor Chairman Louis H. Baar announced that Bresnan quit because he plans to travel to South America.

Bresnan was a 15-year-old sophomore at Novato High School when appointed to the parks and recreations commission in August 1968.

The supervisors also appointed Marilyn Kramer of Fairfax and Kenneth Bott of Mill Valley, student body president at College of Marin, to the Marin County Juvenile Delinquency Prevention Commission.

Four adult incumbents reappointed to the juvenile delinquency prevention commission are Gary Giacomini, Maryann Garthwaite, Richard Oesterman and Cecelia Michael.

Other appointments made yesterday were:

Family and Children's Services Advisory Committee — June R. Tolbert of Forest Knolls.

County Supervisors Association of California, Board of Directors — John F. McInnis, with Arnold M. Baptiste as alternate.

Automatic Traffic Signal Due At Dolan's Corner

An automatic traffic signal will be installed at Dolan's Corner in Tamalpais Valley for about $70,000 with the help of state financing.

Marin County Board of Supervisors yesterday authorized the expenditure of about $32,000 in county funds, with the rest to be paid by the state because the State Division of Highways agrees that a traffic signal is needed.

The intersection, where Shoreline Highway meets Almonte Boulevard is one of the worst traffic congested areas in the county, said Lawrence H. Loder, assistant director of public works.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors also:

FILL — Held up for two weeks a decision on what to do about rancher Waldo Giacomini's program to fill flood areas at the corner of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and Bear Valley Road near Point Reyes Station. Public Works Director Ray W. Foreaker Jr. asked for time to investigate further.

VIEW ACRES — Voted 3-to-2 to uphold conditions imposed by the Marin County Planning Commission on Edward V. Grundstrom's View Acres subdivision at Laguna Vista Drive and Cerro Crest in east Novato. Grundstrom protested the requirement that the subdivision must be annexed to the Novato Sanitary District. The requirement was upheld by Arnold M. Baptiste, Michael Wornum and Petter R. Arrigoni Jr., and opposed by Louis H. Baar and John F. McInnis.

NICASIO ROAD — Agreed to change the name of San Geronimo-Nicasio Road to Nicasio Valley Road, as requested by the Nicasio Landowners Association Inc.

CONFERENCE — Gave the county's official blessing to Vera Schultz and Edward T. Ryken to attend the White House Conference on Aging from Nov. 28 through Dec. 3. There is no cost to the county.

BIKE RACK — Approved an outlay of $2,762 to install a large rack for 40 bicycles instead of the present rack for eight bicycles at the Novato branch library.

HUD GRANT — Approved a preliminary application for federal Housing and Urban Development funds for a $150,000 planning program for 1972-73 fiscal year. The federal share will be one-half. County Planning Director Werner Von Gundell said the $150,000 program can be scaled down later if the county wants to do so.

RESURFACING — Awarded a $22,846 contract to Valley Slurry Seal Co. of Sacramento to resurface various roads in upper Lucas Valley and in portions of Marinwood north of Miller Creek Road.

JAIL COST — Approved a rate hike requested by Sonoma County for housing Marin County Jail inmates at the Sonoma County Jail and Honor Farm. The cost will go up from $8.62 per day to $9.57.

STAGE LIGHTING — Bought special lighting fixtures for the stage of the Veterans Memorial Building for $16,373.40 from Cinema Services Co. of San Francisco. Asst. Administrator Thomas F. Campanella said the various amateur groups who use the lights will pay fees to offset the cost of purchase.

BEER AND WINE — Voted 4-to-1 to support the Civic Center Caterers in its appeal to the state Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control for permission to sell beer and wine at the Civic Center Cafeteria. Chairman Louis H. Baar dissented, explaining the Civic Center is no place for liquor sale.

COLLEGE BONDS — Gave unanimous support to Hadden W. Roth, co-chairman of the citizens committee urging voter approval of Proposition A on Nov. 2. The proposition asks for a $16,760,000 bond issue to complete College of Marin and build a new college near Novato.

PARKING ATTENDANTS — Set the following pay schedule for attendants who work at the Veterans Memorial Building parking lot: $5 per performance, and $10 per performance for the two who handle the cash transactions. Parking fee is 50 cents per car.

General Relief Work Project Outlined

Marin County supervisors yesterday approved the ground rules for a general relief work project, which will require able-bodied recipients of general relief to show up for work or get off public aid.

As a starter, the work project will be able to hire only five to 10 persons, but county supervisors asked County Administrator John F. Barrows to look around for other work programs such as cleaning up water district trails or parks.

Assist. County Administrator Thomas F. Campanella reported that the only county department where work crews can be handled is in the parks and recreation department. Between five and 10 men can be provided shovels, picks and wheelbarrows and engaged in cleanup and maintenance of county grounds and landscaping.

The supervisors appropriated $600 to buy the necessary hand tools to be used in the program.

Under the ground rules approved, each person who receives general relief and is able-bodied must show up for county work four days each week. County general relief will be terminated if the recipient fails to show up without good cause.

Campanella explained that the able-bodied recipients will get general relief in exchange for showing up for county work and doing what work is assigned. There will be no pay for the work itself.

Since there will not be enough jobs for all general relief recipients, inequities could arise in the number of hours or days worked by the various recipients, Campanella explained.

"Is there any way we can farm out the workers to the Marin Municipal Water District?" asked chairman Louis H. Baar. "They've got miles of trails that need cleaning up."

Deputy County Counsel Thomas H. Hendricks said he believes Marin will run into legal difficulties if it began farming out general relief workers to perform duties outside of county property.

"Can't we enter into a joint powers agreement with the water district?" asked Baar.

Campanella said the water district is reluctant because of the problem of providing supervision for such workers.

Why can't park caretakers at McNears Beach or Paradise Park Beach take a few of these workers in town and put them to work, John F. McInnis wanted to know.

The unions will insist on giving caretakers supervisory pay as soon as men are assigned under them, said Campanella. "In fact the Marin County Employees Association told me already they will ask for such supervisory pay."

"Get that in writing and I'll have it headlined in the I-J," snapped McInnis. He said the unions should cooperate in the county's effort to reduce the cost of general relief.

"Right on!" applauded Baar.

The supervisors asked Hendricks and Campanella to study all means of expanding the general relief work program and come back with more recommendations.

SPACE CUBICLES — Recorded messages about the benefits of space exploration are being broadcast to 12 people in a National Aeronautics and Space Administration exhibit, similar to the one to be at the Marin County Fair opening Friday.

Sexual Freedom Bill Is Defeated By The Assembly

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Assembly, after an emotional debate punctuated with biblical quotations, flatly rejected yesterday a bill legalizing all forms of sexual conduct between consenting adults in private.

"The capital of this state is Sacramento—not Sodom and Gomorrah," said Assemblyman Frank Lanterman, R-La Canada, an opponent.

Opponents contended homosexuality is immoral and cited the Bible to make their point. Backers said it was time to get government out of the bedroom.

The vote on the bill was 29-38. Forty-one votes were required for passage. Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael cast a yes vote.

"I doubt there are many people in this society who have not at one time engaged in some sexual conduct that is illegal," said the author, Assemblyman Willie L. Brown Jr., D-San Francisco.

"But maybe society has not caught up with the level of intelligence that is required for this measure."

Assemblyman E. Richard Barnes, R-San Diego, a former Navy chaplain, read from a large gold-embossed Bible and cited Leviticus, 18th chapter, 22nd verse: "Thou shalt not lie with a man as with a woman. It is an abominjtion."

But Assemblyman John T. Knox, D-Richmond, said "the Bible can be used for a lot of purposes."

He said laws against homosexuality "are not enforceable now and were not enforceable in the times of the writings of Timothy, Leviticus, St. Paul."

"Gay Power" leaders journeyed to the state Capitol to lobby the measure prior to the floor debate.

"The Bible says these people should be stoned to death. I don't think any of us would go for that," said Assemblyman John L. Burton, D-San Francisco, who noted many homosexuals live in his district.

"These are people who get up in the morning, they breath air, they eat food, they pay taxes. They participate in society. They aren't criminals. They're people."

Assemblyman Robert H. Burke, R-Huntington Beach, said "I'm mighty ashamed of this body today. We're saying, 'Let's elevate ourselves above God.'"

He added "homosexuality doesn't serve any purpose whatsoever. It can be prevented."

"A government that has to live in people's bedrooms can't be defended and can't be justified," said Assemblyman John Vasconcellos, D-San Jose. "These are questions for the individual and the church, not for the state.

"Maybe it's time the government got out of people's personal sex lives."

Assemblyman Mike Cullen, D-Long Beach, said "25 per cent of the police in Long Beach are engaged in looking through peepholes."

An opponent, Assemblyman Newton R. Russell, R-Tujunga, read from the Bible and said Sodom and Gomorrah "were destroyed because of their wickedness."

But Brown answered that the Bible also says women shall not wear red dresses.

Brown said his bill would not affect laws against prostitution.

Red Cross Unit Elects

Fair Will Feature Moon Rock, Pictures Taken On Lunar Trip

The Marin County Fair will feature a unique and timely space exhibit including a visit by an astronaut, a moon rock, pictures taken from the moon and a full-scale command module.

The full extent of the exhibit was reported yesterday by county administrator's office, which announced it will include seven exhibitors including the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the Atomic Energy Commission.

Highlighting the exhibit to be shown in the Veterans Memorial Building exhibition hall when the fair opens Friday will be a visit from Astronaut Lance Brand, backup command module pilot for Apollo 15 and one of 19 astronauts selected by NASA.

The NASA exhibit covering 3,780 square feet will also feature a moon rock brought back by Apollo 11 astronauts who made the first manned-flight to the lunar surface and a photo display of pictures taken from the moon.

Rounding out the NASA display will be an audio-visual presentation of "Space in the 70's" and 12 cylindrical compartments seating one person at a time and offering different recorded messages about the benefits of space exploration. Each compartment will have a message appealing to various types of people including teachers, doctors, rock hounds, athletes, women and taxpayers.

The Atomic Energy Commission will have a present lecture on "Energy, Today and Tomorrow," and will have a booth with an audio-visual display on understanding the atom.

The TRW Systems Inc. will stage a photo display on ecology and space and a mockup of a communications satellite. An instrumentation panel for a Saturn rocket will be included in the IBM exhibit and the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. will have a mobile atomic power exhibit and an atomic plant display.

Owens-Corning Fiberglass will feature an Apollo space unit and Aero-Jet Co., with displays of Apollo and Nerva engines.

Picasso's Art Goes On Display

NEW YORK (UPI)—Two exhibitions of the works of Pablo Picasso opened Tuesday three weeks before the famed artist celebrates his 90th birthday.

The exhibitions, spanning 70 years of Picasso's work as a painter, sculptor and ceramist, opened at the Saidenberg and Marlborough galleries with a preview for the benefit of the American Cancer Society. Many of the paintings are from private collections and have not been shown in public before.

Picasso was born in Spain Oct. 25, 1881.

CHART I

HOW TAXES WILL BE AFFECTED BY ANNEXATION

$40,000 Home In	1970-71	If Annexed	Annual Increase
Strawberry	$1,159	$1,201	$42
Bel Air	$1,191	$1,256	$65
Eagle Rock	$1,100	$1,165	$65
Bayview Heights	$1,077	$1,142	$65

Column two shows what owners of $40,000 homes actually paid last year in taxes based on the total tax rate for fiscal 1970-71. The total rate includes special district rates which vary from community to community. Column Three indicates the tax bill that would result from annexation, using Tiburon's 1971-72 tax rate of 73.5 cents, which would be added to the county rate. Strawberry's lesser increase (Column Four) assumes it would become exempt from the 23.5-cent rate in Flood Control Zone III.

CHART II

PROPERTY TAX REVENUES

	To County (with or without annexation)	To Tiburon (with annexation)	Assessed Valuation
Area I:
Bel Air, Eagle Rock, Bayview Heights	$132,045	$33,500	$4,569,037
Area II:
Strawberry	349,903	$88,900	$12,107,385
Total of both areas:	$481,948	$122,400	$16,676,422

The county will continue to receive property tax revenue even if annexation takes place. Its income here is based on this year's county tax rate of $2.89 per $100 assessed valuation. Tiburon will receive property tax income, if annexation takes place. Using this year's city tax rate of 73.5 cents, Tiburon would receive the above income from the various communities involved.

CHART III

NONPROPERTY TAX DISTRIBUTION

	Area I	Area II	Total
Sales tax	$15,000	$88,000	$103,000
Motor vehicle	$14,633	$29,800	$44,433
Gasoline tax	$15,000	$30,115	$45,115
Cigarette tax	$6,595	$12,500	$19,095
Liquor license fees	$278	$600	$878
Miscellaneous, such as business licenses, traffic fines, motel taxes, franchises.	$22,500	$47,500	$70,000
TOTAL	$74,006	$208,515	$282,521

These nonproperty tax revenues, many allocated by the state according to population and paid last fiscal year to the county, are indicative of the amount of income from this source that Areas I and II would bring with them to Tiburon upon annexation to that city.

BALLOTING OCT. 19

Strawberry Annexation

Residents of Strawberry Peninsula will vote Oct. 19 on whether to annex its 1,006 acres to the City of Tiburon or remain part of unincorporated Marin.

Separate elections will be held in the two areas east of Highway 101. The 268 acres north of Tiburon Boulevard, made up of Bel Air, Eagle Rock and Bayview Heights, are called Area I on the ballot. The 738 acres south of Tiburon Boulevard, including Strawberry, are called Area II.

A majority vote is required to annex either to Tiburon. About 1,400 persons live in Bel Air-Eagle Rock-Bayview Heights and 2,800 live in Strawberry.

If annexed, residents would pay higher property taxes. On a $40,000 home, for example, the increase would amount to $42 in Strawberry and $65 in the other areas. (See chart I)

Tiburon would gain about $229,000 in income after deducting from new revenue the cost of service to the annexed areas.

Marin County would lose about $283,000 in nonproperty tax revenue though it would continue to receive property tax income which is expected to total nearly $482,000 this year based on the current county tax rate of $2.89 per $100 assessed valuation.

(Figures were furnished by the Marin County auditor's office, the county assessor's office and the State Board of Equalization.)

If annexation is approved in both areas, Tiburon's gross income will rise $404,921 annually as the result of an additional $122,400 in property taxes (See Chart II) and $282,521 in nonproperty taxes (See Chart III), such as sales tax, motor vehicle in-lieu fees, gasoline and cigarette tax and liquor license fees.

Against that gain would have to be charged the cost of providing services to the two areas, a cost estimated by City Mgr. Bert A. Balmer at $176,000, leaving a net gain of $228,921.

Police protection is the largest charge at a cost of about $75,000 a year, Balmer said. Tiburon now is served under contract with the sheriff's department, but is organizing its own force which will begin operation July 1.

Although residents of the two areas last year were promised a police substation if annexation was approved, a recent study of the proposed police department and subsequent recommendations by Balmer have excluded the substation. No decision has been made yet by the city council.

Other costs and estimates by Balmer are public works, $35,000; street and drainage improvements, $40,000; planning staff, $12,000; parks and recreation, $5,000, and building inspector, $9,000.

Marin County would continue to collect $481,948 (See Chart II) in property taxes, but it would lose the $282,521 in nonproperty taxes which would go to Tiburon if annexation is approved in both areas.

Though exact comparison is impossible, if the cost of services to the areas involved is about the same for the county as for the city, estimated at $176,000 by Balmer, then the net loss in revenue to the county would be $106,520.

The Strawberry area includes the Town and Country Village Shopping Center and, although exact sales tax figures are difficult to compute, the State Board of Equalization estimates about $88,000 comes from the center itself.

A large hunk of the peninsula, the 126-acre Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary, is exempt from taxation because it is an educational institution.

Based on Tiburon's current tax rate of 73.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation, homeowners property taxes would rise (See Chart I) $42 or $65 annually if annexation is approved. The areas would not go on the city tax rolls until July 1 and residents would not pay property taxes to Tiburon until December, 1972.

Residents pay taxes to more than a dozen special assessment districts, such as school, fire, sanitary, recreation. Of these, only one assessment can be eliminated by annexing to Tiburon: the county highway lighting district with a tax rate of 8.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation. There also is a possibility that the Flood Control Zone III assessment, which affects only the Strawberry area, could be eliminted through annexation. It is 23.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — There will be 340,414 registered voters for San Francisco's next municipal election.

Novato Little League Drops Purchase Plan

The Novato Little League has dropped its plan to purchase 20 acres in the vicinity of Deer Island for baseball diamonds, the Novato Parks and Recreation Commission learned Monday night.

Recreation director Edward S. Adams presented a letter from the league saying the plan was being dropped because of cost.

The league previously had offered to donate the site to the city for a park if the city would maintain it.

Commissioners agreed to work with the league toward obtaining a school site for a diamond. That matter will go before the Novato Unified School District board at 8 p.m. today at Novato High School lecture hall.

In other business, commissioners adopted a policy in favor of a girls' "summer ball" league next year, but that it be limited to softball.

They also took under study a request from the Marin Trails Committee to establish cycling and horseback trails, particularly in the area of Novato Creek and Pioneer Memorial Park.

County Fair To Be Radio Topic

The 1971 Marin County Fair at the Civic Center will be discussed by three speakers tomorrow at 9 a.m. on radio KTIM's "Marin Sounding Board,"

The fair, scheduled for Friday through Monday, will be discussed by Robert A. Petersen, coordinator of the Space Science Show at the fair, and a member of the county administrator's staff; Robert J. Mahoney, fair designer, and Inez Storer, coordinator of the arts and crafts exhibit.

Questions are invited for the broadcast, which will be moderated by Kitty Oppenheimer and rebroadcast Sunday at 10:05 a.m.

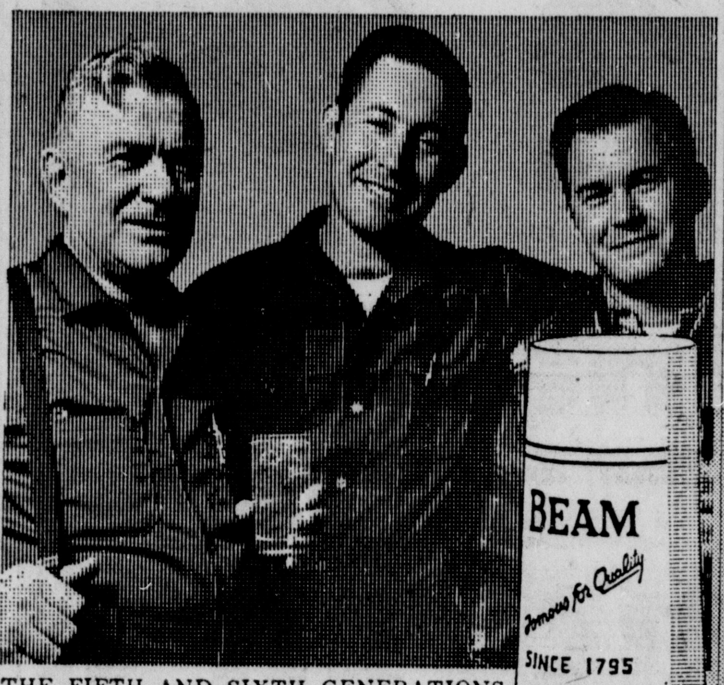
Jim Beam–making news for six generations

Generation gap? We never heard of it.

CLERMONT, BEAM, KY. —Six generations ago Jacob Beam started distilling Beam Bourbon here in Kentucky. It is still being distilled here today. And still by the Beams.

The quality of the Jim Beam Bourbon of today owes much to the careful preservation and adherence to the original formula. But it owes even more to the fact that today, as for over 176 years, it's the Beam family who distills Jim Beam.

Every glass of today's Jim Beam Bourbon holds the best from nature and the pride that has been passed on from Jacob to David to David M. to Colonel James to T. Jeremiah to Carl to David, Baker and Booker—over 176 years.



THE FIFTH AND SIXTH GENERATIONS carry on the unbroken tradition. Carl, Master sons, Baker and David.

College Bond Issue Gains Endorsement

Fairfax School District trustees last night formally endorsed the $16.7 million Marin Community College District bond issue on the Nov. 2 ballot, according to Supt. Reginald H. Hammond.

The Fairfax School District Board also:

SPECIAL MEETING — Set a special meeting for 8:45 p.m. Monday in the district office, to discuss and prepare a superintendent evaluation policy.

ROOF — Approved installing a thermal roof on the two wings of Manor School, but instructed Hammond to obtain more than the single bid submitted to date. The more costly thermal roof can reduce classroom temperatures 10 to 15 degrees in hot weather and will outlast conventional tar and gravel roofings, Hammond reported.

WORKSHOPS — Heard Hammond report that the district faculty was to hold an extended day-session today on report cards, and would hold a series of workshops on translating district goals into curricula.

RIGHT-OF-WAY — Adopted a resolution of intent to grant the Marin Municipal Water District a right-of-way through the White Hill School property, and set a public hearing on the contract for the board's next regular meeting, Oct. 19.

ENROLLMENT — Heard Hammond report that the district gained 10 pupils since the last meeting, for a new total of 1,064.

GRANT — Approved an application for federal Title III funds to study a program for youngsters not properly prepared by their kindergarten experience for first grade.

BUDGET — Heard Hammond report that property assessments have placed the district in a basic aid category, costing it more than $10,000 in Miller-Unruh special reading funds for next year.

WAGE FREEZE — Heard Hammond report "we still don't know where we are."

Bound Over On Fraud Charges

Oscar Mickey Curry, 26, of Marin City, was bound over to Marin Superior Court yesterday on two felony counts of fraudulent possession of checks.

He is to be arraigned in superior court next Wednesday.

Curry was arrested Sept. 22 on a warrant charging he stole three checks from the car of San Rafael Police Capt. Lincoln Borba while the car was being washed at a car wash where Curry was employed.

Asleep At Wheel, Car Runs Off Road

Daniel Edwin Smalle Jr., 44, of 410 Ridge Road, suffered minor cuts of his forehead early today when his car veered off Ridge Road, east of Canyon Road, and into a tree, according to Novato police.

According to officers, Smalle said he apparently had fallen asleep momentarily. His car went down a 30-foot embankment and traveled about 50 feet off the roadway at 2 a.m., police said. Smalle was treated at Novato General Hospital.

Petaluma Plan Panels Formed

The Petaluma Planning Commission last night heard that study committees on the city's environmental design plan have been formed and will soon schedule regular meetings.

Assist. Planner Richard Anderson said commissioners serving as study committee chairmen reported that most committees have been fully formed and a few organizational meetings held.

The committees will study specific aspects of the environmental design plan.

Aqueduct Public Debate Off After Court Order

Tomorrow night's scheduled public discussion of the pros and cons of Measure B, participation in the Sonoma-Marin aqueduct, has been cancelled because of a court order temporarily restraining the Marin Municipal Water District from advocating passage of the measure.

The debate was set for tomorrow night at a meeting of the city-county planning council at the Civic Center, in the board of supervisors' chambers.

Eugene A. Miller, director of the water district, and Thomas H. Thorner, chairman of Marin Alternative, were to debate the issue at 9 p.m. This debate has been called off.

However, Miller is prepared to speak on the present status of studies on water reclamation and the proposed consolidation of the county's sanitary districts.

Anne L. Ellinwood, chairman of the City-County Planning Council, said the rest of the council's agenda will be unchanged. The meeting will start at 8 p.m.

Nixon Sets Freeze Talk; House Approves Tax Cuts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon will announce his Phase II economic policy to follow the current 90-day wage-price freeze in a nationwide radio and television address at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow, the White House announced today.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, in announcing the speech, declined to discuss any details of Nixon's followup economic program.

The White House announcement came only a few minutes after the House approved a $15.4 billion tax cut bill which would benefit both individuals and corporations over the next three years. It was a major point in the Nixon plan.

The President has indicated that his Phase II program will apply to the whole economy although it will concentrate on major industries and will be enforced by the government, probably by selective actions against flagrant violators.

Nixon has also made it clear that profits will not be controlled along with wages, prices and rents.

The House passage of the tax measure, which now goes to the Senate, came on an unrecorded voice vote.

The bill was revised to tilt more heavily toward individual taxpayers, by the House Ways and Means Committee from the form originally proposed by Nixon. The administration bought the changes and House members approved the measure without further change.

It calls for an increase effective this taxpaying year of $25 per person, to $675, in the personal exemption for individuals on their tax returns. This would go up to $750 a person next year.

The standard deduction for those not itemizing deductions also would go up to 13 per cent effective this year, to a maximum of $1,500, compared to 10 per cent last year. This would rise to 20 per cent, to a maximum of $2,000 next year. The 7 per cent auto excise tax also would be wiped out immediately.

For business, the big item is a 7 per cent tax credit for equipment purchases retroactive to last April 1.

The bill now goes to the Senate where chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., promised to expedite hearings which begin Thursday. The bill is expected to reach the Senate floor late in the month, and several senators have served notice they will try to increase the tax break for individuals.

Organized labor still is pushing for more benefits in the tax bill for working people and tried to beat the measure on the House floor, calling it "a giant raid on the federal Treasury" accruing to the benefit of big business.

Prior to today's vote, House Republican leader Gerald R. Ford questioned whether the AFL-CIO, and particularly President George Meany, was accurately representing the views of rank and file workers in steady criticism of the tax bill and of Nixon's economic program in general.

Terming Meany's steady attacks on Nixon and the economic plan as "purely political," Ford said: "I think the rank and file support the President ... because they think (his program) will produce jobs. And they are interested in jobs and not political rhetoric."

The bill as approved by the House could mean that taxpayers would start receiving a taste of the cuts by mid-November — if the Senate also acts before then — in the form of reduced withholding from paychecks.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the Ways and Means Committee said individuals would get well over half the benefits from the cuts, whereas business would have had the biggest benefits under the original version proposed by the administration.

Body Discovered By Hikers Identified

The body of a woman found by two hikers yesterday in hills west of the Marin approach to the Golden Gate Bridge was identified today as a 25-year-old Sausalito resident.

Coroner's investigator Keith C. Craig said the body of Rosemarie Rulofson of 31 Crescent Avenue was dressed in blue bell bottom Levis and a tan sweater.

There was no evidence of foul play, Craig said, although the cause of death had not been determined.

She was found by two college students yesterday and appeared to have been dead at least 18 hours.

Miss Rulofson, a legal secretary in San Francisco, is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Rulofson of Palo Alto.

Funeral arrangements are pending at Russell and Gooch Mortuary in Mill Valley.

Rapid detection and mapping of crop blight areas will be possible with future earth resources and technology satellites.

Women Say They Were Swindled

Two Marin women reported to San Rafael Police yesterday that they were swindled by a man who said he was representing a vacations contest firm.

Lori Jacquelyn Ross, 18, of 960 Bel Marin Keys, Novato, and Beverly Jo Bridges, 23, of 520 Canal Street, San Rafael, told police they had been notified in August that they were winners of a contest requiring that the winners pay $9.95 for three days and two nights lodging in Reno, Tahoe or Las Vegas.

They said a man who identified himself as Jim Denney, representative of Vacations Ltd. of Oakland, collected the money from them and promised they would receive $150 in coupons within the next 30 days, according to the police report.

The coupons never came and Miss Ross said she reported the incident to the police after she read that Vacations Ltd. had been in court over its operations.

Angela's Arresting FBI Agent Testifies

By MARY LEYDECKER

The Federal Bureau of Investigation's special agent who arrested Angela Davis in New York City almost a year ago today testified how she was traced from Florida to New York.

The agent, Lawrence J. Monroe, was a witness at a pretrial hearing in Marin Superior Court in which Miss Davis's attorneys are seeking to keep certain evidence from being presented at her trial because they say it was illegally seized.

At issue today were the wig she was wearing and the purse she was carrying when she was arrested Oct. 13, 1970, in a New York motel.

Agent Monroe told how information from David Poindexter's mother led to Miss Davis's arrest.

Poindexter was with Miss Davis when she was arrested.

Monroe, however, was not queried nor did he testify how the FBI knew that Miss Davis was with Poindexter after she fled California following the Aug. 7 shoot-out at the Marin Civic Center.

He said that Mrs. June Hunzinger of Chicago, Poindexter's mother, told agents on Oct. 9, 1970, that she had purchased a car for her son in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. Furthermore, she said that she had last seen her son in late September in Miami at an apartment there.

With him, according to what Mrs. Hunzinger told agents, was a black woman named "Ann Moore."

Monroe related today how agents got the license number of the Toyota purchased by Mrs. Hunzinger in Fort Lauderdale and also how a mechanic at the car agency identified from photos a woman accompanying Poindexter as Miss Davis.

Although she and Poindexter were no longer at the Florida apartment, employees there also identified Miss Davis from pictures as having stayed there as Poindexter's wife, "Loreen," Monroe said.

Her arrest in New York at the Howard Johnson Motor Lodge came about, Monroe said, when he learned that the Toyota was parked in the motel's garage. The room in which Miss Davis and Poindexter were staying was staked out and when the couple walked toward the room, they were arrested.

Monroe said that at that time Miss Davis was wearing a short, black wig with bangs and large square glasses which made her look different than she did today.

Miss Davis, her head down while she read legal papers in court today, did not look up as Monroe scrutinized her present appearance.

In another development yesterday, it was learned that Miss Davis's codefendant, Ruchell Magee, had written her a letter from San Quentin Prison before the shoot-out.

The letter was listed as having been seized in one of the searches termed illegal by Miss Davis's attorneys. Written in July 1970, the letter was the first evidence publicly revealed that there had been any contact between the two before the escape attempt on Aug. 7.

In the affidavit filed by the attorney general's office there was no indication of what was in the letter.

Miss Davis and Magee are to be tried separately on charges of murder, conspiracy and kidnapping stemming from the shoot-out.

The Bear Flag revolt, proclaiming California independent of Mexico, came on June 14, 1846.

N. Viet Units Bombarded After Shelling A Dozen Allied Bases

SAIGON (UPI)- — Outnumbered North Vietnamese infantrymen fought two ground battles and shelled a dozen Allied bases on both sides of the Cambodian frontier Tuesday and U. S. B52s retaliated today with two huge bombing raids.

The Thailand-based eight-engined Stratofortresses dropped at least 180 tons of high explosives on suspected North Vietnamese Army (NVA) troop concentrations within one and three miles of the Cambodian border.

There were two other American air attacks against North Vietnamese territory Monday and Tuesday after Communist antiaircraft batteries apparently threatened U. S. B52s bombing the Ho Chi Minh Trail in Laos, the command said today.

Spokesmen said U. S. F105 fighter-bombers carried out the raids inside North Vietnam as the 65th and 66th of what the military calls "protective reaction strikes" this year.

The Command said nearly 200 rockets and mortar shells were fired on the Allied bases Tuesday, causing what were described by spokesmen as light Army of the Republic of Vietnam (ARNV) casualties.

New Abortion Group Forming

A new organization aimed at eliminating liberalized abortion laws has been formed in Marin.

Marie DePizzol, president of the Marin chapter of Voice for the Unborn, said the organization will have an informational meeting Oct. 15 at 8 p.m. at St. Raphael's School library in San Rafael.

She said similar organizations have been formed throughout the Bay Area. She added that a speakers bureau was being formed to speak in Marin schools.

34 Strep Cases Reported Last Week

Streptococcus infections were the most prevalent of communicable diseases reported last week in Marin County, according to Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, county health officer. She said there were 34 cases.

Other diseases reported were gonorrhea, 28; infectious hepatitis, 4; syphilis, 2; mumps, 1; salmonella, 1; and serum hepatitis, 1.

Another Story Of Vietnamese Village Shootings Is Revealed

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Four U.S. helicopters shot up a pair of friendly Vietnamese villages and killed 10 civilians in an unpublicized incident two years ago, the writer who broke the story of the My Lai massacre charged yesterday.

Seymour M. Hersh said only three men were punished and they got "almost the lightest punishment possible" although U.S. authorities learned almost immediately of the shootings and acknowledged after investigation that American rules of engagement had been violated.

"This is not another atrocity story," Hersh said in an interview at his Washington office. "It's much deeper than that."

The writer gave details of the shooting, the investigation by then Americal Division commander Maj. Gen. Lloyd B. Ramsey and the punishment Ramsey handed out in an article Hersh wrote in the Oct. 9 issue of the New Yorker magazine.

Hersh said circumstances around the shooting raised "grave moral and legal questions about the military's reliance on 'rules of engagement.'" He said the shooting took place July 1, 1969, after one helicopter pilot thought he heard about 50 rifle shots being fired at him near the hamlet of Phu Vinh.

The four helicopters attacked Phu Vinh, which was classified as a "no fire" zone because it was believed free of Viet Cong or North Vietnamese, after receiving permission by radio, Hersh said. He said one helicopter also attacked the hamlet of Diem Pho about half a mile to the southwest without receiving clearance.

The three men brought up on charges were given temporary letters of reprimand. Hersh said the reasons why the division commander decided against more severe punishment "may help to explain why there have been few, if any, courts-martial of helicopter pilots, although reports of excessive shooting from the air have dominated much of the criticism of the war."

Castle Repairs

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A bill providing $300,000 for repairs at the Hearst Castle at San Simeon was approved Tuesday by the Assembly on a 72-0 vote.

A Spanish Draft Law Is Proposed

MADRID (UPI)—A military commission Tuesday approved a draft law proposed by the government to the Spanish Cortes (parliament) which would drastically increase penalties for bombings and other such revolutionary violence.

The bill, drawn up following the court-martial in Burgos of 16 Basque separatists in December, will need the approval of the Cortes before becoming law.

The draft law provides only two penalties for terrorism, causing death, mutilation or serious injury—30-years imprisonment or death.

'Join Hands For Peace' Planned In Tiburon

"Join Hands For Peace," a procession to dramatize the opposition of Marinites to war, will take place at 6:30 p.m. next Wednesday on Tiburon's new bicycle path.

Participants will meet either at Blackie's Pasture or at the Lyford Drive entrance to the pathway and walk toward each other, carrying candles, which will be provided, march organizers said.

The procession is sponsored by a group of Belvedere and Tiburon residents, and the public is welcome, organizers said.

After the groups converge at Rock Hill Road, marchers will walk to the Community Congregational Church for a short program of singing and liturgy prepared by Rev. Frank Evans, pastor of the church, and Charles Gompertz of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church.

After the service, marchers will share a "peace meal." Each person is asked to bring a piece of cheese, some bread, fruit, tomatoes or wine to share with others.

Attica Inmates Ask Top Court For Legal Help

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A group of inmates at Attica prison asked the Supreme Court Tuesday to prevent the state from questioning them about the September uprising unless they get legal help.

The application went to Justice Thurgood Marshall, who administers the 2nd U.S. Circuit which includes New York. Since the seven justices are in conference all this week on a summer backlog of cases, Marshall could refer the Attica matter to the full Court.

Marshall was asked to instruct the circuit court to stop the questioning unless the prisoners have a lawyer present or are allowed to consult one beforehand and are given warnings required by Supreme Court decisions for criminal suspects.

SANDWICH TIPS

Tea Time Table Is Work Of Art

Setting a fine tea table calls for special little foods to complement the hot drink and to be arranged attractively on the tea table, which can become a work of art in its own way.

Preparing for its Table Decor and Tea event next Wednesday, the Northgate Group of the Marin Art and Garden Center will include such a tea table setting. Some of the tea sandwiches and cookies they will use are offered to Food Page readers:

CRABMEAT SANDWICHES
from Mrs. William W. Cole of Ross

½ loaf sandwich bread
1 lb. fresh crabmeat
4 slices bacon - crisp and minced
2 large stalks celery chopped very fine
juice of half a lemon
mayonnaise to moisten and bind

Cut bread in small rounds with biscuit cutter and spread with crab mixture. Top with a dash of paprika. Makes 55.

LACE COOKIES
from Mrs. Francis L. Auger of San Rafael

Combine 1 C. each sifted flour and finely chopped nuts (half oatmeal and two thirds nuts can be substituted)

Combine in saucepan ½ C. light or dark corn syrup, ¼ C. each butter and shortening, and ⅔ C. firmly packed brown sugar

Bring this mixture just to the boiling point. Remove immediately from the heat and gradually blend in the flour and nut mixture.

Drop the dough by round teaspoonfuls onto a buttered cookie sheet, placing cookies three inches apart. Bake in moderate-slow oven (325 degrees) for 8 to 10 minutes or until delicately brown. Let cool for a minute and remove cookies carefully from baking sheet with a spatula and cool on a wire rack.

If desired, the cookies may be rolled into cones while still warm. Makes about 5 dozen cookies.

EMPIRE BISCUITS

From Mrs. Walter M. Meier of San Rafael, whose aunt sent this recipe from a Grand Highland Bazaar held in Glasgow, Scotland.

⅔ C. Butter
2 Tablespoons sugar
2 C. flour

Cream butter and sugar then sift in flour, a little bit at a time. Roll out thinly and cut into rounds. Bake at 375 degrees for 5 minutes or until golden brown. Place favorite jam between two cookies and ice with mixture of 4 tablespoons of powdered sugar and 2 scant teaspoons milk or water.

Freezer Tips

NEW YORK (UPI) — The main objective in packaging foods for the freezer is to keep them from drying out, to preserve flavor, color and nutritive values.

A Tasty Apple Treat

For centuries Europeans have known the delight of serving fruit and cheese at the end of a meal. But American apples, colorful, crisp and delicious, are the perfect choice for this service. For a change, serve the cheese a new way by combining three different cheeses, shaping the mixture into balls and rolling in flaked coconut. Add slices of red and yellow apples and you have a combination that everyone will enjoy. Try it to celebrate National Apple Week which begins tomorrow.

CHEESE-COCONUT BALLS
(to be served with apple slices)

2 pkgs. (3 oz. each) Roquefort cheese
1 pkg. (4 oz.) shredded cheddar cheese
1 pkg. (8 oz.) cream cheese
1 pkg. (3½ oz.) flaked coconut

Mash the cheeses and combine thoroughly, using an electric mixer if available. Chill at least one hour. Shape into balls about one inch in diameter. Roll in coconut.

Southern Charm In Buffet

Located in the heart of Tidewater territory, the nation's capital is not limited to a single cuisine, but combines the myth and charm of southern cooking with the sophistication of continental sauces and condiments.

A typical special buffet may display quail, from Virginia and a shellfish casserole containing Chesapeake bay scallops and crabmeat. Cornish game hens make a good substitute for quail, but like the delicate wild birds, should be served with a simple lemon-butter sauce for greatest enjoyment.

The lemon souffle, topped with a stormy sea of brown tipped meringue, is a modern adaptation of the English trifle, popular with plantation dwellers in Colonial times.

ROAST GAME HENS
(or Quail)

6 Cornish game hens
½ cup butter, melted
1 cup bottled lemon juice
1 cup chicken broth
1 teaspoon rosemary
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon paprika

Also, parsley, kumquats, pear halves, mint jelly.

Remove giblets and and rinse hens in water; pat dry.

Arrange on a rack in an uncovered pan, breast side up. Combine butter, lemon juice, chicken broth, and seasonings. Pour sauce over hens and roast at 425 degrees for one (1) hour or until tender. Baste frequently with sauce and use sauce to make gravy.

Garnish with mint jelly-filled pear halves and parsley.

Serves six.

TIDEWATER CASSEROLE

2 lbs. scallops
½ cup bottled lime juice
¼ cup butter, melted
1 tablespoon chives
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon paprika
4 cups cooked, long-grain rice
1½ cups peas, cooked
1 crabmeat, flaked

Marinate scallops in mixture made of ½ cup butter, lime juice, chives, salt, pepper and paprika. To broil, place in a shallow pan, basting frequently with marinade. Turn scallops to broil on both sides — about 5 minutes.

Combine rice, peas and crabmeat. Top with broiled scallops and drizzle with remaining marinade. Serve hot.

Serves 6 to 8.

LEMON ANGEL SOUFFLE

¾ cup bottled lemon juice
¾ cup milk
1½ cups sugar
½ cup butter, melted
4 egg yolks, beaten
4 cups angel food cake cubes
4 egg whites
½ sugar

Combine lemon juice, milk, 1½ cups sugar, butter and egg yolks. Add cake cubes and toss gently. Pour into a well-greased, 2-quart casserole. Set casserole in a pan of hot water: bake at 350 degrees for 40 minutes.

Beat egg whites and sugar until stiff peaks form. Spread over souffle and bake for 10 minutes or until browned.

Serves 8.

COOKING IN the nation's capital reflects its affinity with the Tidewater area Southern cuisine and familiarity with the sophistication of continental sauces and condiments. The special buffet may offer quail or Cornish game hens with a shellfish casserole and a fluffy meringue-topped angel souffle that is adapted from English trifle, a popular dish with plantation dwellers in Colonial times.

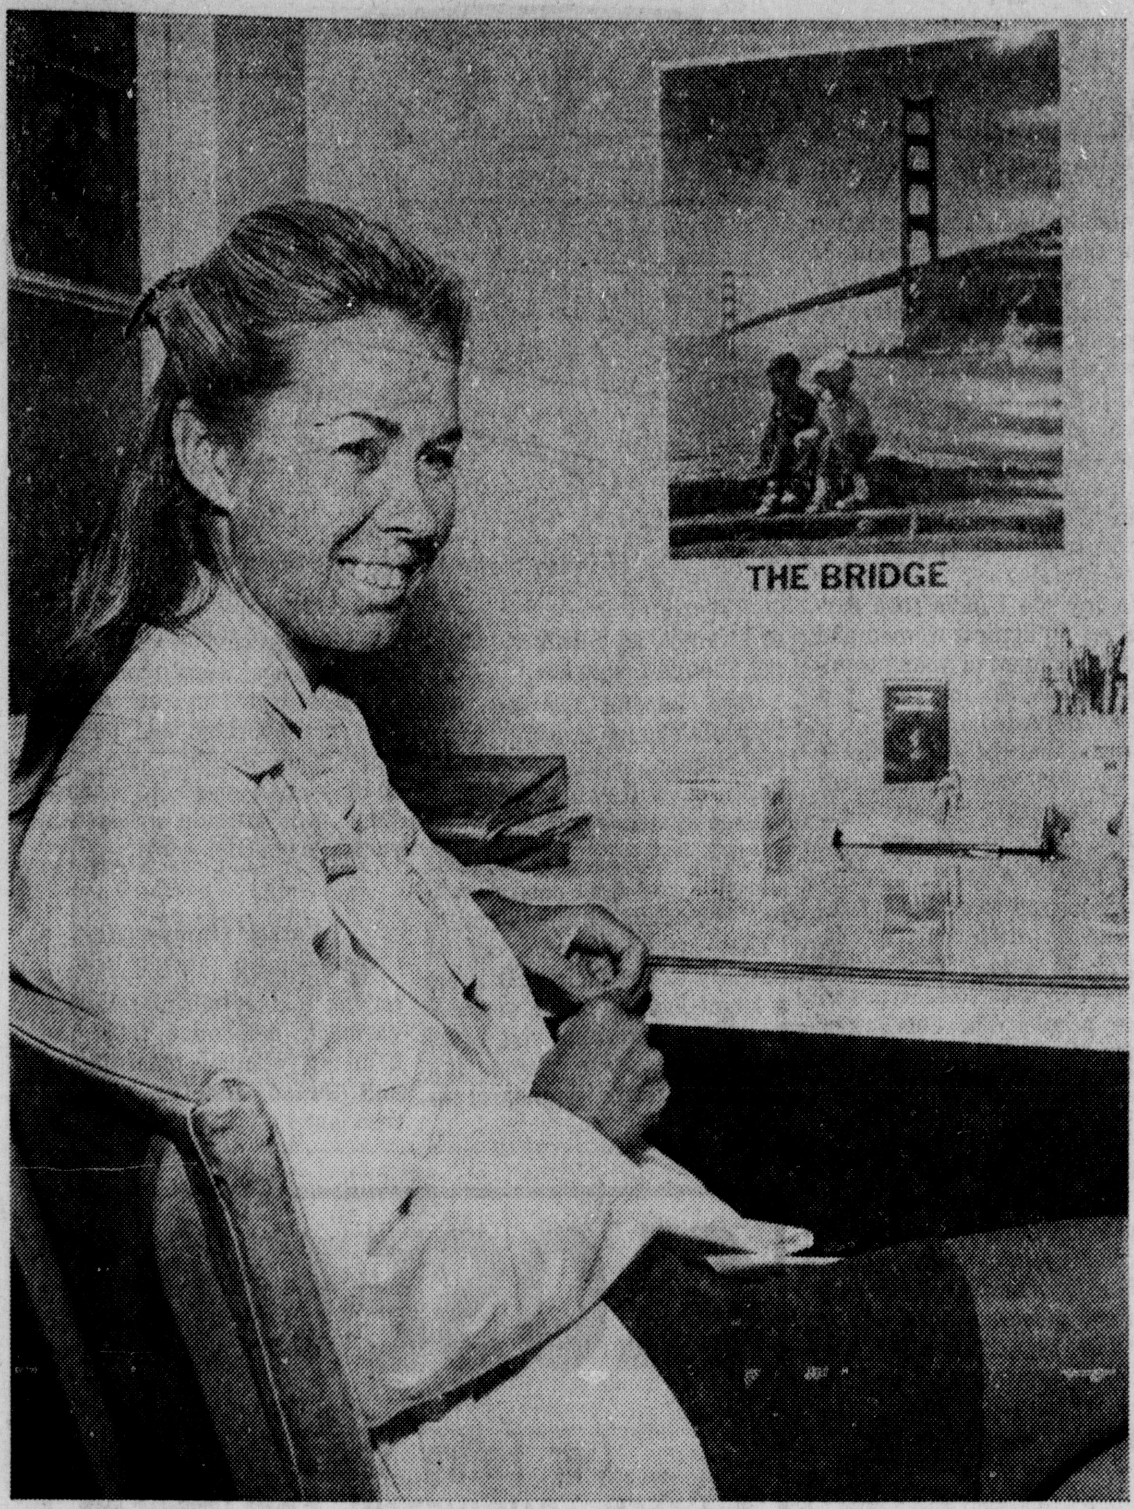
Example Of New Nursing Career

By BARBARA HOSMER



GAIL MOORE sits a moment in her third floor office at Marin General Hospital to describe her work as part of extended care service as a clinical nurse specialist. After special training in a master's degree program, the nurse works with special patient cases and the patient's family.

Gail Moore of Marin General Hospital is an example of a new role the registered nurse can play in a hospital's extended care services.

As a clinical nurse specialist she works very closely with the patient and the patient's family, as needed, and with the doctors and other nurses.

Gail, who lives in San Francisco, is still excited about her own job, which she has held since last February.

"It's getting paid to do what you want to do anyway," she says, adding that the clinical nurse specialist can be closely involved with patient care and yet help work on innovations in care techniques, and assist in their teaching among the nursing staff.

Gail, who especially likes working with babies and children, is assigned to the maternity and pediatric departments at Marin General, where she is involved with special cases.

Just recently there were "premie" twins born at the hospital. It was quite a job for the mother to have two tiny ones at home, so Gail visited the parents and taught them both how best to feed the babies.

"I often visit the home, when asked to come, and see what they have prepared to feed a child and offer suggestions on health care," Gail explained. "It's part of the care services that are free to those who need it."

FOR NEW babies with anomalies, Gail may visit the family to see if she can help them to accept the situation. Usually she just makes one visit, except with hematology patients. She tries to establish a continuing good relationship with them and their families because they will have to return to the hospital, where she will see them again.

This kind of continuity with young patients and their families helps ease their hospital experiences, Gail feels, and enables co-operation that leads to better patient care.

She also works with diabetic children aged 3 to 13, and is helping to form a junior diabetic unit for both the parents and their diabetic youngsters.

"The idea is to have a fun program," explains Gail. She likes to have the older children learn about their condition and how they can handle it, and then teach their parents and grandparents about it. Diabetes is s lifelong thing, and they must learn to get along with it„ Gail adds.

The clinical nurse specialist also works with the families of babies who have had surgery and the critically ill child who needs a parent to be with him at the hospital.

ANOTHER PART of her job is teaching other nurses, who sometimes will ask for a specific class to be taught. Often Gail will present a patient's case and then try to bring in all the academic knowledge that is pertinent to it.

"Whatever you do, you teach, and ultimately you want to educate the public to use medical services better."

Gail spent an extra two years at the University of California Medical Center beyond her R.N. degree to become a clinical nurse specialist. She did her undergraduate work at Michigan State University and then had several years nursing experience before she took the year's master degree program at U.C. The following year was devoted to post-master's work in hematology. Gai says she worked in the clinic and with eight families especially as a part of a team approach to medical problems.

The team work she carries out as part of the doctor, patient, nursing and other hospital department coordination as a team on various cases at Marin General.

Gail likes to work with the children, and her master's degree is in pediatric and maternity nursing.

She also spent a year in pediatrics aboard the teaching hospital ship SS Hope in Tunisia, which she said gave her the experience of working with patients and their families from a totally different culture.

Gail has also worked in pediatric nursing at Ann Arbor Hospital in Michigan, her home state, and in a hospital in Munich, Germany. She then became a pediatric nurse at Stanford Hospital.

PRIOR TO coming to Marin, Gail had done all of her nursing in large nursing centers and she is finding her work at Marin General refreshing.

"And the resources for referral in the county are phenomenal," Gail says. One example is her work with leukemic and tumor children. She found the Candlelighters, an organization of parents of children with various forms of cancer. She said that the parents wanted a nurse liaison who could work with them, and Gail was ready to fill the role.

She herself keeps on learning as medical techniques advance, and takes classes at Children's Hospital, U.C. and Stanford Hospital to keep up with developments and visits various hospitals to observe.

"Everything I do is a combination of doctor, nurse and patient family," says Gail, who recommends the job of clinical nurse specialist to those who are interested in nursing but may feel it is too confining. She feels her kind of job has more freedom.

SPECIAL CASES are nurse Gail Moore's specialty. Assigned to pediatrics and Maternity at Marin General, here she checks the heartbeat of a tiny premature baby boy who must stay in an incubator. She also works with leukemic and diabetic children in her job as clinical nurse specialist in Pediatrics and Maternity.

Urge Children Not To Overeat

With overweight a contributing condition to health problems, the California Medical Association suggests that parents discourage their children from eating excessively or turning to food because they are bored.

The association recommends that children learn early in life to avoid excess of starches and fats in the diet and to cut down the between-meals snack.

Equality For Women: Long Fight Ahead

Four panelists took on the tantalizing subject of men and women last night and agreed that women have a long way to go to win equality. They also agreed that men would benefit from women's liberation from their crippling, stereotyped roles.

Speaking in the series "Women: Past, Present and Future" at the College of Marin each panelist gave a personal assessment of women's place and future place in the world.

Elizabeth Smith, president of the Marin County Chapter of the National Organization for Women, termed herself a feminist who wants "to see the walls between the sexes come down."

Women need to have economic, political and social rights equal to men's, she said, "Women today are second class citizens."

SHE CITED such common terms as "he, his, man and mankind" to show the male orientation of what has been written and said about all persons.

"That is the norm," she said. "Women have to write themselves in — " they are abnormal by male standards.

"And women who refuse the standard definitions of themselves — submissive, nonagressive — are told they aren't 'real women', she said.

"The fact is that women must define themselves. We know

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Be Proud That Your Husband Is So Honest — He Will Not Stray

DEAR HELEN:

We've been married two wonderful months and we love each other very much. Up until last night I had complete trust in Dave. Then we got talking and he told me he had these guilty feelings about looking at other girls because of what he imagines. What really hit me was when he said he wasn't sure how he'd react if a woman made advances to him — like he might not run.

He also said he sort of regretted not having been more of a lover before marriage. He had experiences, but not that many, he said.

I was liberal and told Dave if he wanted an affair, I'd understand — but I don't! He got upset and said that's the last thing he wants. I caried every time I thought about it this morning. How can I ever be sure of him again? — REALLY SCARED

DEAR R.S.:

One great big wonderful fact is sure: You've got an honest husband — perhaps too honest for his own good. When he said he might be tempted, he speaks for almost all males (many females, too), though most don't admit it to their mates. He's telling you he is human. You read him wrong when you assumed he pants for an affair.

Also, in a society where men are conditioned to relate sex conquests with superiority, what common garden variety of male doesn't regret an un-misspent youth, suspecting he bombed out on something the more virile guys take for granted?

Be proud Dave feels so secure in your love that he can level with you — not upset that his purely normal imagination sometimes wanders. A man who actually planned to stray wouldn't tell his wife about it — unless he's a good deal more modern than is yours! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I disagree with the woman who wrote that a church wedding is more binding. The last time I was married, my wife-to-be insisted we get spliced by a minister in front of the altar — so it would "be forever."

For all the good it did, we might just as well have been married by a cocker spaniel! Instead, I got the dog! — DESERTED

DEAR DESERTED:

Advice for the next time around: "Who" is more important than "how" you marry . . . and beware of dogs. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Our 18-year-old daughter won't even keep her room tidy, much less help around the house. She quit her part-time job. Too much bother. She doesn't lift a hand, but has all kinds of energy to attend R or X-rated movies. The money we give her is spent for cigarettes, beer and grass — and she expects us to furnish her with a fat allowance because we can afford it.

How much allowance are parents expected to give a girl who gives nothing in return? — M.V.C.

DEAR M:

$000.00!!! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Who stares more openly at girls in hotpants — men or women? — C.R.

DEAR C:

After people-watching one warm afternoon at Fisherman's Wharf in San Francisco, I'd say: Women stare more openly at other women's "dress," but men see as much while pretending not to look. They're great eye-swivelers. — H.

Pilots Pushing For Safer Airports

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — The commercial airlines of this country have compiled a remarkable record for safety over the years. It shows that 99.9999 per cent of all flights are completed each year without a fatality.

But is that good enough? The pilots who guide these planes don't believe so. Through their organization, the Air Line Pilots Association, they have been campaigning for tougher safety laws, stricter regulation by government agencies and greater public awareness of safety problems.

On the day last June when American astronauts were landing on the moon, a spokesman for the association was presenting testimony to Congress on another landing problem, the inadequacy of automatic airport landing devices.

JOHN J. O'DONNELL, president of the association, presented figures to show that more than 80 per cent of airport runways do not have the rudimentary equipment necessary for safe flying at night or in bad weather. He said only 10 per cent of the airports had any instrument landing systems.

Lighting equipment is also lacking, he said, with more than 80 per cent of airport runways without the proper lights to show the end of the runway or visual approach indicators to show a pilot precisely where the runway boundaries are.

The importance of these matters is clear in the statistics. Fifty-one of 58 landing crashes in the past 10 years occurred on approaches not equipped with instrument landing systems.

Safety regulations governing landing conditions are also deficient, according to the pilots. At hearings last month in New Haven, Conn., on a fatal crash there, one pilot said the Federal Aviation Administration had "stubbornly refused to recognize" the weakness of its own regulations.

THE PILOT said that at authorized minimums, a pilot would be allowed to land even though he could not see anything.

Also last month, the pilots organization released its annual survey of firefighting equipment at airports throughout the country. It showed that only 25 per cent of the airports came up to minimum recommended standards set by the FAA and the National Fire Protection Association.

One fourth of the airports, the report said, had no fire or rescue equipment whatsoever on standby duty. Of these 129 airports, 15 are served by jet aircraft. This was a slight improvement over the previous year when 146 airports fell into this category.

Airports failing to meet minimum standards are not all small ones in rural areas. They include some of the largest and busiest. Among them are Logan International Airport at Boston and others at Dallas, Pittsburgh, Chicago (Midway), Jacksonville, Las Vegas and Minneapolis.

NINE STATES have no airports meeting the FAA-NFPA recommendations. They are Arkansas, Iowa, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Massachusetts, Nevada, North Dakota, South Dakota and Vermont.

A new law passed last year, the Airport and Airway Development Act, authorized the FAA to set minimum airport safety standards and withhold certification if they are not met by May 21, 1972. But final regulations have not been issued, and a delay in that deadline is likely.

For details on the safety equipment of any airport, contact the Air Line Pilots Association, 1329 E Street NW., Washington, D.C., 20004.

Panelists Agree: Long Fight Ahead For Women

that there are physiological differences between the sexes, but the question is are these relevent to behavior?" she remarked.

She criticized Dr. Margaret Mead's point in her Marin lecture last week when Dr. Mead warned that women with weapons could be extremely violent and dangerous.

She "overcompensated" for women's historical lack of violence, said Ms. Smith.

"The theory of female aggressiveness feeds the fear that women are unable to control their own emotions. The reality is that women have not waged the wars. Hiroshima was not a woman's accomplishment," she said.

She also pointed out that the reverse view that women are by nature peacemakers is equally unrealistic.

KAREN WELLS of San Francisco, a former wife who is now living in a Lesbian relationship, described her life in a male world. It's rough to be outside the mainstream in this country, she said. In a Lesbian relationship "two women suddenly have to struggle with the traditional roles. We know what it is to struggle to stand alone and free of limiting roles and male definitions of roles.

"It's a battle to try for bigger things than women are taught to hope for," she said.

Dr. William Scalapinio, College of Marin sociologist and psychologist who has done marriage counseling, said that "our very narrow definitions of the female have to be curtailed" and that such narrow definitions of the male and female roles do not make for very open relationships.

"And it's time to teach our sons the value of tenderness and sensitivity . . . In counseling I see roles getting in the way."

SPEAKING AS a man in the women's liberation movement, Arthur Padilla, a Manpower Administration representative with the U.S. Department of Labor and a member of NOW, said that he became interested in equality for women as a civil right and a human right.

He pointed out that the rhetoric of discrimination against women is very similar to rhetoric used in discrimination against other minorities, and that in treatment women have minority status.

"In my job I have seen barriers set up against women and the development of young women stultified. To me that is a crime," he stated.

He said that the job market is difficult for women, although many have to support their families as the breadwinner.

"IT TAKES A psychologically mature person to accept another who is different as an equal," he said. "The immature person uses stereotypes to define people. The concept of women as slaves forces men into machismo roles as slave holders.

"For men women's equality would give men the freedom to live without the fear of failure for providing" in his breadwinner role.

"Women also can be the best qualified person for the job if they are not crippled by the culture in growing up," he said regarding the job market.

He added that release from traditional male-female roles would release men to be more tender, sensitive and warm.

HOW DO women gain equality?

"It starts in the head of women," said Karen Wells. "Your responsibility is to raise your own consciousness. Talk to someone in women's liberation face to face. Get child care centers and support them. It doesn't matter if they are gay or straight, as a woman you've got a tough row to hoe."

"I'm hopeful the law will legislate change in employment for women, said Padilla, "I hope it will also legislate change in attitudes."

"Some women say they are superior and don't need equality," remarked Elizabeth Smith. "That attitude comes out of hostility to the society. It takes a lot of looking inside yourself to see what notions you have, and once you see them, it's growth. Growth is painful — and freeing."

She suggested women join talk groups of women to end the "games you play as women that are expected and part of your whole society." She said that women need to change their own attitude inside and society's outside. — BH.

The Influence Behind Growing Old

NEW YORK (UPI) — What influences aging? "Only genetic factors and assaults by the environment," says Kathleen J. Halberg, recreation consultant for Indiana State Board of Health. "Aging starts the day you're born and retirement days are just one stage in the continuum."

The human body reaches its maximum degree of efficiency during the early 20s. After this, there is a gradual loss of speed, strength, endurance and coordination.

Eligibility For Housing Eased

The Marin County Housing Authority board last night increased the amount of income that applicants may have and still remain eligible for low rent public housing and for the Leased Housing Program.

The action came at a special meeting at the Casa Nova housing project for the elderly in Novato where the board also endorsed a preliminary Novato housing policy prepared by the city's Novato Housing Committee.

After hearing a report by Shirley A. Williams, acting manager of leased housing, who said the admission limits had not been revised in three years although the cost of living went up, the directors added about $800 to each category.

The admission limit was raised for a single person from $3,700 yearly income to $4,500; two persons to $4,900; three persons to $5,300; four persons to $5,700; five persons to $6,100 and $300 and $400 increases for each additional person up to 10.

The directors agreed to support the Novato Housing Committee which outlined its goals before an audience of about 40 persons, mostly senior citizens living at Casa Nova.

Jerry A. Cannon, committee cochairman, said Novato is following in the footsteps of other Marin cities by moving toward higher-cost housing. He said the committee supports the spreading out of low and moderate-income housing in the city while it opposes bringing all low-cost housing in Marin to Novato.

Cannon said housing should be provided for students when Indian Valley College opens and there should be a higher density of housing near the downtown area to preserve the hills and open space.

He said Novato must provide housing for all types of people while preserving and maintaining the existing stock of housing in the city.

The directors approved a revised budget, adding $2,000 to the present budget to cover five new employee positions until December and the cost of another staff car.

Executive Director Wallace K. Shepherd said that $2,000 could cover the additional employees and a car because the Marin County Redevelopment Agency has partially taken over expenses the authority formerly had to pay, including 50 per cent of Shepherd's salary.

The positions that were added include a senior accounting assistant, a tenant relations officer, two clerk-typists and a youth coordinator.

In other action, the directors approved writing off delinquent rents amounting to about $6,000 by welfare recepients who have vacated public housing. Mrs. Williams said it would take too much staff time to make collection worthwhile and that there is little hope the rents could be collected anyway.

She said the authority still will pursue about $3,600 in delinquent debts owed by employed persons. Shepherd added that he is working with the Marin Department of Social Services and the board of supervisors to see that welfare money earmarked for rent is automatically spent for rent.

Shepherd was also asked by the directors to find out what would be needed to make a building housing six small businesses in Marin City safe enough to pass a building inspection. Shepherd said the building, near Hayden's Market, was substandard because the county authorized its use on a temporary basis three years ago.

WEB-FOOTED FRIENDS — PLEASE NOTE

MONTEREY (UPI) — It's raining spider webs in this coastal community.

Fragments of web have been dropping from the sky and clinging to bushes, trees and telephone wires.

Zoologist John Davis of Carmel Valley said the airborne material appeared to be from a "local dispersal" of spiders that apparently spin balloon-like webs and use them to float over the countryside.

Birth Of Solar Flare Recorded

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Space scientists have reported that America's newest sunwatch satellite has photographed for the first time the birth of a gigantic solar flare.

A National Aeronautics and Space Administration spokesman, describing the scientists as enthused over the development, compared the photography as the difference between hearing two cars crash and actually seeing the accident.

Solar flares have direct effects on earth's environment, weather and radio communications.

The spokesman said the $28 million satellite, orbiting Solar Observatory 7, also had sent back to earth the first photographs of solar "streamers" ever taken by a spacecraft. Solar streamers are mysterious rays in the faint outermost layers of the sun's atmosphere.

Nixon Seen In China This Year

BUDAPEST, Hungary (UPI) —The Peking correspondent of the official news agency MTI said today that President Nixon probably will arrive in communist China before the end of the year.

Denes Baracs, the MTI Peking correspondent, quoted "observers" in the Chinese capital. He reported them saying the forthcoming second visit of Henry A. Kissinger to China indicates "that Nixon will probably arrive in Peking before the end of the year."

Baracs said the visit of Nixon's national security adviser to China "is a spectacular reminder that the settlement of relations between the United States and China is continuing."

Kissinger's talks in Peking also indicate that the course of the Chinese foreign police hallmarked by the Nixon invitation is still valid, the report said.

UC Enrollment Figures Decline

BERKELEY (UPI) — The University of California announced Tuesday that preliminary enrollment figures for eight campuses showed a drop of only 595 students over last year.

The figures showed 97,803 students enrolled this year, compared to a 1970 enrollment of 98,398. Undergraduate enrollment was 74,310 and graduate students numbered 23.493.

Sonoma State Alumni Sets Wine Tasting Benefit

An afternoon of music and wine tasting will be presented by the Sonoma State College Alumni Association Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m. at Tiburon Vintner's Windsor Winery, north of Santa Rosa.

Proceeds will benefit the newly established Sonoma State Botanical Gardens. Members of the College Opera Workshop will present music from "The Merry Wives of Windsor," "The Student Prince," "Don Giovanni" and "Kismet," according to music department chairman Dr. Peggy Donovan-Jeffry.

Madrigal singers directed by Dr. Gardner Rust will present English madrigals and the chamber music ensemble with string players will provide chamber music. Walt Oster's 20-piece concert jazz ensemble will perform "MacArthur park" and other music.

Tickets are available at the College Public Affairs office and music department.

Edie Adams Seeks End To Marriage

Miss Adams was the widow of comedian Ernie Kovacs when she married Mills in 1964. They have one child, Joshua, 3.

Controversial Sidewalk Ordinance Fails Sausalito Council Passage

A controversial ordinance prohibiting any activity "unreasonably" impeding pedestrian traffic on sidewalks and areas leading to businesses or other buildings failed last night to win approval from a four-member Sausalito City Council which split over the issue.

One councilman strongly opposing the measure vowed to be the first person arrested if the regulation becomes law, in order to test its validity in the courts.

Nearly two hours of discussion on the ordinance, which had been requested by the Sausalito Police Department, ended in a tie vote, with the council asking the city attorney to redefine the term "sidewalk" and present a revised draft at a future council meeting.

Favoring the new ordinance were Councilmen Robin Sweeny and Earl F. Dunphy, while Councilman Wyman Hicks and Mayor Alexander Imlay opposed it, both for different reasons. Councilman Stephen A. Fraser was absent.

Police Capt. David Malkin said his department considered the proposed regulation necessary because at present the police "have no tools to stop people from blocking the sidewalks or the steps."

City attorney Leland H. Jordan said it was his opinion that an existing state statute covered some of the provisions of the sidewalk ordinance. But he said the district attorney's office has refused to prosecute sidewalk blocking cases from Sausalito saying it had "more important things to do." If a city ordinance forbidding blocking of pedestrian traffic were passed, Jordan said that he, not the district attorney, would prosecute violators.

About 16 persons in the intense, but polite audience, most of them young and many of them street ministers, rose to speak against the regulation. Almost all agreed that the ordinance, as proposed, was too vague and could allow police to arrest "just about anyone."

The most stinging criticism came from Councilman Hicks who asked: "If I happen to be involved in an argument in front of The Tides bookstore and was blocking the sidewalk, could I be arrested under this?"

"Yes, you could," Jordan replied.

Calling the proposal a "violation of constitutional rights" and "an unbelievable thing to come up in 1971," Hicks said if it is enacted he would "be the first one to be arrested, I promise you that. I simply cannot allow this kind of capriciousness to become a part of the laws of this city." He drew rousing applause from the audience.

One man said he thought the regulation was "legislation out of Nazi Germany" and "would add to the hostility of this town, and we have enough of that." Others complained that the police would use it to harass people, particularly the young.

One young street minister said the proposed law reminded him of the chagrin of Jerusalem city officials who complained that supporters of "Jesus Christ were blocking the streets when Christ rode into that city on Palm Sunday. Others said it was a "catch-all" and that anyone, including persons standing in front of a residence, union pickets or people crawling around looking for contact lenses, could be arrested under it.

When asked, Jordan said prosecution of a misdemeanor violation of the law would cost the city about $100 if the person pleaded innocent and asked for a jury trial. Under the proposal, the first offense would be an infraction and the second a misdemeanor. Sally Stanford said the city attorney was promoting the ordinance because it would bring him financial gain.

Councilman Sweeny, after listening to the opposition, said most of the opponents had "missed the point" of the proposed rule. "It is not to hassle people or take away liberties, but to protect all people's rights," she said.

She talked about her own experiences of being unable to pass because people blocking stairs or streets refused to move.

"In these cases my rights were being violated," she said. "I have had sufficiently bad experiences on the streets of my own community that I think something should be done. I feel our police officers have the discretion to use this."

Mayor Imlay concurred, but objected to the city attorney's interpretation that sidewalks would include walkways in parks. "Parks are for people to congregate, to get together," he said.

As the vote neared, Hicks asked the council to wait at least two weeks before acting on "such a drastic measure." He said he will make himself available to the police department during that time and will ask to be called to "any situation which would require enforcement of this ordinance."

"I would like to see these situations because I feel it is incomprehensible that things are so bad we have to pass this law," he said. "I can get down here in two or three minutes if the police call me."

On the consensus of Sweeny, Imlay and Dunphy, the ordinance was referred back to the city attorney for a redefinition of the term sidewalk, one which would eliminate park walkways.

TRAIL TECHNIQUE — San Geronimo resident Carole Pittman gives her pet llama, Sydney Dangerfield, a lesson in walking the trails of the Mount Tamalpais. She hopes eventually to take the South American beast of burden on pack trips. When her pet plants all four feet and throws back his head, "he doesn't want to play anymore," she explained.

Sydney Dangerfield Is Lonely As Any Lone Llama Would Be

By JEFF GREER

Morists driving the winding byways of San Geronimo haven't lost their senses when they think they see a llama.

There is a llama, pronounced like yama.

His name is Sydney Dangerfield.

Sydney is a lonely llama.

Carole Pittman, Sydney's owner, said she has searched far and wide for a companion for her lonesome llama, but none is to be found in Northern California, outside the zoos.

So, Sydney has to be content with companionship from an assortment of dogs, a few neighborhood horses — and occasionally a startled passer-by. If Sydney is aware of Mr. and Mrs. Pittman's other pets — including a couple of boas, some chipmunks and a pair of parrots — he merely looks superciliously down his snoot at them, as only llamas and their big Asian cousins, the camels, can.

Meanwhile, when his young, long-tressed owner isn't busy on her job at Marin General Hospital, Sydney gets lessons in how to be a pack animal like his South American kin.

"He's really pretty good on the trail," Mrs. Pittman reported. "I walk him all over" on the wooded slopes above San Geronimo Valley. "He's pretty well quit trying to stop and eat the grass — but water really freaks him out. He can't stand to see it moving beside the trail."

Sydney happily submits to a pack on his back, but doesn't think much of a saddle, Mrs. Pittman said.

Even though llamas are notorious for their habit of spitting when annoyed, Sydney seldom indulges the vice.

Sydney may originally have been in the movies, but his owner isn't sure. She bought him at auction when Jungle Land near Los Angeles closed two years ago.

For her $150, the buyer got no birth certificate, nor information about where her pet was born, only a strange looking, scared creature.

And strange looking he is — a sort of pixilated goat with no horns, spreading, two-hooved feet, a fat body, and a head that looks too small, carried by a long, tapering neck. Sydney's fur is a lustrous brown — it's obvious why his cousins the vicunas are popular as a source for costly coats. His face is splotched with white, a bit reminiscent of a minstrel show performer.

Mrs. Pittman named her pet Sydney Dangerfield — "we have an awful time thinking up good names for all our animals" — and calmed him down with a five-minute halter lesson before loading the llama into a trailer and taking him home.

The Pittmans lived briefly in Fresno, where Sydney happily consorted with other pet llamas. But now "he's lonely."

Library reference works are confusing about the Pittman's pet. Webster's Dictionary calls him a lama; the Encyclopedia Brittanica, a llama.

"A lama's somebody from Tibet," Sydney's owner declared. He's a llama."

The argument produced an instant verse from an onlooker:

When trying to tell a llama
From a run-of-the-mill lama
You can avoid much trauma
If you ask its mama.

Reed Trustees Adopt State Achievement Test

A program of achievement tests, required by state law and designed to measure progress of students, was adopted last night by Reed School District trustees.

Supt. Ralph D. Giovanniello said trustees rejected his recommendation to drop eighth-grade tests from the program. He said he made the suggestion because the test is given in May of the eighth-grade year and doesn't prove very useful in evaluating students for most of the school year.

Giovanniello said he suggested administering the test in the seventh-grade instead, but the board decided to retain the eighth-grade test.

The achievement tests are required by the state in the first, second, third and sixth grades. In addition, the district conducts other tests of its own, including one which measures achievement in the "sigma" project, a district math program.

In other business, the board adopted the Marin County basic course of instruction and awarded an $8,100 contract to R.E. Hawkins of Novato for concrete work at Reedland Woods School.

Trustees also hired Miriam Hess for one year to replace a teacher on leave from Reedland Woods. She will be paid $9,000.

The board held a closed meeting to discuss appointments to the district's standing committees, especially the research and instructional assessment committee, but made no appointment.

Giovanniello said the three trustees present wanted to have a full board before making appointments. Board members Leo Souza and James Richwagen were absent.

Schools Consider A Land Purchase

The Shoreline Unified School District board is considering purchase of land for expansion of Tomales Elementary School.

Trustees will consider obtaining an appraisal of a possible site at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at Tomales High School.

Supt. Charles E. McCully said the site consists of about 15 acres between Tomales Elementary School and the old Tomales High School, which now houses sixth, seventh and eighth-graders.

New Oil Spill Cleaning Device

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —A new scoop for cleaning oil spills looks like the paddle wheel of an old river boat and is mounted between the twin hulls of a catamaran.

The prototype device, called "Clean Sweep," was put on display Tuesday by its developer, Lockheed Missiles and Space Co.

Review To Continue On Lagunitas Bridge

The Ross Town Council Flood Control Advisory board will hold a special meeting at 8 p.m. Monday to continue its review of plans for a new Lagunitas Road bridge over Corte Madera Creek.

At the board's last meeting, two schools of thought developed, one urging that the bridge be designed to block the view of the future concrete channel and one supporting a more open design.

Mayor Complains Over Nixon Stay

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI)— Mayor Terry Schrunk complains that President Nixon's recent stay in Portland cost the city $12,000 in overtime pay for policemen and the city cannot afford it.

Schrunk told a City Council meeting Tuesday that the figure did not include the cost of extra firemen kept on duty during Nixon's visit Sept. 25-26, nor the costs of barricades and other public works department expenses incurred during the visit.

"If the federal government expects this protection for all declared candidates—as well as the President and vice president—then they'll have to put more manpower in the field or else start reimbursing cities," Schrunk said.

AND THEY'RE OFF — With the sound of bagpipes in the air, the College Of Marin company of the Wild West version of William Shakespeare's "The Taming of the Shrew" leaves Oakland International Airport for the Edinburgh, Scotland, Festival. The troupe was in Scotland from mid-August to mid-September, presenting the play to packed houses and critical acclaim.

(College of Marin photos by H. J. Susser)

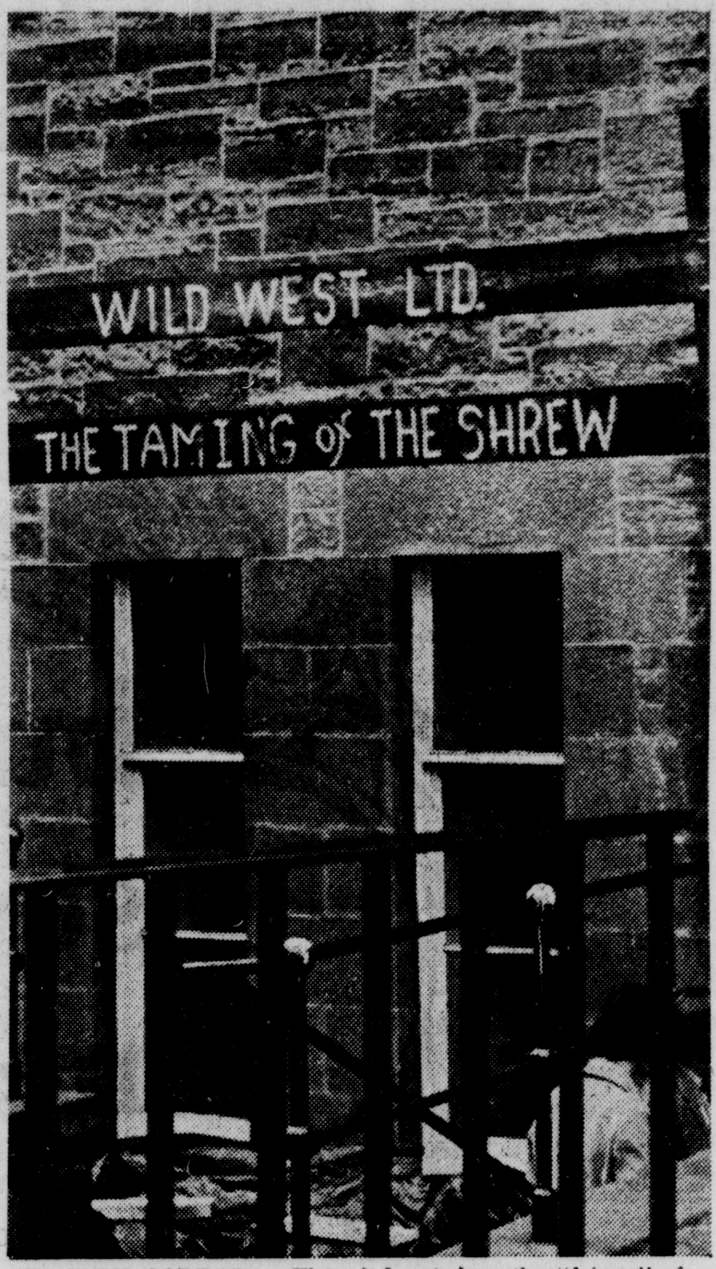
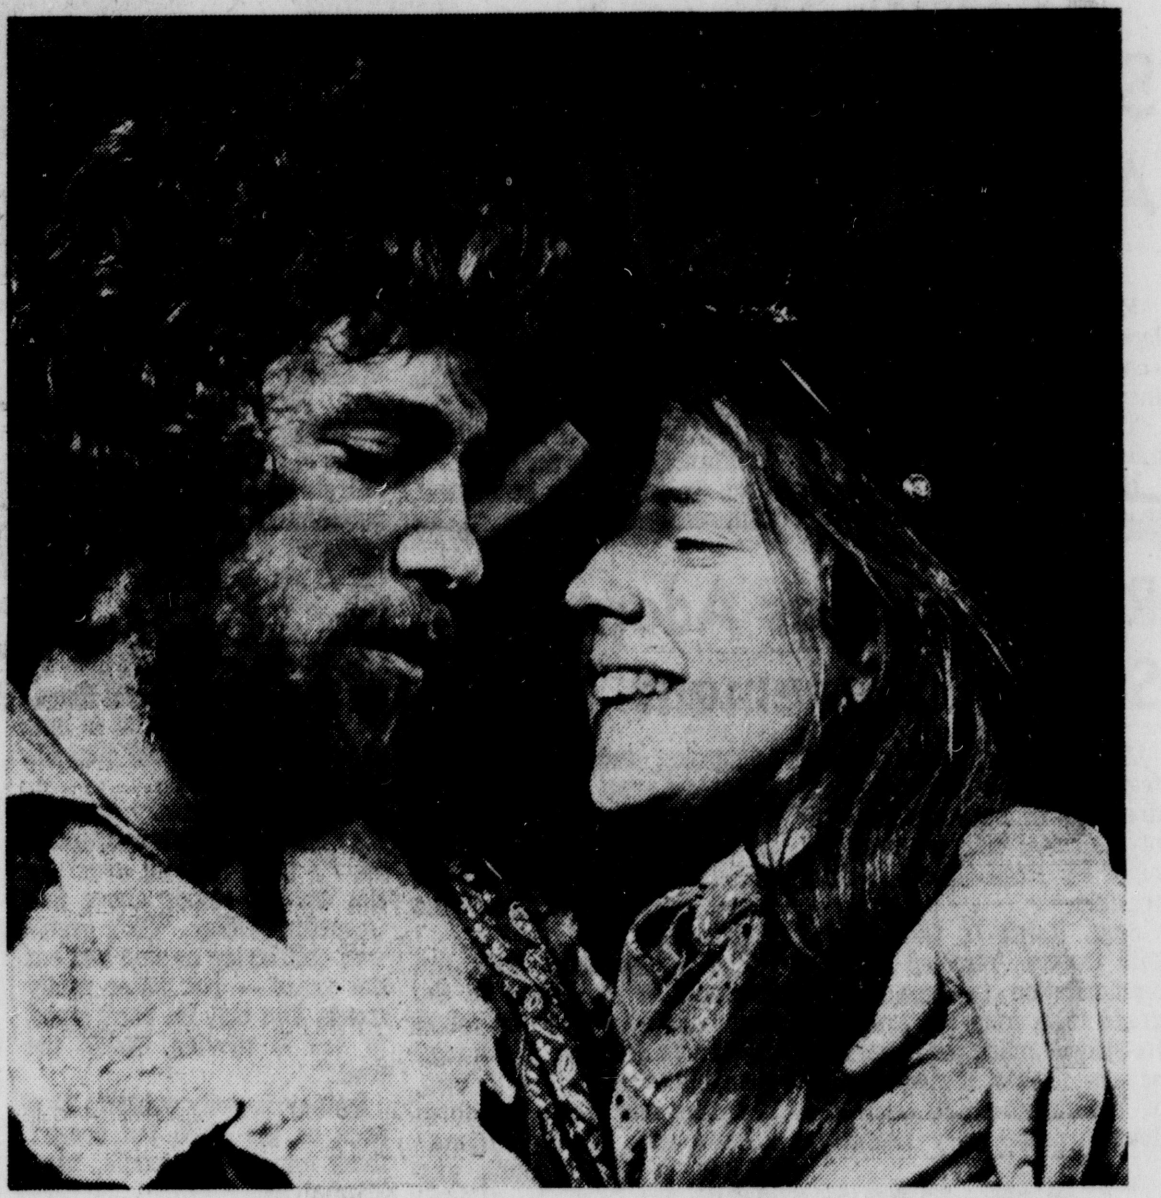
College Of Marin's 'Shrew': Scenes In Edinburgh

ON LOCATION — Todd Norris, who played Vincentio in the college's production of the "Shrew" enters Bennet's Pub in Edinburgh for a "confrontation" with Joseph Hernandez, who played Petruchio's "wild west" sidekick. This scene was just one of many filmed by Mike Alexander, a young British cinematographer, who did a documentary on the festival. It will be released in February.



YE OLDE CORRAL — Though located on the "fringe" of the Edinburgh Festival this little sign etched in boards proved to be one of the most popular during the run of the famed fine arts event. The house for the "Shrew" was in the basement of the Viewforth Center Church.



THE YOUNG LOVERS — Mark Rasmussen as Petruchio and Alice Rorvik as Kate strike a pose from the "Shrew" for the camera. Critics called Rasmussen's performance "splendid" and Miss Rorvik's on equal footing. Allen Wright, drama critic for the Scotsman said it was "the happiest Shakespeare production I have ever seen."

ON CAMERA — Alice Rorvik and Mark Rasmussen discuss technical points with members of a British Broadcasting Company television team. The BBC filmed scenes of the college's play for inclusion in a special it did on the festival.

A ROYAL VISITOR — Princess Margaret listens intently to J. W. Harper, a member of the "Shrew" cast after seeing the production. In the background is Edward Schoon of the drama department faculty. The visit by Princess Margaret was the first by British royalty to a "fringe" area production in the festival's history.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Take This Advice: Put Your Faith Only In Murphy's Rule

"I've been disappointed in everything," South declared, "but a man must believe in something. I believe in the old rule that it's wrong to finesse with nine trumps." Nothing works for the sort of man who has been disappointed in everything. Put your faith only in Murphy's Rule: If something bad can happen, it will.

FREE FINESSE

The opening diamond lead gave South a free finesse, and he led a low trump at the second trick. West put up the queen, and dummy's king won. When declarer led a low trump from dummy at the third trick, East followed suit with the eight.

Mind you, I don't agree with declarer's hasty trump leads. He should have led spades first, preparing to ruff a spade or two in the dummy. But there South was at the third trick, trying to decide whether to play the ace or the ten of hearts.

WRONG GUESS

As we already know, South guessed wrong by putting up the ace of hearts. Declarer switched to the jack of clubs, but West stepped up with the king of clubs and got out safely with a diamond.

Nothing good happened in clubs, and East drew a third round of trumps when he gained the lead in spades. This left only a trump in dummy, so that South had to lose three of his four spades. Down one.

CONTRACT UNBEATABLE

There was no need to guess at the Third trick. The contract was unbeatable if South finessed with the ten of hearts.

If the finesse worked (as it would in this case), South would not lose a trump trick. If the finesse lost, no trumps would be left out; and South could surely ruff two spades with dummy's two remaining trumps.

You hold:

♥-J 8 5
♦-K 8 6
♣-A 10 8 3.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two no-trump.

This promises 13 to 15 points in high cards, balanced distribution and strength in each of the unbid suits. It is a perfect description of your hand.

Discrimination Charge For Jails

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The County Jails here are guilty of discrimination against women because they refuse to allow them to participate in the work-furlough program, a suit field in federal court charged Monday.

The suit, filed by the San Francisco Neighborhood Legal Assistance Foundation, charged that womenmust serve their full jail terms in confinement because the county has not provided work-furlough facilities for females.

Men may work during the day and return to jail-like confinement at night, the suit said.

Prize Set For Best Writing

Fifty dollars in prize money will go to winners of a student writing contest on the subject of drug abuse.

Paul M. Cohen, chairman of the Marin County Youth Commission, announced that his group will join the Marin Human Rights Commission, Marin Open House and the Marin County Pharmaceutical Association in co-sponsoring the contest.

Prizes will be $25 for first, $15 for second and $10 for third.

Students who want to compete will meet at a press conference at 3:30 p.m. Oct. 13 at Marin Open House, 1327 Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael.

"The contest is open to any student in Marin County," said Cohen. "Attendance at the press conference is not required."

Articles must be mailed by Nov. 15 to the Marin Youth Commission, Room 163, Hall of Justice, San Rafael, Calif., 94903.

Judges will be Gerald J. Hood, executive director of the Human Rights Department; Paul Lofholm, representing the Marin Pharmaceutical Association; Roger Smith, director of Marin Open House; and two representatives from the youth commission.

The contest is similar to a writing contest on the subject of venereal disease, which was cosponsored by the youth commission and the parmaceutical association.

Winners of that contest were Carl Willat of Mill Valley, a student at Tamalpais High School; and Alice Jacobs, a recent graduate of Tamalpais High School and now an American Field Service exchange student in Lulea, Sweden.

Lowered Air Fare Plans Announced

NEW YORK (UPI)—United Air Lines announced Tuesday it has put in effect a large series of group and independent autumn and winter vacation fares that could "revolutionize" the domestic pleasure travel market.

The packages represent 30 to 40 per cent discounts from regular fares and in some cases are cheaper than transcontinental bus fares, James J. Hartigan,. vice president-system marketing said. Many are packaged roundtrips conditioned on certain minimum per person ground accommodation outlays.

Typical are a round trip between New York and Las Vegas including three nights in the Nevada resort for $199 plus a $30 tax and service charge. The package includes one show and baggage handling and transfer costs.

A San Francisco trip for $289 plus a $30 service and tax charges includes roundtrip air fare, seven days at a hotel and a tour of the city.

Discounts of up to 52 per cent on one-way coach fares for approved affinity groups of 52 to 120 on Boeing 747 and Douglas DC-10 aircraft can reduce the one-way coach fare between New York and Los Angeles to $78.

A round trip packaged seven-day ski tour at Aspen or Snowmass in Colorado is being offered to New Yorkers for $210.

The discounts all were put in effect over the past week and will remain in effect through next May 31.

Bodega Bay Hearing Set On Subdivision

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — The Assembly Planning and Land Use Committee, will hold a hearing Oct. 13 at 10:30 a.m. in the Grange Hall at Bodega Bay regarding a subdivision known as Bodega Harbour.

Committee Chairman Paul Priolo. R-Santa Monica, said "The Assembly Rules Committee has directed the Planning and Land Use Committee to inquire into the activities of TransCentury Properties, Inc., owners of the Bodega Harbour development. This subdivision encompasses 824 acres and 1.5 miles of coastline adjacent to the community of Bodega Bay. The owners have plans to put 1,623 residential units in the development.

Allegations have been made that the Bodega Harbour development, as planned, will result in many problems including traffic congestion, destruction of scenic resources and bird and wildlife sanctuaries, and dangerous overloading of sewage treatment facilities and water supply systems, Priolo said.

"I want to stress, however, that no conclusive evidence of improprieties or lack thereof has yet been presented to the committee. We are holding the hearing at Bodega Bay in order to view the site and give all concerned parties an opportunity to testify."

Any persons wishing to testify at the hearing, Priolo said, should phone or write the Planning and Land Use Committee, Room 2016 State Capitol, Sacramento 95814.

Colorado leads the nation in oil shale reserves with an oil potential of 1,259 billion barrels.

Capital's Homicide Force Is Doubled

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Three murders in 18 hours —two within five blocks of the White House —have spurred Police Chief Jerry V. Wilson to assign 21 more detectives to the homicide squad.

Wilson doubled the size of the 20-man squad Monday. All three murders occurred Friday and raised the total for the year to 207. There were 170 through Oct. 6 last year.

Proposal On Courts Is Beaten

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A Senate Committee, heeding the advice of state Chief Justice Donald Wright and a major segment of the California legal establishment, early today killed omnibus legislation to create a single statewide trial court system.

The controversial proposal, which would abolish justice and municipal courts and consolidate them into a new state-operated and financed superior court system, was defeated by a split voice vote in the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Democrats cast the only audible votes for the proposal by Assemblyman James Hayes, R-Long Beach, while Republicans appeared to cast the opposition votes.

Chairman Alfred Song, D-Monterey Park, ruled the measure lacked sufficient votes in the 13-member committee for passage after a four-hour hearing.

Outright defeat followed on the heels of rejection of a motion to send the package to a between sessions study by the legislature with a view toward drafting a new bill at the 1972 session, which starts in four months.

But Hayes insisted the issue had been "studied enough." He told the committee, "the easy way out would be to take a duck and refer it to interim, but I submit to you it would not serve the needs of justice."

The opposition of California Supreme Court Chief Justice Donald Wright was relayed to the committee by Ralph Kleps, executive officer of the state Judicial Council, which Wright heads.

Kleps testified it was Wright's "personal conviction that this massive reorganization should be held in committee" and studied along with a council-sponsored study of California court reorganization.

Basically, the Assembly-passed bill would have established a uniform statewide superior court system for civil and criminal trials. Municipal court judges would be elevated to superior court judges while justice court judges would have become "magistrates of the superior court" and would try traffic, small claims and certain misdemeanor cases.

The judicial council, composed of judges, legislators and attorneys, would administer the system. Sheriff's deputy court bailiffs would have been replaced by state marshals.

Hayes, himself an attorney and former member of the council, told the committee his bill would result in speedier trials, partly because of the elimination of duplicate motions by lawyers injustice, municipal and superior courts.

He said the opposition of various bar associations was based on economics. "When you cut down on the number of motions that attorneys make, you hit them right in the pocketbook," he added.

Hayes termed the current trial court system a costly "tri-headed monster" which needs "something more than band-aid remedies."

He estimated by switching to a statewide system the administration of justice would be more efficient, would save local property taxpayers $80 million a year and would cost the state a maximum of $20 million more than it currently pays for operation of the courts.

Kleps told the committee the Judicial Council currently is sponsoring a study by a private research firm into overhauling and consolidating the courts.

"The council decided that is makes no sense to go into something of this kind without laying some foundation," he said.

"There's nothing to indicate that the state of California has the extra resources in the general fund that will pickup the kind of costs that this program will contemplate," Kleps said.

Other opposition witnesses, including representatives of the San Diego County Bar Association, estimated the cost could rise as high as $350 million.

But Hayes rejected this and reported that legislative Analyst A. Alan Post "has not been able to calculate figures like anything you've heard tonight. They're grossly exaggerated.

Presiding Judge Charles A. Loring of the Los Angeles County Superior Court said the legislation "will create an absolute administrative Frankenstein" for Los Angeles courts by doing away with the county's court administrator.

Hayes countered, "that county court administration is already a Frankenstein and it needs state help."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Tonsils No Longer Taken Out Becuase They Fight Infection

In the early 1930s, removal of tonsils and adenoids was a very common operation. The procedure was done mainly before the age of 4, when the organs had attained maximum size. Fewer tonsillectomies and adenoidectomies are done today because we know that the structures enhance immunity. In addition, removal does not lessen the chance of developing respiratory infections. Furthermore, tonsils and adenoids are largest in early childhood and tend to shrink after puberty.

WE ARE NOT implying that tonsils and adenoids never cause trouble. Acute tonsilitis, for example, common in children and young adults, begins suddenly with sore throat, difficulty in swallowing, fatigue and aching. The temperature may go up to 104 degrees Fahrenheit.

Rapid pulse, coated tongue and fetid breath coexist. The tonsils are swollen, reddened and covered with yellowish white spots and purulent material. Fever usually subsides within four to six days, sooner when antibiotics are given.

THE ADENOIDS are located in the vault of the throat. When swollen, they block the back of the nose and interfere with talking. The enlarged lymphoid tissue may also press on the eustachian tube and by interfering with the regulation of air pressure in the middle ear may impair hearing.

Chronic involvement usually follows recurrent attacks of acute tonsilitis. Removal is indicated when recurrences have destroyed or damaged the tissues. In these instances, tonsils merely harbor disease-producing microorganisms.

THE CONCEPT of focal infection was in vogue some 40 years ago. The tonsils, adenoids and teeth were the main suspects and removal was considered a cure for various diseases including rheumatic fever, Bright's disease, epilepsy, arthritis, lethargy and asthma. We know now that in many instances this was pure speculation.

AID FOR NOSEBLEED

C.A. writes: Why do so many people recommend that the person lie down when his nose bleeds? If I do this I swallow a lot of blood and that can't be very safe, can it?

REPLY

Swallowing blood is not harmful, but makes some people nauseated.

CHELATING AGENT

C.T. writes: Please explain what the drug EDTA could be used for.

REPLY

Poisoning due to lead and other heavy metals. EDTA (edathamil calcium disodium) is a chelating agent. These compounds bind and inactivate lead and other heavy metals and are used in the treatment of lead poisoning (plumbism). EDTA exchanges its calcium for lead and is then excreted via the kidneys.

'WORN-OUT' HEART

A.J.O. writes: What is meant by a worn-out heart?

REPLY

This is not a medical term, but it is most descriptive. I assume the heart is working under undue strain and is doing its best to maintain a normal output of blood. The time comes when the muscles no longer function properly or perhaps the rhythm is too irregualr. When this stage is reached, the heart is beginning to fail; and unless bolstered with medicine and rest, it wears out.

Assembly Demos Beat Environmental Bill

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Gov. Ronald Reagan upbraided Assembly Democrats today for resorting to "petty politics" in defeating his proposal for an environmental "superagency" opposed by conservationists.

In the wake of the action killing the plan, the Republican governor eulogized it as a "positive approach to environmental protection" and "good government."

The plan was sent back to committee Tuesday for further study on a motion by Assemblyman Mike Cullen, D-Long Beach. The vote was on a straight party line, 41-27.

It was the third reorganization proposal lost by Reagan this year, but the two earlier ones were, in comparison, relatively minor.

"I am astounded," said Reagan, "that the Democrats would put petty politics above the recognized need to improve our fight to preserve and enhance California's environment."

The proposal would have consolidated state environmental agencies, including the state Water Resources and Air Resources boards, under a new Department of Environmental protection. It would have also abolished the Environmental Study Council and the Water Quality Advisory Committee.

Reagan's plan would have gone into effect today if the Assembly had not acted.

The proposal was opposed by conservationists, who said it did not do enough; legislative Analyst A. Alan Post, who said it was "probably impossible to accomplish successfully," and the Assembly Governmental Organization Committee, which contended in an 88-page study that it was "limited and superficial."

Reagan said, "It is very regrettable that some Democratic legislators, who continually pose as protectors of the environment until it comes time for them to take action instead of spouting rhetoric, put politics above the good of the public."

One of those leading the opposition was Assemblyman Edwin L. Z'berg, D-Sacramento, a strong conservationist whose own massive environmental reorganization plan is now before a Senate committee.

Z'berg said, "Not only does this bill not do anything, it moves backward."

The Senate last week approved Reagan's plan, but a negative vote by one house alone was enough to kill it. Assembly Republicans turned back a move Sept. 29 to refer it to interim study. Cullen acted, however, to have it reconsidered.

The Assembly committee report, prepared by a subcommittee chaired by Cullen, said the Reagan proposal "fails entirely to address itself to such important environmental problems as land use, noise pollution and pesticide contamination."

The study said the plan affected only eight of 24 agencies concerned with the environment and concluded that it "fails to offer any substantial improvement in current state pollution control programs and may, in fact, be detrimental to certain existing environmental activities."

Reagan's other reorganization proposals dealt with two water quality control districts and the state board of Dry Cleaners. He withdrew one and the other was killed by the Senate.

Magazine Begins TV News Service

NEW YORK (UPI)—Newsweek Magazine this week will begin producing a color news and feature service for local television stations.

The weekly magazine said in its announcement Tuesday that stations covering almost 70 per cent of the households in America have contracted for the weekly service, which will consist of between 12 and 15 segments, each about 90 seconds long. The service will be produced by the magazine's staff for inserting into local television news programs.

Most of the subjects will come from the feature pages of the magazine, Newsweek said.

Guam Assignment For Navy's Bucher

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI)—Navy Cmdr. Lloyd Bucher, former skipper of the spy ship Pueblo, was reassigned Tuesday as chief staff officer of a mine flotilla based in Guam.

The Navy said the new assignment was a two-year tour. Since the controversial Pueblo hearings, Bucher has been special projects program officer at the 11th Naval District Headquarters in San Diego.

Ambitious Greenbelt Project Is Revealed

Lucas Valley Homeowners Association intends to buy about 300 acres of the Nunes Ranch and operate it as a greenbelt for recreation purposes.

This ambitious project by the homeowners group was revealed yesterday by Supervisor John F. McInnis. He said the cost of the property would be between $250,000 and $300,000. "It's a very commendable goal if they can work it out," said McInnis.

The property to be acquired is the hill to the north of Lucas Valley homes. Martin Kaufman, president of the Lucas Valley Homeowners Association, asked the supervisors to expand the authority of the Lucas Valley County Service Area so that it can maintain the greenbelt and provide park and recreation activities. The activity of the county service area is now confined to fire protection, which it contracts from Marinwood.

On a motion by McInnis, the supervisors asked the Marin Local Agency Formation Commission to approve the added park and recreation function to the service area's fire protection function.

Bagley, Behr In Support Of College Bonds

Two Marin County legislators have endorsed the Marin Community College District's $16,760,000 bond issue on the Nov. 2 election ballot.

Assemblyman William T. Bagley and Sen. Peter H. Behr both R-San Rafael, also supported the bond issue last year when it was narrowly defeated.

This year's proposal, would finance construction of the north campus in Novato and complete construction at the College of Marin in Kentfield.

Site design for an 87-unit complex of apartments and townhouses was approved yesterday by the Petaluma Board of Zoning Adjustments.

Plans for the Cherry Hill residential village at 180 Cherry Street were approved as submitted by Milton Forman, according to Asst. Planner Richard D. A. Anderson.

In other action, the board approved the request of Campbell Real Estate Agency for an office complex to be located at 308 Washington Street and plans by Triple "S" Tire Co. for a retail tire sales outlet at 416 Madison Street.

Oil Firms Win Round On Pollution

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Bay Area smog officials have lost their campaign to charge fees for registration of industrial equipment that was or might be a source of pollution.

Opposition by oil companies to such fees has stalled a bill that also would hike permanently the maximum property tax rate of the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District.

The bill, AB 517 by Assemblyman John T. Knox, D-Richmond, would hike the rate from 1.3 to 2 cents per $100 assessed valuation. The assemblyman last year won passage of a bill providing the increase for only two years.

A spokesman for Knox said that he had agreed to "compromise" with the oil companies by amending the provision for the registration fees. The amendment will assure prompt passage of the bill, now pending in the Senate Finance Committee, he said.

The bill cleared the Assembly without difficulty, encountering opposition only after oil company lobbyists noticed the registration provisions in Senate committee hearings.

Creek Access Work Rights Into Court

The Marin County Counsel's office yesterday filed in superior court for permission for the Army Corps of Engineers to enter property along the next proposed phase of the Corte Madera Creek Flood Control Project.

The petition, filed on behalf of the Marin County Flood Control and Water Conservation District, said that owners of 14 parcels along the creek had not given the corps of engineers written approval to enter their property.

Deputy County Counsel Joseph A. Forest said he didn't believe the absence of the permission represented an organized protest against the project, but he said such a protest could materialize.

The next phase of the project is scheduled to run from 700 feet below Lagunitas Road in Ross to a bridge at Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, immediately south of the San Anselmo city limits.

The corps needs access to the property for staking, measuring and appraisal purposes, and such access must be made available by Nov. 1 if the project is to remain on schedule, according to the petition.

All property owners along the creek within the boundaries of the next phase were sent forms to return, and the owners of the 14 parcels have failed to return them, Forest said.

The matter was being taken to court, he said, not because of organized opposition to the project, but because of the "urgency" to keep the project on schedule.

The petition will be heard at 10 a.m. Oct. 20 before Judge Samuel W. Gardiner.

Short Notice For Nixon Tour

TOKYO (UPI)—Japan was given several hours notice prior to the announcement that U.S. presidential adviser Henry Kissinger would travel to Peking for a second time.

Chief Cabinet Secretary Noboru Takeshita made the disclosure on prior notification Tuesday after being pressed by newsmen.

On July 15, when President Nixon announced his impending visit to Peking —and the fact that Kissinger had traveled there secretly —Japan was given only three minutes notice. Washington gave Tokyo about 30 minutes notice before Nixon announced his new economic policy.

Precise Plan For Hilarita Housing Project Approved

A precise development plan for reconstruction of the Hilarita Housing Project, a source of great controversy last year — has been approved in routine fashion by the Tiburon Planning Commission.

Under plans endorsed Monday by the panel, 112 units of low and moderate income housing would be built on the eight-acre site on Tiburon Boulevard near Reed School.

Richard G. Arjo, director of community development, said the precise plan follows closely the master plan approved last June by the city council after a stormy series of hearings.

Opposition to the project at that time centered around population density, concern over possible devaluation of nearby properties and fear of overloading Reed School.

Critics said the density — 14 dwelling units per acre — was not in keeping with surrounding single family residential areas. Supporters said all 112 units were needed to make the project economically feasible.

No opposition to the project arose Monday, Arjo said.

The city council will consider the precise plans at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 26 at city hall.

Present World War II housing on the site will be demolished to make room for the new apartment units, being built by the Tiburon Ecumenical Association, a coalition of churches.

In other business, Arjo said the commission set three public hearings for Nov. 1: consideration of prohibiting professional offices in residential areas; a recommendation to calculate height of buildings by feet rather than by stories, and a proposed amendment to the zoning ordinance regulating outdoor campfires.

The commission also agreed to discuss two matters at a special meeting at 8 p.m. Oct. 20 at city hall: the question of requiring developers to dedicate land for parks and whether to require builders to submit plans for single-family residences to the design review board.

Orioles Make Quick Work Of A's

Boog Will Welcome Rest For His Aching Wrist

By JOHN G. GRIFFIN
UPI Sports Editor

OAKLAND (UPI) — Concern over the painful wrist of slugger Boog Powell was the only cloud on the horizon for Baltimore's American League champion Orioles today while they waited for the start of the World Series in Baltimore Saturday.

"Maybe the three days rest will help Boog," said Orioles manager Earl Weaver, who disclosed that Powell "almost passed out" at one point during the Orioles' 5-3 victory over Oakland Tuesday that completed a three-game sweep of the American League playoffs for the third straight year.

The romp over the A's certainly produced no other problems for Weaver, and the doughty little manager indicated he doesn't worry much about whether the Giants or the Pirates eventually win the National League flag.

"I've got four 20-game winners," Weaver pointed out, "and I can go either way against either the Giants or the Pirates.

"One of those clubs has pitching (the Giants) and the other (the Pirates) hits," said Weaver. "We'll just wait and see how it comes out."

Suddenly remembering that the size of the World Series shares depends on the size of the crowds, Weaver amended his neutrality stance.

"Because you might say I've got mercenary motives," he added with a grin, "I'd like to see the team with the biggest playoff ballpark win that playoff."

Weaver professed not to know which team that is, which is like claiming he didn't know who bats next inning. It's the Pirates.

Powell, of course, is a worry. The big first baseman, who hit two homers in the second game of the playoffs, was obviously in pain as he swung on Tuesday — so much that in the eighth inning with a runner on third waiting to be picked up by even a fly ball, big Boog tried to bunt.

"With my hand hurting like it was, that seemed to be the right thing to do, he said.

It was just before then, Weaver said, that Powell nearly fainted.

"We gave him some smelling salts and a soft drink, and he seemed to feel a little better."

While the Orioles weren't making any claims about being a "super team," the A's came darn close to calling Baltimore that after going the way of the Minnesota Twins, who also lost playoffs in three straight games to the Orioles in '69 and '70.

"They're the better club and they beat hell out of us," said A's slugger Sal Bando, whose home run joined with Reggie Jackson's two homers for the A's only runs in the final game. "Baltimore is the best team assembled in baseball."

The Orioles reached that 9-0 playoff record despite wobbly pitching by Jim Palmer and a bunch of blown opportunities on offense in the final game.

Palmer couldn't get his curve ball over the plate until the ninth inning, when he wound things up with a flourish by striking out the side. He gave up seven hits, but his salvation was that all three A's homers came with the bases empty.

"I was just trying to throw a lot of fastballs," said Palmer. "I had some trouble in the early innings, but I felt stronger as the game progressed."

A's manager Dick Williams was coming in for some second

BROOKS SHINES — Baltimore's All-Star third baseman Brooks Robinson authored this bases-loaded single in the fifth inning, which plated two enroute to a 5-3, series-clinching triumph over the young Oakland A's. The veteran infielder's hit broke a 1-1 deadlock. (UPI Telephoto)

Angry, Frustrated Giants Not In Any Mood To Talk

S.F. Fighting With Backs To The Wall

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The San Francisco Giants were in no mood to talk to sportswriters following Monday's 2-1 loss to the Pittsburgh Pirates.

They were angry, disappointed, frustrated. And with $8,000 in playoff money not to mention a share of world series money at stake, it's no wonder.

A newsman who attempted to interview the players after being told by the dressing room guard it was okay to enter was unceremoniously and in one case crudely told to "beat it."

Juan Marichal, who lost the game on a four-hitter politely told a reporter, "I don't want to talk to you now. See me later."

Then came a hail of "get losts" from one corner. "Go to the other dressing room," came a voice. "Interview them. They were the winners."

Sensing the anger and frustration, Willy Mays called the reporter over and told him, "You'd better leave. They don't want to talk to you now."

The reporter took Mays' advice and as he started to leave the dressing room the same voice called out, "You'd better get the ——out or I'll kick you out."

Giant manager Charlie Fox was more tolerant but not much more talkative.

"Marichal pitched a good game and we lost," Fox said, "what more can I say?"

Asked why he thought his players didn't want to talk to newsmen, Fox said, "Would you after losing a game like that?"

Two of the four hits Marichal allowed were home runs, one by Bob Robertson to center field and the other, the clinching tally in the eighth by Richie Hebner.

Marichal said he threw Robertson a fastball, "low around the knees on the outside corner of the plate. Robertson swung with the pitch," the Giant righthander said. "If he tries to pull it he might ground out."

The crucial pitch to Hebner was a screwball. "I was just trying to get Hebner to hit the ball someplace on the ground," Marichal said. "I just wanted to get him out."

Bobby Bonds, the Giants rightfielder, said he thought he had a chance to catch Hebner's shot.

"It missed by about that much," Bonds said, holding his thumb and index finger about five inches apart. "But five inches is a mile when it goes over the fence."

BYE-BYE ALEX

Angels' Officials Happy With Trade

ANAHEIM (UPI) — The California Angels figure they made a good deal sending Alex Johnson to Cleveland since it was apparent the heavy-hitting outfielder would never be happy with the local club.

The Angels sent Johnson and catcher Jerry Moses to the Indians in exchange for outfielders Vada Pinson, 33, and Frank Baker, 27, and a fine pitching prospect, Alan Foster, 24, a former Los Angeles Dodger.

Johnson, 28, was suspended without pay by the Angels on June 26 when he failed to run out a ground ball. He had been fined several times previously for lack of hustle.

"We are pleased with the trade," said Angel general manager Dick Walsh." We obtained an established player in Pinson, and everyday outfielder. Foster is a prospect, a young starter who had his best year. Baker will be vying for one of the outfield jobs. We made the best possible deal for Johnson."

Johnson won the American League batting championship in 1970, his first year with the Angels. He was hitting .260 when he was suspended. He has been with three other clubs, all in the national league — Philadelphia, Cincinnati and St. Louis.

Moses, 25, hit .227 for the Angels in 69 games. He was unhappy with them and asked to be traded.

Foster had an 8-12 record with the Indians and a 4.15 earned run average with a club that finished last in the American League East.

Pinson hit .263 with 11 homers and 35 runs batted in, somewhat below his lifetime average of .291. Baker hit .210 in 73 games.

Johnson scored a victory over the Angels just a week ago when a three-man labor panel awarded him back pay of $29,970. A psychiatrist testified during a panel hearing he was under emotional stress and should have been treated as a sick person and put on the disabled list with pay.

At his home in Detroit, Johnson expressed pleasure at the trade.

"I'm not really surprised," he said. "I knew I couldn't do it (play) in California . . . that's for sure."

Cleveland general manager Gabe Paul, said, "Johnson has the ability to be a superstar. He can do everything. He is a very clean-living, highly sensitive fellow with high moral standards and with great talent. We're fortunate to be able to get him."

TWO-WAY TIE IN PREP SOCCER RACE

San Rafael, San Marin, Redwood and Drake high schools registered soccer wins yesterday.

San Rafael and Redwood downed hosts Marin Catholic and Terra Linda each by 2-0 scores, to remain atop the Marin County Athletic League with 2-0-1 marks.

In other games, Drake walloped visiting Tamalpais High School 8-1 to knock the Indians out of a first place deadlock; and San Marin dumped host Novato High School 2-1.

49ers Not Changing Their Style

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (UPI) —Coach Dick Nolan cited fullback Ken Willard, center Forrest Blue and defensive end Tommy Hart as special standouts in the San Francisco 49ers' 31-3 romp at Philadelphia last Sunday.

Nolan also said Tuesday that despite the Los Angeles Rams' razzle-dazzle style of play this season, he plans little change in preparing for the Sunday clash with the rivals from Southern California at Candlestick Park.

"WE'll be aware of things that the Rams do, but we aren't going to change our style of play. If you do that, you lay yourself open. It's like a fighter who keeps watching for an opponent's right and gets beaten to death by the left."

Huskie Offense Wows Ralston

OAKLAND (UPI) —Stanford moved for about as many yards against Duke as Washington did against Illinois.

But Stanford was on the short end of a 9-3 stunner while Washington romped 52-14 at Illinois.

Now the Indians have to play at Washington in a game that could decide the coast's Rose Bowl team and Indian coach John Ralston says the statistics from last week show that Washington makes the big play.

"Washington is averaging 50 points a game," Ralston told the Northern California sports scribes Tuesday. "They can really make a big play."

Meanwhile, coach Ray Willsey of the Bears said that Ohio State showed power in taking his team 35-3 at Columbus, Ohio, last Saturday, but that the officiating "left a little bit to be desired."

He was especially incensed about one play where Isaac Curtis, the speedster recently shifted to wide receiver, was knocked down by a defender and then had interference called on him.

Many felt Curtis was on his way to a sure touchdown and even Ohio State coach Woody Hayes mentioned the play after the game.

Willsey praised defensive back Clarence Duren and Sherman White on defense and Curtis on offense. The latter caught four passes and blocked well in his first start at wide receiver.

Duren was named player of the week by the scribes.

Cal plays Oregon State this Saturday and Willsey compared the Beavers to Ohio State in that both use a "quarterback-fullback offense... that stomps right over the top of you."

Ailing Packer Coach Gets Hydraulic Lift

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI)—Green Bay Packers Coach Dan Devine and his hip-to toe cast may revolutionize football and bring that physical, personal-contact game into the space age of electronics.

Realizing the importance of mobility in football — for coaches, as well as players—Devine Tuesday received a new coaching aid, a hydraulic coaching platform with a scissors-like motion that can lift him 19 1-2 feet off the ground.

That new gadget will give him mobility and a good view of his players during practice—something he hasn't had since his leg was broken in a sideline player-pileup several weeks ago during the Green Bay-New York game.

His roving tower, called a mighty-lift, can be moved up and down the sidelines and can boost Devine to any height desired to help him in overseeing the development of his players. It will probably replace the sporty golf cart he used right after his accident.

The now-electronically-mobile Green Bay coach put his Packers through a 90 minute drill Tuesday after reviewing films with the team of their 2017 win over the Bengals. They also heard a scouting report on their next opponent, the Detroit Lions, from Wally Cruice.

Raiders Showed Poise In That Comeback Win

OAKLAND (UPI) —The Oakland Raiders have had their problems this season, but being quitters is not one of them.

They showed their poise Monday night when they fell behind at Cleveland 14-0 early in the going and 20-10 early in the fourth quarter and still rallied for a 34-20 triumph.

"The thing about our quarterback Daryle Lamonica," says Raider tub-thumper Tom Grimes, "is that he doesn't worry about things that have gone wrong. He only concentrates on how he can do it right in the time remaining."

Atkinson's theft set up the touchdown which shoved Oakland ahead 24-20.

"We're in a zone," Atkinson explained later, "but we disguised it so well that (quarterback Bill) Nelson couldn't recognize it. He never saw me."

'SOMEDAY,' SAYS BANDO

'We'll Be The Best'

OAKLAND (UPI) — Captain Sal Bando of the Oakland Athletics feels his club will some day be the best in baseball.

But not this year.

"Right now, Baltimore is the best team assembled in baseball," said the 27-year-old third baseman, "but we're going to be better. We're going to improve and win our share of championships too."

New manager Dick Williams also looked to the future after the Athletics were beaten three straight by the Orioles for the American League championships.

"I told the players (after Tuesday's finale) they played good as a team and it was no disgrace to be beaten by Baltimore. We just didn't play very well in the playoffs," said Williams who guided the A's to 101 victories the first season he managed them.

"Baltimore is the best in our league and I hope they knock hell out of the National League in four straight."

Williams said the A's had a couple of opportunities to get to starting and winning pitcher Jim Palmer but missed both of them.

"He was wild in that one inning (fourth) when he walked two batters but he came back in good shape," said Williams.

"We were in this one until Brooks (Robinson) got that basehit (to drive in two runs in the fifth)," said Williams. "Then we didn't get the relief pitching we wanted."

Williams defended his strategy in walking the lefthanded batting Elrod Hendricks with runners on second and third in the fifth to get to Brooks Robinson with the score tied 11.

"We were playing the percentages—right versus left. Hendricks has hit us hard in the series and we had a righthander (Diego Segui) pitching. I figured our odds would improve to have Segui pitch to the righthand-hitting Brooks instead of Hendricks."

But Segui got a fastball up high and across the plate to Brooks and he singled home two runs.

"I'd have preferred if we could have crowded him (Brooks) or pitched him down," said the A's skipper.

Reggie Jackson, the 25-year-old rightfielder of the A's who slugged 32 homers this season, said the Orioles proved once again that they don't beat themselves.

"We didn't lose, they beat us," said Jackson. "We didn't give Baltimore anything. I'd be disappointed if we went out and handed the game to them but we didn't."

Earl Weaver, the Baltimore manager, also feels the A's may be a team of the future.

"They are young and they will improve," he said. "I hope we can meet them again in the playoffs next year."

In addition to winning 101 games, the A's set an American League record of capturing 55 games on the road and were the league's hottest road attraction, playing before more than 1,600,000 fans in the other 11 parks.

Of that total, A's owner Charles O. Finley received 20 per cent of the total gate and also picked up $1.1 million in radio-television rights while his club has one of the lowest payrolls in baseball. At home, the A's drew 913,000 fans.

Jackson's two solo homers off Palmer were the only ones hit against Baltimore in 11 regular season and three post-season games this year.

"I was just trying to make good, hard contact," said Jackson. "I was tired of hearing 'we'll get 'em next year.' "

But that's the way it will be, Reggie.

PAT DOBSON

20-Game Winner Held In Reserve

OAKLAND (UPI) — You'd think a 20-game winner would get a shot in a championship series but Baltimore's Pat Dobson didn't.

Dobson, frequently referred to as the Orioles' "fourth 20-game winner," threw a couple of warmup pitches during the second game of Baltimore's three-game sweep of the Oakland Athletics in the American League's best-of-five title series, and that was it.

Dave McNally, head man of the staff with 21 victories, won the opener—with relief help—and then 20-game winners Mike Cuellar and Jim Palmer both turned in complete game victories to leave no start for Dobson.

But Dobson didn't really mind.

"It doesn't make any difference to me," he said while sipping a glass of champagne after Tuesday's 5-3 clincher. "I'm just glad to be here. This is a great ball club."

He quickly added, however, "I just hope I get a chance in the series" which is a best-of-seven set.

Manager Earl Weaver refused to tip his hand as to his starter in Saturday's opener.

"I've got four 20-game winners and I can go either way against either the Pirates or the Giants," Weaver added.

Thurmond, Mullins Pace Warrior Win

YAKIMA, Wash. (UPI)—The Golden State Warriors nipped the Seattle Sonics 94-90 here Tuesday night in a tough defensive battle in a pre-season National Basketball Association game.

Warrior center Nate Thurmond led the winners with 30 points but it was Jeff Mullins who broke a 90-90 tie and scored the final four points for the first Golden State victory of the pre-season campaign.

Bob Rule, Sonics center who suffered an injured achilles tendon last season and is trying a comeback, failed to score a point in 24 minutes of action. Spencer Haywood led Seattle with 25.

The same two teams meet tonight at Moscow, Idaho.

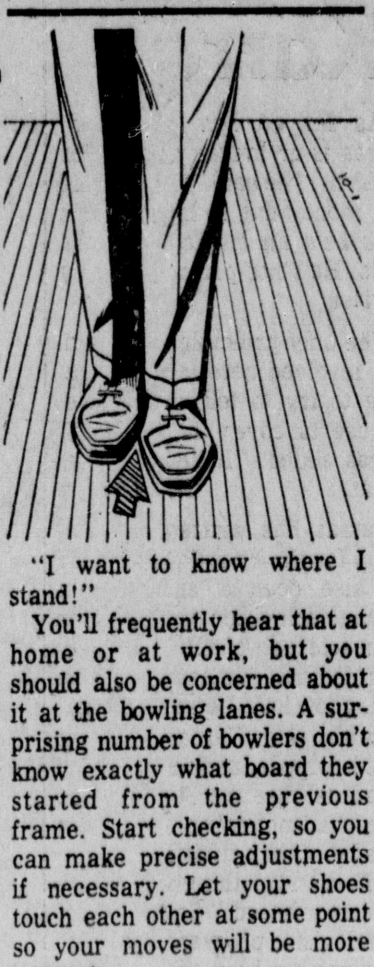
BOWLING TIPS

By DON CARTER



"I want to know where I stand!"

You'll frequently hear that at home or at work, but you should also be concerned about it at the bowling lanes. A surprising number of bowlers don't know exactly what board they started from the previous frame. Start checking, so you can make precise adjustments if necessary. Let your shoes touch each other at some point so your moves will be more accurate.

ORIOLES

guessing on what turned out to be the key play of the game. With the score tied at 1-1 in the fifth inning, runners on second and third and two out, he ordered A's starter Diego Segui to walk lefthanded batter Ellie Hendricks and pitch to righthanded Brooks Robinson.

Brooksie, hero of the '70 World Series, promptly busted a two-run single to center field to make it 3-1 and the A's never caught up.

"We were just playing the percentages — right versus left," Williams said.

Robinson himself defended Williams.

"I haven't hit well against Segui in the past," Robinson pointed out. "I guess I'm hitting .180 against him. I just went up there looking for a fastball, and I got it."

Hendricks drove in the Orioles' first run with a sacrifice fly. Frank Robinson, emerging from an 0-for-10 slump, doubled home the fourth and scored the fifth on a wild pitch by reliever Darold Knowles.

"It's not a disgrace to be beaten by Baltimore," said Williams. "I hope they win four straight games in the World Series."

Sonoma To Host Aggies

Sonoma State College entertains the University of California at Davis Saturday at 1:30 p.m.

Some 1,000 fans are expected for this second-ever Cossack home contest pitting a developing Sonoma offense against the undefeated Aggies in a game benefiting the Sonoma area's Economic Opportunity program.

Quarterback Ernie Simon will welcome back last year's second leading receiver, Donovan Hall, heretofore out with bruised ribs. In his only encounter this year, Hall snagged three aerials for 50 yards against Whittier College.

Hall's understudy, Greg Akula, will also return from the injured list. Starting defensive tackle Sam Tharp, a standout in last week's heartbreaking loss to Sacramento State, 23-22, will team with burly Ben Guerra, 6-foot-2, 235 pounds. The latter is also returning from a disability.

"I'm also looking forward to seeing starting guard Simon Ramos (6-0, 215) playing. He has been out with a bad knee but is ready to go now," Cossack coach Carl Peterson said.

The reappearance of Hall, Akula, Guerra and Ramos is timely, the mentor added, "because we anticipate Davis will be up for us. We beat them last year, and now they are undefeated. They'll be looking for revenge."

To prevent an Aggie win, Peterson has drilled his troops intensively this week. "I'm trying to get the men up after last week's bitter, final quarter loss. Nonetheless, I expect a successful afternoon Saturday."

Champion Orioles Greeted By Throng Upon Return

BALTIMORE — An estimated 3,000 fans turned out in a driving rainstorm at Friendship Airport early Wednesday to welcome the American League champion Baltimore Orioles home from Oakland.

The Orioles beat Oakland 5-3 Tuesday to win the pennant in three straight games for the third year in a row.

The rooters huddled under umbrellas and homemade signs to await the chartered jet, which was more than one hour late due to a lengthy post-game celebration in the Oriole locker room in Oakland.

SPORT SHORTS

CHICAGO — The Chicago White Sox have released Luke Appling, who was named the Sox greatest all-time performer in 1969, from their coaching staff.

The announcement by general manager Stu Holcomb Tuesday said Appling would be replaced by Jim Mahoney, 37, a coach with the Sox Asheville, N.C., farm club.

Football

DENVER — The Denver Broncos in a surprise move announced Tuesday they had released outright veteran tight end Jim Whalen, 28-year-old former Boston college star who had caught seven passes for 124 yards so far this season, and running back Wandy Williams.

Whalen came to the Broncos two years ago from the Boston Patriots where he led all tight ends in the old American Football League in 1968 with 47 receptions for 718 yards and seven touchdowns.

SAN FRANCISCO — Don Bunce of Stanford, Sonny Sixkiller of Washington and Bobby Moore of Oregon still dominate Pacific Eight statistics after four weeks of play.

Latest figures show Bunce the top total offense performer with 978 yards in four games. Sixkiller leads the passers with 949 yards gained and is second in total offense with 899 yards.

Oregon's Moore has rushed for 562 yards in four games for a hefty 140.5 average.

Washington kicker Steve Weizbowski is the new scoring leader with 35 points while Oregon's Leland Glass dominates pass receiving with 25 grabs.

Tennis

NEW YORK — Although they did not compete in the Pacific Coast International Championships at Berkeley, Calif., over the weekend, Stan Smith and Ilie Nastase remained 1-2 atop the standings of the $250,000 Pepsi Grand Prix Tennis.

Smith, of Pasadena, Calif., has 177 points and is the leader for the ninth week. Nastase of Romania is second with 122 points, one better than Czech Jan Kodes, who picked up two points in the Berkeley event.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Boaters Need Insurance, Too

Most people are very conscious of having enough car insurance. In fact, most of the reasonable people I know wouldn't think of driving their cars around the block unless they were insured to the hilt against possible damage the car might do . . . and for which they could be liable.

Yet many of the same people have no insurance on their boats.

If you mention it, they say something vague like: "the whole rig is only worth a couple of hundred bucks," and dismiss the need to insure such an insignificant item.

But a $100 boat can damage a $50,000 boat beyond repair. It can cause injuries to its passengers which some jury might decide are worth $500,000 to the sufferers. And there is a disturbing tendency to lump the owner of a $100 boat in the same millionaire class as the man with the $50,000 boat . . . and judgments often are handed out accordingly.

The only protection, whether your boat is in the $100 class or the $50,000 bracket, is to be adequately covered by insurance. And the word "adequate" is very important whether your insurance is an "outboard" policy or a "yacht" policy. There is no blanket marine insurance.

Be sure it's adequate in that all possible risks are covered. Marine policies usually pay off only on losses as they are specified in the contract.

Here are probably the two most important areas in which you should be covered:

(a) As an owner you are responsible for the damage or personal injury caused by your boat, not only when you are aboard, but also if it is operated by a member of your family or by anyone else with your knowledge and consent.

(b) You are responsible for the safety of passengers on your boat. You must warn a passenger about a potentially dangerous condition aboard. If a passenger is hurt, and you are negligent, he can sue and most likely will collect.

There is a wry saying among marine and admiralty lawyers: "Today's guest is tomorrow's plaintiff."

Boat insurance is a big topic, with many facets which baffle most boaters. Here are some of the questions I've been asked on this topic this summer:

Q. How important is insurance on one's boat?

A. Just as important as insurance on your car. And it's conceded that anyone who doesn't have car insurance is either witless or irresponsible.

Q. What's the most important type of insurance?

A. It's a toss-up between "Hull" insurance which protects your investment and "Protection and Indemnity." The first is the same as collision insurance on your car, and the second the same as comprehensive personal injury and property damage.

Q. Is there passenger insurance?

A. Very definitely, and you should get it. A passenger on your boat is your responsibility.

Q. If I "finance" a boat with a bank or finance company, what about insurance?

A. I'm sure the lending institution will insist on insurance covering perils to the hull to protect its interest in your boat. But it's not likely to ask for other types of insurance because the bank or finance company can't be expected to care whether you get sued.

Q. Is there a standard form of insurance contract?

A. Positively not. Boat insurance varies to great extremes in coverage and cost. You have to shop around. Talk to a reliable insurance broker.

A. I have heard of an "all risks" policy. Is it the best?

A. This is a form of hull insurance which includes other risks such as fire, theft, personal liability . . . almost anything. But, although the policy says "all," read it very carefully to make sure that everything you want is specified in writing. Anything not specifically mentioned is not covered.

Q. Does boat insurance apply all year round?

A. It's whatever you buy. Generally coverage is provided only between specified dates written into the policy.

Q. Are "group" rates available in boat insurance?

A. Yes, write Boat Owners Association of the U.S. (Boat/U.S.), 1028 Connecticut Ave., Washington, D.C. 20036. Ask for the "Marine Insurance Primer." Group rates do save money.

Tables Turned On Karras

DETROIT (UPI)—When Alex Karras was dropped by the Detroit Lions, he made it clear the team hadn't heard the last from him.

Now the tables have been turned.

The Lions are trying to determine whether the outspoken former defensive tackle is violating his lingering contract through his outside writing activities.

Since Karras was released on waivers by the National Football League club two weeks ago, he has started writing a column for the Detroit Free Press in addition to hosting a television show in Chicago.

Lyall Smith, Lions public relations director, brought out the possible contract violation when asked why Karras had been denied use of the press box Sunday in connection with his work for the Free Press.

"Under terms of his contract," Smith said, "We are to pay him this year and next in full ($35,000 annually). If anyone under contract wants his own television show or writes a press column they must ask our permission. I've never been asked by Karras or by the paper for that permission.

"If the contract's good for him, is it good for us?" said Smith. "I don't know. That's the question our attorneys are looking at now."

Smith said Karras had not asked for a press pass to Sunday's game. However, Smith said George Puscas, executive sports editor of the newspaper, had informed him that Karras planned to use one of the paper's passes.

Puscas said he assumes Karras "knows his contract."

"As far as I'm concerned, Karras is no longer playing for the Lions," he said. "He is being paid money due to him. I don't think he's an employe for the Lions. He's not performing any services.

"The only principle we would have involved here is if they're going to try to tell us who we can use to cover the games," Puscas added. "It hasn't come to that."

Karras has written two columns for the Free Press so far. He also does a show for a Chicago television station prior to the telecasts of ABC's Monday night football games as well as a radio show for a Detroit station.

Smith said Karras had not asked for permission to do the broadcasting either, but said the Lions had not taken any action because of the activities.

"That's something we've never seen or heard," Smith said of the television program.

Karras has been critical of the Lions' management both before and after his release.

Variable Income Annuity Favored

• By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Please discuss in one of your forthcoming articles the advantages and disadvantages of tax-sheltered annuity plans permitted under Section 403b of the Internal Revenue Code. — E.C.

A. For those readers who may not be familiar with this particular section of the Internal Revenue Code it provides tax-deferred treatment for annuity purchase plans adopted by public school systems and tax exempt organizations. Unfortunately you failed to give me any personal information or particulars on the annuity plan or plans you are considering.

Basically there are two types of annuities which are included under the qualifications of Section 403b, fixed or variable income annuities. Since most workers are covered by Social Security, a fixed income-type pension plan, I would favor either a variable income plan or a combination, balanced income plan. Regardless of which type of plan you are considering the advantages of deferring tax liability on a portion of your current salary are obvious.

Because net premium reserves from variable annuities are invested in common and preferred stocks, the value of these funds varies in line with fluctuations in the security investments. Thus income from a variable contract fluctuates, sometimes monthly, in accordance with investment results.

In the past, investment values have increased more or less in line with the rise in the cost of living. Although more recently the market has dropped in the face of accelerating inflation, over the long term these reversals tend to be counterbalanced.

Nonetheless, because of the flexible income characteristics of the variable contract, a combination plan may be preferable particularly for the individual having only 10 to 15 working years prior to retirement.

A fixed income annuity provides the annuitant with a dependable monthly pension, which, because it cannot be outlived, can be a source of considerable peace of mind. However, unlike income from a variable contract, this pension will not increase to accommodate inflation, nor will it decrease in response to bear markets.

Stocks Hold In Moderate Trading

NEW YORK (UPI) Stocks held on an even keel in moderate trading today.

After about two hours of trading, market averages pointed slightly lower, but advances narrowly edged declines, 524 to 516, among the 1,428 issues on the tape.

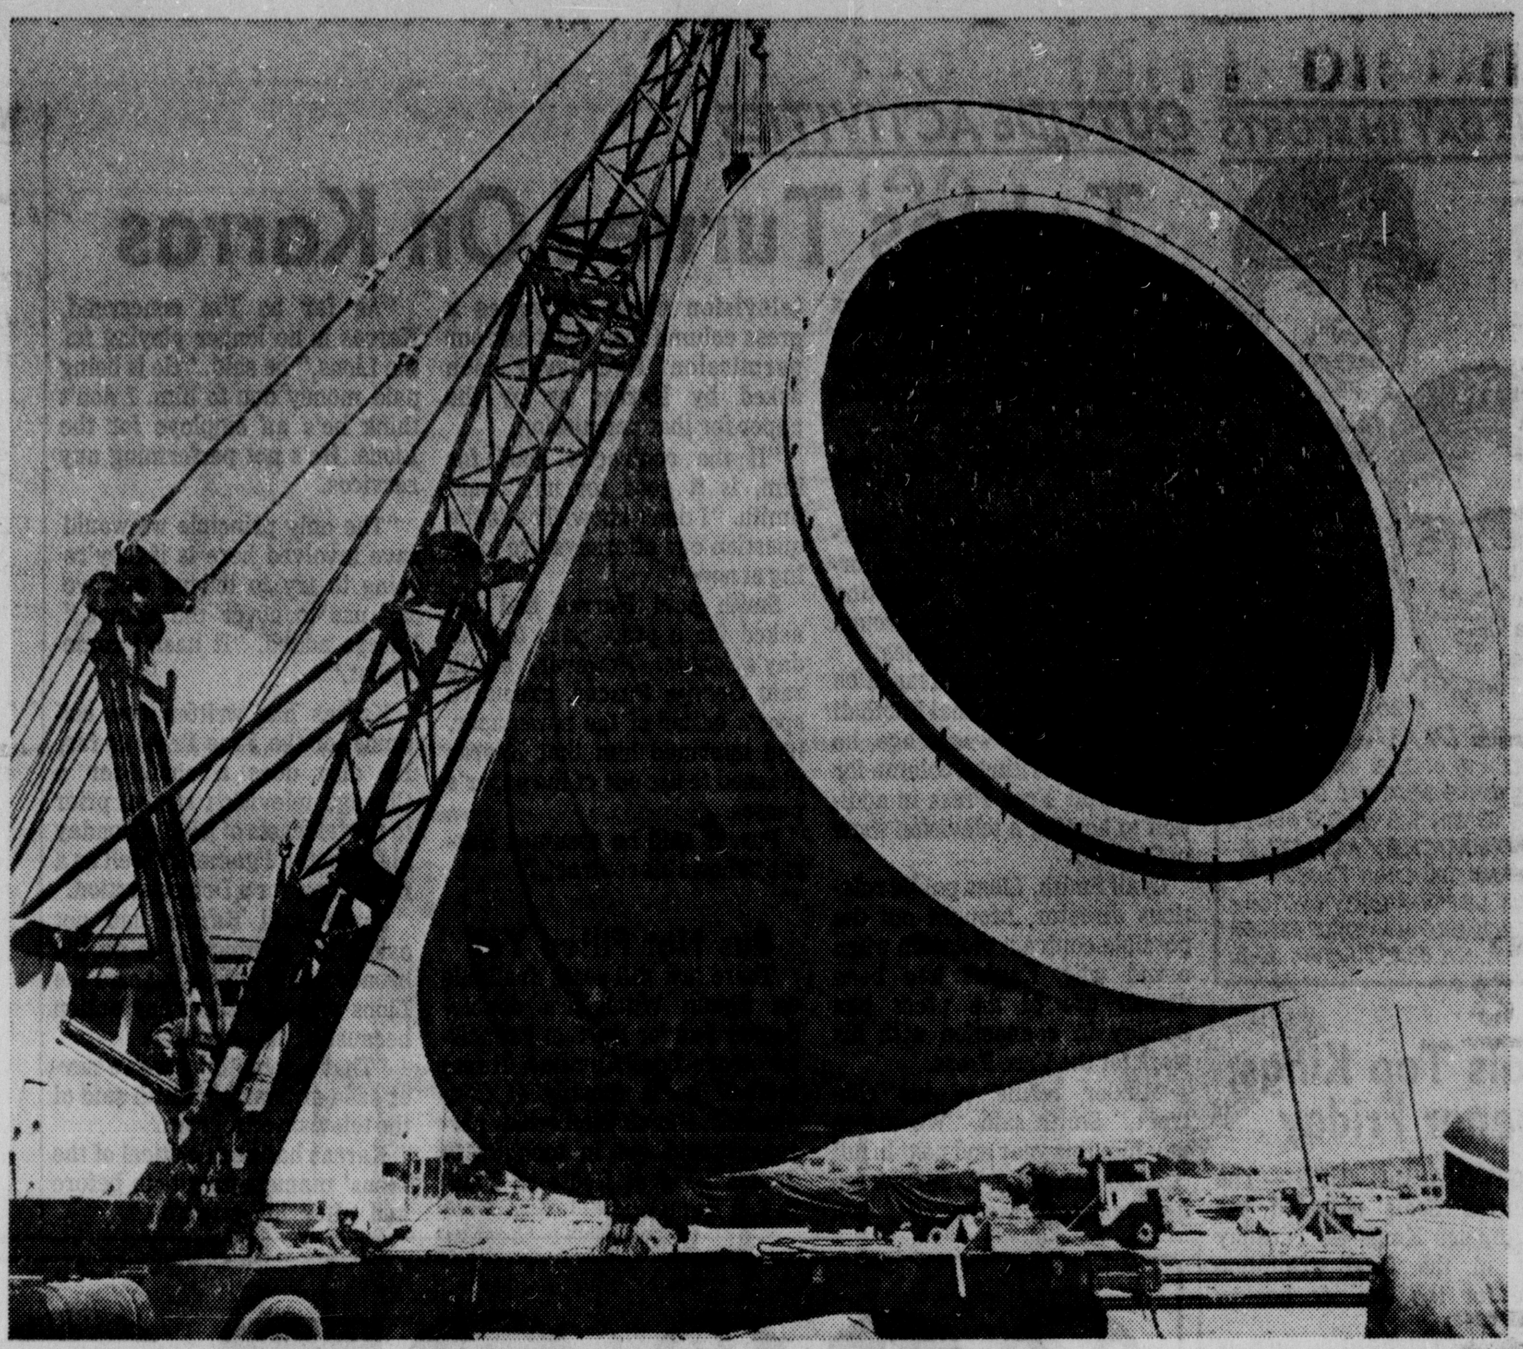
Oils, electronics, and selected glamor stocks were among the softest spots. Most other stock groups traded in narrowly mixed fashion, as did the day's most active issues.

Among the most active were Virginia Electric Power, unchanged, Pan American World Airways off 1/8, and Arlen Realty & Development 1/2 higher. Arlen looked for a big jump in earnings for the second quarter ended Aug. 31.

Prices were slightly higher in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Analysts said the cautious attitude among traders and investors reflected uncertainty about Phase Two of President Nixon's economic program. The president is expected to reveal details of his plan later this week.

Among the Big Board's weakest issues were Corning Glass down 3½, Jack Eckard 2, Polaroid 2¾, Superior Oil 2, Gulf, Mobile & Ohio Railroad 1, IBM 1¼ and Electronic Data Systems 1¼.



IT'S NO CANNON

This item may appear to be a huge cannon, but it's not. It's a spherodizer, a 30-ton piece of equipment being moved into Chevron Chemical's remodeled fertilizer plant across the San Pablo Strait in Richmond. A drum inside the "barrel" rotates to build up uniform fertilizer pellets from seed particles and food elements. The plant will be 90 per cent remodeled by the time it reopens late this year.

That Car Of Yours Is Due For A Pre-Winter Check

DETROIT (UPI)—Falling autumn leaves signal that it's time to give your automobile a pre-winter checkup to help get it through the coming ice and snow.

Since the heart of any checkup is an engine tuneup, garage and service station cash registers will be busy over the next few weeks. But they may play an even livelier tune if you don't have the checkup. It's more important now that stricter emission standards have required engine modifications and anti-pollution devices. Only a well-tuned car will give trouble-free service in cold weather.

It's also important from a gas mileage standpoint. Poor-running engines are inefficient as well as pollutant.

If your car has traveled several thousand miles since the last tune-up, new points and condenser in the distributor are in order and possibly, new spark plugs. Electronic ignition systems will eliminate the conventional distributor and make new points unnecessary, but they will not be in widespread use for a few years.

Check the distributor cap for possible cracks. A cracked cap can retard starting on a chill, dewy morning. Falling temperatures precipitate moisture which gets inside the cap.

Also important is a thorough check of the exhaust system. You'll be driving with windows closed most of the winter. A leaking exhaust system could result in deadly fumes seeping into the passenger compartment.

Then there's the battery. Cold weather makes great demands on it. To turn over an icy engine requires far more battery power than starting during summer months. Records show that about 90 per cent of all wintertime service station calls for assistance involve "no start" problems, usually resulting from a dead battery. If it is weak, replace it. You probably will save that much money in road and parking lot calls.

Anti-freeze in the cooling system should be checked. Since anti-freeze is used for both winter and summer driving, most motorists leave it in all year. If the anti-freeze is two years old or older, it may need a booster, or a new shot of rust inhibitor. The safest bet is to put in fresh anti-freeze.

Your tires should have a good thickness of tread. Winter months with rutted ice and heavy snow can be as hard on tires as hot summer driving.

Smooth tires skid easily on snow or ice. While studded tires for winter driving are useful, some states are having second thoughts about permitting them. Evidence is building up that the studs rough up and wear out highways too fast. States that do permit them usually designate only winter months with a date for starting their use and another date in the spring for removing them.

OTHER PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

By HARRY CRAFT

Remodeling Work Soon Begins At Old Purity Store Location

Now that Purity Stores has vacated its location in the Montecito Shopping Center, San Rafael, work should start soon on remodeling the building by Standard Paint Co., Inc., of Torrance.

Standard Brand purchased the building from Purity about three months ago and recently has indicated it will open a paint store sometime after the first of the year.

The company has 34 stores throughout California and three in Arizona. It manufactures and sells a number of paint lines and also sells related items and equipment used in the paint industry.

Purity still maintains its store at Northgate Shopping Center.

GAREY, MOREY, who for 15 years has operated Morey's Junior Boot Shop at 1414 Fourth Street, San Rafael, has gone in for diversification.

He has purchased and is now operating the former Dorothea's custom and ready-made frame shop at 1331 Fourth Street, only one block away. For many years Morey pursued picture framing and art both as a hobby and on a freelance basis. He will call the shop The Skylight.

For the time being he is specializing in frames, mats, glass and custom framing, but later intends to add a line of art supplies.

His boot shop is being managed by Glenn Conner, who has been there nine years.

BUILDING ACTIVITY at the Northgate Mall has developed lease interest in that area under construction between the present mall buildings and the Sears Roebuck future store site.

Planning to go in is Chandler's Warp and Woof, already at 4000 Northgate Mall and intending to expand to 8,000 square feet.

Kinney Shoe Stores, which has one store on the San Rafael Miracle Mile, wants another in Northgate.

And what would a new development be without a restaurant? Bumbleberry Enterprises of San Jose is planning one, to take up 4,125 square feet.

JAMES F. LANGTON of Strawberry has been appointed to the advisory council of Bank of America's board of directors. A senior-vice president at San Francisco headquarters, he directs statewide, national and international public relations for the bank, which he joined in 1959.

Halleran

FRANK M. HALLERAN of Sausalito has been named managing director of the Pacific Coast Builders Conference, Inc., succeeding the late Rodney Radom, who served as director since its inception in 1958. Halleran has had about 20 years professional experience in convention contracting and hotel business in the San Francisco Bay Area. He will be in charge of overall functions and arrangements for the conference's June convention held each year at the Fairmont Hotel.

MARIN COUNTY TAXABLE RETAIL SALES for the second quarter of this year totaled $94,520,000 — an increase of 10 per cent over the $85,916,000 shown for last year's second quarter. The gain was comfortably above the statewide average gain of 6.4 per cent, as were gains of most other Bay Area counties.

San Rafael's retail sales for the 1971 period were $38,960,000, Corte Madera's $10,441,000, and Novato's $9,233,000. These were the only cities in Marin for which figures were published by the State Board of Equalization.

Computer Firm Reports Earning

CULVER CITY (BW) — Computer Communications Inc. has reported revenues and operating results for the year ended June 30.

The results reflect the acquisition in March 1971 of Micromation Technology Corp. on a pooling of interests basis. Also, the results reflect a recently announced determination of the treatment of certain transactions under a third party leasing arrangement, resulting in recording no revenues at the time of delivery; such revenues are to be recognized as income over the estimated lessor recovery period.

Sales and other revenues totaled $4,164,969 for the year, compared with $8,208,918 reported last year and compared with $8,293,603 when restated to include the acquisition.

Production Down

DETROIT (BW) — Chrysler Corp. produced 139,921 passenger cars in its North American assembly plants in September, compared with 154,696 in September 1970.

Ceremonies Set For New Sanctuary

Rev. Douglas Sniden, executive minister in the Bay Area for American Baptist Churches of the West will speak at the groundbreaking of a new sanctuary at Bethel Baptist Church, 1929 Novato Boulevard, Novato, at 3 p.m. Sunday.

Three former pastors of the church are scheduled to attend: Rev. Roy Herndon, the founder in 1957, Rev. Clark Wyly, and Rev. Gerald Moyer.

The new sanctuary will seat about 350 persons, according to building committee chairman William J. Olsen.

Pastor Wilbur J. Bullard will lead the responsive reading and Rev. D. M. Rayment will represent the Novato Ministerial Association.

Lorraine Dickinson and Carole Smith, vocal soloists, will be accompanied by Agnes Jensen in a special music program.

There will be a buffet following the groundbreaking. Ruth Barnett is social chairman, and Mary Olsen is program and publicity chairman.

Tam School Unification Vote Is Out

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Legislation to avoid another election next year to unify elementary school districts in the Tamalpais High School District has been signed into law by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Bitter unification elections were held in the district in 1964 and 1965, both losing badly. And under the state Education Code, a third election would have had to be held to coincide with next year's June primary.

Marin school officials, citing the disruption in the two past elections, had measure AB 358 introduced by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael.

Voters would continue to reject unification, they argued, because it would require up to a 62.5-cent tax increase in some elementary districts to raise teachers' salaries to the highest level in the unified district.

Sally Ann Rakow, president of the Ross School District board of trustees, led the long legislative campaign to win passage of the measure.

No Objection To Tennis Courts At Pioneer Park

The Novato Environmental Quality Committee has no objection to construction of tennis courts at Pioneer Memorial Park, according to Rodney Brown, administrative assistant.

The city council allocated $24,000 for two tennis courts in the 1971-72 budget, but the location was open for study.

Tennis advocates urged the courts at the park, but there were protests that they would create "overdevelopment" at the site.

The committee also received a report that more trash was collected last Saturday — the first day of the community's debris collection drive, "Trash Bash" — than in both days of the drive in previous years, Brown said. The "Trash Bash" concludes this Saturday.

The Wrong Car

The Independent-Journal erred Monday in reporting that a car driven by Wayne Jamison, 23, of Cotati, struck the rear of a car driven by James Hinsch, 27, of Berkeley, in an accident Sunday on Highway 101 north of Petaluma. The car driven by Hinsch struck the car driven by Jamison, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Magee, Angela Trial Cost Bill To New Senate Panel

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Legislation to require the state to pay part of the costs for the Angela Davis and Ruchell Magee trials, stalled since July in the Senate Judiciary Committee, yesterday went to the Senate Finance Committee despite objections from the Department of Corrections.

State officials variously estimate the potential cost to the state from $350,000 to $1 million under the bill (AB 644) by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael.

The measure, which already has cleared the Assembly, adds conspiracy to escape from prison to those offenses for which the state must reimburse trial costs. Miss Davis and Magee are charged with murder, kidnap and conspiracy in connection with the August 1970 shoot-out at the Civic Center in which Judge Harold J. Haley and three others died.

The Department of Corrections said that the state should reimburse the county for trial costs, but objected that it had no money for the increased costs under Bagley's bill.

The assemblyman, however, assured the committee that he expected the Reagan administration to provide Marin with as much as $800,000 as his reward for carrying an administration bill raising some $20 million in new taxes.

The theme of the conference at the Officers' Open Mess will be "Duty, Honor, Country."

Retired Air Force Maj. Gen. Carroll W. McColpin will head a symposium on objectives of the order, including keeping the United States foremost in air power and space research, encouraging men to seek a military career and seeking ways of enhancing the public's image of the armed forces.

Thieu Finds Place In Notable Company

By getting 91.5 per cent of the votes for president of South Vietnam in an election in which he was the only candidate, Nguyen Van Thieu has joined a distinguised company.

Benito Mussolini showed the way when he won passage of Italian election laws which gave his appointees sole power to determine who should be nominated for office. A single slate of candidates — always headed by Mussolini — was then presented to the electorate. And the dictator could point with pride to the near-unanimity of his election.

WHEN ADOLF HITLER gained one-man control of the government of Germany in 1934 (although his Nazi party was a minority in the reichstag), he effectively combined appeal to his followers and terrorism of his opponents to win support of 90 per cent of German voters in a plebiscite. From then on, elections in Hitler's Germany were like those in Mussolini's Italy: a single slate of candidates was presented. The voter could vote "ja" or leave the ballot blank. Hitler was proud to point to better than 90 per cent approval in each such "election."

Josef Stalin also used the same system. First he had to have some political opponents executed without trial. That done, he could have "elections" with no worries — the list of candidates having to be approved by a committee headed by Stalin. He had no trouble getting better than 90 per cent vote for the single list placed before the electors.

WHAT WAS GOOD for Benito, Adolf and Joe is equally good for Nguyen Van Thieu, as the week end election in South Vietnam proved. With no opposition, an overwhelming majority is a cinch — particularly when the sole candidate controls all the election machinery.

Nobody that we ever heard of ever won a real election with 91.5 per cent vote. When Franklin Delano Roosevelt was at the pinnacle of his popularity in this country, he got over 60 per cent of the 1936 popular vote for President (that was the year when Alf Landon carried only Maine and Vermont.) That was an overwhelming majority — in a free election.

THE IRONY of the Vietnam situation is that the United States helped Thieu get to the top in the first place, while declaring that one of our major purposes in that ill-starred country was to assure free democratic processes.

Bringing a "truly representative government into power was an aim of the U.S. when it became involved in the ouster (and assassination) of Ngo Dhin Diem — as President Nixon himself remarked recently. But the "truly representative" government turned out to be a dictatorship — much like that in North Vietnam to which we object.

The Vietnamese election should provide the final proof that the United States has been misguided in its costly effort to Southeast Asia. There remains no reason to continue to shed American blood for a cause so patently lost.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

New Gold Rush To California By 'Investigating' Office Seekers

By FRED W. KLINE

SACRAMENTO (Capitol) — Suddenly California has become the prime location for United States Senate committee hearings.

It is interesting to note almost every one of these "important" investigations is being held by a Democratic senator who happens to have been mentioned as a possible candidate for President of the United States.

There has also been a rash of other political leaders from various eastern political jurisdictions who have suddenly found it necessary to study the methods and customs of California. It is interesting to discover the large Southern California population centers happen to have more investigations than such locations at Shasta County.

THE VARIOUS POLITICAL sages arrive with super fanfare and meek, humble expressions on their faces. All questions about office seeking are met with a knowing smile, a returned question, and a carefully expressed statement about "getting the nation back on the track."

The Democratic fact-finding trips are countered by the President and top administrative officials who come to California for a "working vacation," a conference on a federal project, or to announce a new program which means hundreds of new jobs or some other great "public good" for a given area.

The two or three days before and after the important function are sprinkled with a round of very special social functions in location up to 300 miles away from the prime project.

There will be tapings on various television programs, meetings with rich members of the party faithful, a meal with labor leaders, a hand-shaking session at a plant gate, a speech at a local fair ground, a very special press conference for high school editors, a tour of a senior citizen center, a trip to Delano for pictures with a hungry farm worker, and a two hour lunch session with the editorial board of a major metropolitan newspaper.

EACH SUCH MEETING is begun with an oath of "no candidacy" and a pledge bring complete unity and harmony to the Democratic Party. The candidate will then introduce his wife, children, a long-lost fraternity brother living in the community, a former John Kennedy public relations staff member now acting as his consultant, the local county friends of the leader — and show a picture of his dog.

The major targets of these Potomac bards have been President Richard Nixon and his policies. They have zeroed in until recently on the Nixon war policy. Recent changes in the poll findings and loud screams from organized labor brought a switch to a combined attack on unemployment and the soft economy, with the war policy cited as the cause of the slump.

The candidates are joined on various platforms by members of the legislature, mayors, county chairmen, and other future office seekers. Each brings his own photographer for a quick file picture — just in case lightning happens to strike.

IT HAS BEEN THEORIZED perhaps not all these men are really candidates — rather part of a team effort to take news space away from Nixon.

This theory becomes more acceptable when it becomes apparent that a whole group of candidates have former Kennedy trouble shooters on their staff and they raise the same political issues without even a change in phrasing.

Perhaps money is so short they all have to use the same speech writer — who hasn't been given time to change his phrases.

Worthy Effort By San Rafael Church

In a time when "normal" adults are confused by the many issues of today, including religion, and their children even more confused, it is a pleasure to find out that people still worry about the not so "normal" child. The First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael is offering a class in Christian education for the mentally retarded boys and girls in Marin County. This church deserves recognition for their efforts through religious education to help these children cope with our confused world of today.

Fairfax Police Chief Deserves Backing

After all these years, there are still many references in all the media and from people outside the media, too, to McCarthyism and witchhunting. Still, the McCarthyism is practiced by the Fourth Estate to every day.

The I-J is still trying Chief James R. Orr in its headlines. If "executive sessions" are to protect employees when their transgressions, if indeed there exist any, are being discussed, what good does this do — if the news is leaked and no one is around to confirm or deny? How very convenient!

The things that are "alleged" and "reported" are printed — newsworthy, I'll grant — but McCarthyism and grossly unfair, nonetheless.

Well do I remember the inch-high red headlines when Chief Orr said a "no-no" when trying to extract his 13-year-old daughter from a place that was so unsavory that it was later closed down; on his own time, too. He was described as being "bleary-eyed" and the implications were that he was intoxicated. You will remember, too, that he was off duty.

I worked at City Hall for a couple of years and had much opportunity to observe the chief, and never did I ever note anything that would indicate that he was other than a gentleman — a very gentle gentleman — softspoken, courteous, and considerate . . .

To criticize Jim Orr because he hasn't cleaned out all the "hippies," the "long hairs," or whatever designation you may choose (all rather nebulous labels, world-wide — in Podunk, in New York, in San Francisco, everywhere. Some parents would tell you, "But these are our children!" And so many of them are! . . .

I hope that everyone who has been helped by Fairfax's courteous, helpful, efficient, trained (these guys are always going to school for more training!) police department will attend all meetings and hearings and back up the man who is responsible for the excellent way I feel the police department has been run.

Parents Now Have To Educate Children

I think Mr. Hugh M. Brown did pretty well in clearing up what one of your reporters found "mysterious" about the petition which was presented to the Mill Valley School Board in his letter appearing in last night's I-J (Sept. 30). However, to further clarify the point, I might add that the situation is so critical that my husband and myself have found it necessary to spend several hours daily working with our children (who attend Alto and Edna Maguire Schools in Mill Valley) just to give them an understanding of basic concepts, instill healthy study habits, and answer their questions, because we have found that they are not being taught these things in school due to overlarge and multi-grade classes and "new" teaching methods which just aren't working.

It seems that in the effort to utilize teaching concepts which they can label "modern, up to date, progressive," etc., the schools have completely lost sight of the basic formula for constructing a sound educational foundation. The concepts, themselves, are not entirely to blame, as properly applied, they could be entirely effective, but as the situation stands, they are resulting in confusion and frustration on the part of the children which has to result, eventually, in complete loss of interest when a child has tried his very best and only gets more confused for his efforts.

I'm sure there are many factors which have brought about the present situation, one of them being cuts in school budgets due to lack of funds. This is very discouraging since we are all aware of the constant increase in taxation that is called for to finance the school systems. The results that the taxpayers are paying more and more money for less and less education. Parents are having to undertake the job of educating their children themselves . . . Parents have always been and always will be a valuable asset to the success of school-oriented programs, but I doubt that there are many parents who have the time or energy to continue channeling energies into PTA projects, etc., while having to simultaneously devote considerable time daily to actual teaching. I know I can't.

Callous Hanoi Negotiators Use War Prisoners As Pawns

WASHINGTON — The callous and illegal treatment of U.S. prisoners of war in North Vietnam, violating nearly every provision of the Geneva Convention, has been a cunning tactic by Hanoi.

It is a cruel experience for the mothers, wives and relatives of the POWs and understandably they have been bringing pressure in every direction — Hanoi, Paris and Washington — to get their release.

Americans share their hurt and pain.

THE GREATEST CRUELTY of all is the way the Hanoi government and its negotiators in Paris have played upon the emotions of the American people and especially the families of the POWs in periodically appearing to offer release of the prisoners in return for U.S. troop withdrawals and then withdrawing the apparent offer after it had stirred hope and confusion.

Whenever Hanoi could find willing channels such as third-party emissaries, sympathetic reporters or peace-at-any-price politicans like Sen. George McGovern, they have assured them that if President Nixon would set a fixed date for troop withdrawal, the American prisoners would be on the way home.

Undoubtedly, Senator McGovern is totally sincere in reporting that this is what the Hanoi negotiators in Paris have said to him, but these negotiators have shown themselves totally insincere in what they alluringly offer.

They do say this to the McGoverns but say something quite different when they sit at the conference table in Paris.

They say one thing to those who do not have authority to negotiate and another thing to U.S. officials who have authority to negotiate.

THIS IS DECEPTIVE double talk and the release of American POWs will be achieved sooner when it is seen for what it is.

When he was in Paris this month, Senator McGovern went to see the Communist side and he said afterward that they "removed all doubt" in his mind that "our prisoners will be released if we withdraw our forces."

That was on Sept. 12, and since then McGovern has been demanding that the President accept this Hanoi offer forthwith.

But the Hanoi negotiators do not make this offer to the U.S. negotiators.

To McGovern they say that the release of the prisoners is tied only to troop withdrawal.

To the U.S. government they say that the release of prisoners is tied to the whole seven-point settlement proposals which are packed with other conditions.

ON SEPT. 16, Nguyen Thanh Le, speaking for the Hanoi negotiators, explicitly repudiated the "offer" which McGovern said removed all his doubts. Le said: "There are two fundamental problems — the military and the political — and they are tied one to the other."

Hanoi defined the military problem as U.S. troop withdrawal and defined the political problem as requiring the United States to withdraw its support from the Saigon government and give no further American economic or arms assistance.

Le had told Senator McGovern that prisoner release was conditional only upon troop withdrawal.

But Le told the U.S. government after he had seen McGovern that prisoner release was conditional upon several other things.

The Viet Cong seven-point proposal, Le told our officials, "forms a whole and it is indispensable to reach agreement on the whole package."

This is the way Hanoi has been using the prisoners as propaganda pawns, to inhumanely play upon the hopes and fears of their families in the United States. And unfortunately, the McGoverns have been playing into their hands.

BY NO MEANS NEUTRAL

Fascinating Possibility: Agnew As Columnist

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

WASHINGTON — You would expect any self-respecting newspaperman to seek a court injunction against it to protect the honor of his trade. You would assume any network executive would shiver at the idea as an invitation of the fox into the chicken coop. Most particularly, you would think anyone in the highly competitive columning business would see it as taking unfair advantage of publicity bought at public expense.

But I, for one, for the good of my country, hope Spiro Agnew does make the switch from politics to journalism.

IT IS NOT so outlandish as it seems. I cannot certify how long it has been gestating there in the vice president's mind, although it surfaced publicly at least as early as March, 1970, when he even rated a career in the Fourth Estate ahead of the presidency itself.

"I can't say I'm enraptured with the idea (of being President)," he said. "The thing that becomes increasingly attractive to me is a syndicated column." And a year later, he was still dropping hints to prospective employers, as when he not only volunteered but demanded to do the editing of his remarks on a CBS news commentary show following a Nixon speech.

Those are only a couple of the visible tips of this underlying journalistic ambition. Whatever has been going on privately, it has tickled into life rumors here and among his old acquaintances at Annapolis, Md., about succulent contract offers for his post-vice-presidential opinions.

IF YOU LIKE, you can see his whole campaign against the media (as currently staffed) as a buildup to his job-seeking among them. He beat the New York Times over the head, and it came around to running his thoughts unedited on its opposite-editorial page — as if he did not get enough exposure in the news columns. That is one way to answer his charges that the only opinion that gets printed is "radiclib" stuff out of the brows of East Coast pansies.

That was an untruth when he first uttered it, because he conveniently ignored the many other editorial outlets where the only opinion that gets printed is just as consistently his own kind. But it worked, and because it gave semi-official status to the prejudices of great crowds of other Americans, it created him a loyal audience of fans. So sometime in the future, when he sticks his press card in his golfing cap and goes calling on publishers, he will find many of them clamoring to print his wisdom. And those who don't clamor can be blackjacked niftily with his old accusations about framing-up to keep red-blooded Americanism out of circulation.

The subject arises now because the approach of the presidential campaign resurrects the question of whether Mr. Agnew will run again, and because after resting his speechwriters during the summer, he has renewed his headline hunt. Admittedly the headlines are not so big as they used to be, because it's getting to be old stuff, but he still bags them, and he still knows that the more outrageously he phrases his occasionally respectable thoughts, the more prominent the play they will get.

THE CAMPAIGN and the return of the roadshow are not unrelated. It would not be totally surprising to hear Agnew announce one day soon that he would not run again because he was going into nongovernmental punditry (also because he had a good contract and also had had a hint or two from across the alley at the White House). But it is more credible that he is setting himself up to go either way next year.

By stepping up his oratory, Agnew virtually guarantees that he will be retained on the ticket as long as Mr. Nixon needs to cater to the right wing of his party. But by the same showmanship, he increases his star quality and market value in case the President decides he needs to pacify the progressives in his party by tapping someone like Virginia's Gov. Linwood Holton. Certainly anyone as politically sensitive as Mr. Nixon would smooth the way for his current vice president to exit gracefully, making it appear his own choice whether it was or not.

Agnew is not the only person who will be indignant at these suggestions. My colleagues far and wide are likely to resent my giving a modest plug to the professional prospects of one more interloper, this one their sworn enemy. But consider, gentlemen, that the longer the vice president remains vice president, the better his actuarial chance of becoming President. I promote him as a journalist out of pure patriotism.

Apartment Opponents Might Take Cue From Larkspur

Corte Madera residents opposed to apartment buildings in their community might take a few lessons from their neighbors in Larkspur.

The case in point is the 630-unit Meadowsweet Station development (labeled a row of barracks by one town official) east of Highway 101 and south of the H. H. Koch and Sons luggage plant.

Urged on by homeowners' groups, about 180 residents packed Granada School a couple weeks ago to voice their concerns to the town's planning commission.

Their objections — increases in traffic, population and taxes — were well taken but possibly not taken soon enough.

THOSE 180 RESIDENTS, if they are to succeed in stopping the project, have many long hours of work ahead. They must show why the development would be detrimental to their town instead of relying on a mass outpouring of simply "we don't like it."

As demonstrated in Larkspur, the time to stop — or at least forestall — a development is months before it is presented to town officials.

Organized opposition to apartments in Larkspur took more than a few bloody noses fighting developers before coming up with a means of controlling growth.

Faced with a less than cooperative council (much like Corte Madera's) the residents, spearheaded by the Larkspur Town Meeting, demanded and received a review of the city's master plan.

It was their argument, supported to some extent by facts and figures that no one knew the "proper" esthetic and economic population for Larkspur and that it was time to find out.

WHAT THAT master plan review will produce is anyone's guess, but at least it has given the city a legal tool for refusing to consider large developments.

It has also given the city an excuse to rezone certain properties from residential use to some other if the review so recommends.

Already one large development — the fortress-like structure for 600 persons atop Bon Air Hill — has been shelved until the master plan review on residential zones is undertaken.

Another major project which has been shuffled over to the planning consultant is the Tiscornia Estate's development plan for its extensive holdings.

Whether either one or both will be altered or abandoned as result of the master plan review can't be said, but at least development proposals aren't running rampant through city hall as they were a year ago.

THE PEOPLE'S SCHOOLS

Special Schools For All —Except Top Students

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

The State of California mandates and helps finance an assortment of schools for the academically backward; but a San Francisco high school for the academically excellent has been attacked in court as a case of illegal discrimination.

Suit was filed last week by the Youth Law Center, an Office of Economic Opportunity agency, to force the San Francisco Board of Education to convert Lowell High School into a neighborhood comprehensive high school.

Even since the 19th century, Lowell has been the high school for San Francisco's top students. It admits boys and girls from throughout the city on the basis of their academic scores. It is strictly an academic high school, preparing students for college, and has no vocational courses.

This, claims the suit filed for the Youth Law Center, makes Lowell discriminatory.

SPECIAL SCHOOLS are provided under state law for mentally handicapped students, physically handicapped students, and other types of "exceptional students." But "exceptional" does not include exceptionally bright.

These special schools receive special funding from the state. But there is no extra state funding for facilities for the brilliant students, the academically outstanding. Local school districts sometimes try to provide special programs for these students, but they must do so within their own financial structure — they get no extra money from the state.

San Francisco has put extra funds into Lowell High School, making possible advanced science, mathematics and language courses that are not offered in the city's other high schools.

The Youth Law Center charges that in doing so, the board of education "provides Lowell with the best teachers, the most money, the newest and most sophisticated equipment, facilities and resources and a wide variety of courses, teaching methods and academic opportunities available at no other high school."

Susanne Martinez, Youth Law Center attorney who filed the suit, said this setup denies equal opportunity for all students in the city.

THE ASSORTMENT of special schools established under state law for less able learners provide special equipment, facilities and faculty to make it possible for these students to receive training that is not offered in the ordinary comprehensive high school.

Additionally, if suitable special educational facilities for such students are not available in the local public school system, the students may be sent to private schools and the state will pick up a major portion of their tuition, with the school district where they reside being required to pay the rest.

The act goes even farther. It provides that, even though the county or school district has a special class for the particular type of handicapped student, he may be sent to a private school — at public expense — if it is determined that the class is not adequate for his needs.

THUS, THE STATE already is paying tuition at private schools for physically and mentally handicapped and "exceptional" students for whom it also is providing special public schools — and this without any "voucher system."

If, however, a local high school fails to offer sufficiently advanced courses for a very bright student, the parents in most cases must either "make do" with what the school has or send the child to a private school at their own expense.

An exception is in San Francisco, where advanced courses tailored for the top students are provided at Lowell High. But that, say the OEO layers, is illegal discrimination.

Oil Spill Removal Unit Prototype Is On Display

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — The shiny new prototype of an oil spill removal device, which resembles the paddlewheel of an old riverboat, went on display yesterday in San Francisco near famed Fisherman's Wharf.

Called "Clean Sweep" by its developer, Lockheed Missiles & Space Co. of Sunnyvale, the four-foot diameter, seven-foot long unit is mounted between the twin hulls of a catamaran.

The Clean Sweep concept is a series of parallel metal discs joined by overlapping metal vanes set in slots around the outside edge of the "drum."

As the unit rotates in a slick, oil is drawn into the drum and adheres to the sides of the discs. Wiper blades inside wipe oil from the discs. The oil runs into a central channel inside the unit's axle and is pumped to storage.

Napa Couple To Have Exhibit

The Sandcastle Gallery in Point Reyes Station will hold an exhibit from Oct. 17 to Nov. 14 featuring the works of William and Lucy Case of Napa.

The gallery is open Thursday through Sunday from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Closed Meeting Is Moved Up

Today's closed meeting of the Tiburon City Council to discuss a possible condemnation suit against Leonard B. Fleischman for possession of land at Strawberry Cove has been moved up from 6:30 to 6 p.m.

The meeting was called after Fleischman turned down the city's offer to buy the land, site of a proposed apartment project, for $125,000.

Fleischman told the council he wanted either $250,000 or another piece of property in Southern Marin on which he could build 72 apartments or 20 houses.

Deputies Think Burglaries Solved In Arrest Of San Francisco Youth

Tiburon sheriff's deputies believe they have solved 10 burglaries in the Reedlands area with the arrest of a 17-year-old San Francisco youth.

Lt. Angelo J. Mecchi said yesterday Hugo Rolando Marinez has been cited to Marin juvenile authorities for allegedly burglarizing several homes in the area since late September. He also is suspected of being responsible for others, Mecchi said.

He said deputy Norman Johnson began investigating a rash of burglaries Sept. 27 and obtained a description of Martinez from several residents who said they had seen him in the neighborhood.

On Thursday, Mecchi said, plainclothesmen blanketed the Reedlands area, but Martinez did not show up. He did appear Friday and was taken in for questioning, after which he was cited on suspicion of burglary and released to his father.

Mecchi said Martinez, a native of Guatemala, could not speak English and had to be questioned through an interpreter.

No propeerty from any of the burglaries was recovered, Mecchi said. The thefts mostly involved petty cash and samll amounts of jewelry. No total amount of loss was available.

ART REVIEW

McChesney Art At Sonoma State

By ADA GARFINKEL

The sculpture of Mary Fuller McChesney of Petaluma reminds one of pre-Columbian art — and this is her source of inspiration — but only its forms, not its ethnic or religious sources.

Thirty of this sculptor's pieces are handsomely installed in the spacious, high-ceilinged Darwin Gallery on the Sonoma State College campus at Rohnert Park, through Oct. 31.

Among Mrs. McChesney's most striking and complex works is "Great Southern," which won a merit award in the 1971 San Francisco Art Festival. Another, entitled "Sun Moon Stars Rain," is conceived as an anthropomorphized four-figured group entity in an overlapping and intertwining marriage rite of bodies, arms, and legs.

Many of this artist's sculptures are of animals — a lion, an otter, a frog. However, two related pieces, entitled "Sisyphus #1" and "Sisyphus #2" are about the mythological Greek king who was doomed to roll a heavy stone endlessly uphill, and were inspired by a poem by the late French poet, Albert Camus.

In one case, it was an event such as the devastating earthquake in the Yugoslavian city of Skopje some years ago that inspired a highly angular and attenuated death figure formed of crusty, rock-and-stone compound.

In her most compelling work, it is the quality of fierceness that is so arresting. She achieves this effect by use of tiny, white, saw-toother sea shells as teeth and eyes for her figures. Or by the use of railroad spikes which pierce the "Great Southern" diety.

Mrs. McChesney's favorite material is lightweight concrete which she pours in large pieces and then carves with a knife or axe, "depending upon how long the work takes and how hard the block has become" — and which she likes because this material is so suitable for outdoor placement.

On occasion, however, a special find or a gift will combine into a new product, as when musician Lu Watters presented her with an anchor chain and her husband, painter Robert McChesney, found a long piece of redwood, with both gifts ending up as a carved saxophone player . . . with an anklet of chain.

Mrs. McChesney also is a writer — short stories, mystery novels and an art book which will be published in 1972. Some of her ideas she records on tape while doing routine cutting or filing.

There is no conflict for her in the two different media. "There is sort of a feedback — while my hands are working, I am thinking, " she says.

Author, 90, And His Dog To Graduate

A 90-year-old author from Los Angeles is among 11 persons who will graduate with their dogs Saturday from Guide Dogs for the Blind, North of San Rafael.

James B. Garfield, a former free lance radio actor during the 1930s, has authored several books, including "Follow My Leader," written for nine to 12-year-olds and required reading in many elementary schools.

Others who will be graduating at the 2:30 p.m. outdoor ceremonies are Charlotte O'Mara of Alameda, Betty Beck of Portland, Alan Blanchard of Berkeley, Della Germolus of Oakland, John Ludwig of Millersville, Md., Dolores Mann of Los Gatos, Robert Rekart of El Paso, Tex., Jerico Skinner of Red Bluff, Adolph Smith of Brainerd, Minn., and Mary Thompson of Half Moon Bay.

Two Marin 4-H members, Marianne Hersko of San Rafael and Katie Haught of Novato, will be on hand to present guide dogs they have raised for the school.

Marin Alternative Sets Bond Meeting

The Marin Alternative will meet Oct. 14 at 8 p.m. at the College of Marin to discuss taking a position on the college district's proposed $16.7 million November bond election.

Chou Tells Yanks Mao Opened The Thaw

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Premier Chou En-lai called every American visiting or living in Communist China to a meeting Tuesday night at the Great Hall of the People in Peking. Following is a report on the meeting telephoned by Julian Schuman, who works as a translator in Peking, to UPI in Tokyo.)

By JULIAN SCHUMAN

PEKING (UPI) — Premier Chou En-lai told about 60 Americans Tuesday night that Chinese Communist Party chairman Mao Tse-tung himself made the decision to invite the U.S. table tennis team to China, paving the way for a thaw in Peking-Washington relations.

Chou met with what Chinese officials said was every American living in or visiting mainland China in the Great Hall of the People, the same room where he received the American players last spring.

Chou's talk to the group, who included visiting Black Panther leader Huey P. Newton and former U.S. State Department official John Service, was a free-wheeling discourse on China's foreign policy. He did not refer to the current internal situation which has been the subject of considerable speculation abroad.

During the two-hour meeting Chou said:

China agrees with President Nixon that this is now an era of negotiations, but Chinese leaders also believe that, if necessary, it is an era of armed struggle.

China is willing to negotiate its border dispute with Russia, using the 19th century territorial treaties as the basis for talks.

China is keeping an open mind on Nixon's visit: "It is all right if the talks succeed and it is all right if the talks fail."

No matter how far negotiations go, China will never let her guard down and stop preparing for war.

Chou said the decision to invite the U.S. table tennis team was made by Mao at a time when the attitude of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and the U.S. State Department was to wait for a while. He said he was looking over the first foreign ministry dispatch to the U.S. team in Japan when Mao decided on an immediate invitation.

"There were two messages, but the world only knows the second," Chou said.

Discussing Nixon's visit, Chou said, "He publicly expressed his willingness to come to China and negotiate. We had made no response, it would not have been proper for a state so antagonistic. Therefore we agreed to (presidential adviser Henry) Kissinger's coming.

"For us, it is all right if the talks succeed and it is all right if they fail," Chou said.

At this point, about 30 minutes before a simultaneous announcement was to be made in Washington and Peking, Chou told the Americans of the presidential assistant's second visit to Peking.

"This time Kissinger is coming openly," Chou said.

He said Peking's willingness to negotiate was nothing new.

"We did this (negotiated) with the arch enemy Chiang Kai-shek for almost ten years," he said. He also cited the present negotiations going on in Korea and the negotiations with Russia on the territorial disputes.

Although critical of the stationing Soviet troops on the Chinese borders, Chou said China's basic policy was to negotiate with Moscow.

"There are one million (Soviet) troops on our borders — army, air force, naval units in the coastal areas, nuclear weapons and guided missiles," Chou said. "They have sent 300,000 troops into the Peoples Republic of Mongolia, including missile units. The Mongolian government did not behave like the Czechs, so what is the purpose? It obviously is against China, to create a state of tension along our borders.

"Nevertheless, our policy is to negotiate to solve the boundary questions and bring about good neighborly relations," Chou said. "Even when Russian troops were massed on the borders, we still received (Premier Alexei N.) Kosygin on Sept. 9, 1969 at the Peking airport."

When Kosygin was in China then, Chou said, Peking called

Demos Chop Up Marin In State Remap Plan

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SACRAMENTO — Senate Democrats today unveiled a radical reapportionment plan for the next decade that would give Marin four state senators, split three of its cities, and lump much of its population into an irregular district with San Francisco and pieces of San Mateo and Alameda counties.

Other parts of Marin would become part of a huge district running almost 200 miles north into Shasta County.

Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, would be thrown into a new Fourth District with Sen. Fred W. Marler Jr., R-Redding, a popular and powerful conservative who has represented many of the same counties in Behr's new district since 1965.

Both Behr and Marler immediately denounced the plan by the Democrats, who as the majority party could ram it through the Legislature — but would need votes from Republicans to overrride a veto promised by Gov. Ronald Reagan if he found the plan is designed to increase the Democrats' current narrow majority in each house.

The existing combined at-large districts in San Francisco of Democratic Sen. George Moscone and Republican Sen. Milton Marks would extend far into Marin, as well as San Mateo and Alameda counties. The 1970 federal census found the San Francisco districts the most under-populated in the state.

The already controversial plan was disclosed at a press briefing by the Senate Elections and Reapportionment Committee, which will hear it at 9:30 a.m. tomorrow. Prompt committee endorsement is expected, but a tough and long fight on the upper house floor appeared certain.

The boundary between the Fourth District (Behr and Marler) and the combined Ninth and Tenth districts (Moscone and Marks) would run up the middle of Richardson Bay to the Richardson Bay Bridge, north along Highway 101 to Lucas Valley Road, west along Lucas Valley Road for a few miles, then west of Fairfax to Kent Lake, back to the Bolinas Ridge, south to Pan Toll, and down Panoramic Highway to Rocky Point. Thus. Moscone and Marks — would represent Sausalito, Marin City, Tamalpais and Homestead Valleys, Mill Valley, Alto, Corte Madera and Larkspur west of Highway 101, Kentfield, Kent Woodlands, San Rafael west of Highway 101, San Anselmo, Ross, Terra Linda, Fairfax, Sleepy Hollow and Muir Beach.

Behr and Marler, until they face one another in an election, would represent Belvedere, Tiburon, Strawberry, Corte Madera and Larkspur east of Highway 101, San Quentin, San Rafael east of Highway 101, Santa Ventia, the north side of Lucas Valley including Marinwood, Novato, Woodacre, Stinson Beach, Bolinas and the rest of West Marin.

Behr's existing district, which he was elected to represent last year, includes all of Marin and Napa counties and most of Solano County. But it is short of the ideal district — under the one-man, one-vote principle — by 51,489, thus requiring its extension elsewhere to pick up population.

The intricate domino game played behind closed doors by

PROPOSED GERRYMANDER — Democrats in the California Senate propose splitting Marin County and the Fourth Senatorial District represented by Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, among four senate seats. The Ninth and Tenth at-large districts in San Francisco would be extended up the west side of Highway 101 to Lucas Valley Road, splitting San Rafael. Behr's district would bulge northward into Tehama County, and Behr would lose southern Solano County to the Seventh District.

Marin Asks Halt Of Nuclear Test

By WAT TAKESHITA

The Marin County Board of Supervisors voted unanimously yesterday to ask Congress and the President to halt the five-megaton underground nuclear explosion planned for this month in the Aleutians, (Other supervisors stories, page 6.)

The supervisors, expressing concern that the huge explosion on Amchitka Island might be a danger to the Bay Area, acted after a "stop the bomb" delegation told them the explosion might activate the San Andreas Fault with disastrous result.

Spokesmen for several anti-bomb groups conceded that such disaster was not a certainty but it was entirely possible and asked supervisors to call a halt to the nuclear test until the impact of the explosion could be studied.

PIRATES BEAT GIANTS, 9-5, FOR PENNANT

Bulletin

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Pirates beat the San Francisco Giants today 9-5 to win the National League pennant.

Richie Hebner, yesterday's hitting hero, and Al Oliver powered the Pirates to their third straight win behind the sterling relief pitching of 21-year-old Bruce Kison and veteran Dave Guisti.

After the Giants tagged starter Steve Blass for five runs, including homers by Willie McCovey and Chris Speier, Kison came on to hurl 4 2-3 runless ball. Meanwhile, the host nine parleyed three-run homers by Hebner and Oliver to win going away.

Marin City Firehouse Bids Thrown Out

Marin County supervisors yesterday tossed out all bids for the new Marin City firehouse and sheriff's substation because the cost is 30 per cent over the estimate.

M. Worden Builder of Mill Valley bid $95,160, as compared with the architect's estimate of $74,800. Other bids ranged to a high of $107,777.

Michael A. Chrystal, senior administrative analyst in the county administrator's office said the contractors apparently raised their cost estimates because they fear vandalism and theft during construction.

"I think this talk of vandalism is nonsense," said Michael Wornum. He wondered whether the county could take over the insurance against vandalism and thus cut the bid price.

"I just don't feel we should proceed at 30 per cent over estimate," said Arnold M. Baptiste.

"I'd say throw out the bids and see what's wrong," suggested John F. McInnis.

The supervisors rejected all bids and asked County Administrator John F. Barrows to see how the construction cost could be reduced.

Safety Of Explosion In Court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal court intervention in the Cannikin nuclear test on Alaska's Amchitka Island could lead to the release of secret government papers alleging the underground blast would seriously damage the environment, according to Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska.

The U.S. Court of Appeals yesterday ordered the U.S. District Court to reconsider its refusal to halt the test tentatively planned for "early" this month. No specific date has been named.

The blast would be the most powerful ever set off underground.

"The decision opens the way for release and publication of the secret studies conducted by the government, which are believed to recommend that the Cannikin test be canceled be-

Johnson Quits Sausalito Schools

By PAT ANGLE

Nathaniel Johnson yesterday made good on his often repeated threats to resign from the Sausalito School Board, doing so just as the board was about to oust him for excessive absenteeism and possible residence outside the district.

Trustee Robert A. Thompson told the Independent-Journal that Johnson, the former board president, had been warned of the board's intentions by Supt. Lawrence A. Lindberg.

"Johnson knew the board was becoming increasingly dissatisfied with his nonparticipation and nonattendance at meetings and more and more suspicious that he did not live in the district," Thompson said.

"It was a question of whether he resigned first or was asked to resign."

Lindberg, who has been looking into the matters of Johnson's absenteeism and residence, confirmed Thompson's statements.

Johnson could not be reached Monday, yesterday or today to comment on his resignation or Thompson's allegations.

Although Thompson, one of the school board's three conservative members, agreed that he and Johnson had nearly always disagreed on political issues in the district, he said politics had nothing to do with the board's plans.

"It had come to the point where Johnson almost never came to meetings and consequently did not represent the interests of the people he was elected to serve," the trustee told the I-J.

District records show that Johnson missed 11 out of 30

Selassie In Peking

HONG KONG (UPI) — Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia arrived today in Peking on a state visit to China at the invitation of the Chinese government, Communist China's party newspaper said today.

Desegregation Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Education and Labor Committee has broken a deadlock of more than two months and approved a $1.5 billion bill to help schools desegregate, rejecting President Nixon's request that none of the money be spent for busing children.

The panel approved the bill on a 24-3 vote Tuesday. But the Nixon antibusing proposal is certain to be offered as an amendment to the measure when it comes before the House. It is likely the amendment will be approved.

Hirohito Honored

LONDON (UPI) — Emperor Hirohito today received one of the highest honors of science-fellowship in the Royal Society. He is now entitled to add the letters F.R.S. to his name, a distinction cherished by scientists the world over.

As the emperor drove from breakfast at Buckingham Palace to the ceremony at nearby St. James' Palace, a man leaned from the crowd of 200 and shouted abuse at the emperor. The man, who refused to identify himself to police, said he was a war prisoner of the Japanese and had been tortured for three months.

The rest of the crowd was subdued but interested and applauded as Hirohito, in a black morning coat, descended from the carriage and was escorted by the Duke of Beaufort to the ceremony in the flower banked throne room.

He's Seen All 50

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has become the first President to visit all 50 states while in office, but few residents of the last state on his itinery marked the event.

Nixon attended a reception for Republican Party fund raisers Tuesday night at the estate of wealthy businessman John W. Rollins outside Wilmington, Del., completing the cycle of 50 states in less than 33 months.

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon's visits were "consistent with the philosophy that he holds that the President should get out to visit the country."

One Of 25 Is Drunk

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One out of every 25 drivers on the road between 6 p.m. and 3 a.m. are legally intoxicated — "not just drinking but drunk."

Administrator Douglas W. Toms of the Federal Traffic Safety Program gave the statistic Tuesday in calling for a wide-ranging attack on highway deaths.

He said the attack should include a crackdown on drunken drivers, probationary licenses for youthful drivers and restricting some older drivers to daylight driving.

Student Loans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Loans worth more than $1 billion went to 1.1 million college students during the last school year under the government's guaranteed student loan program, the U.S. Office of Education said today.

These were the highest annual loan and student totals since the program, the government's largest student aid plan, began in 1965.

War Victory 'Close'

TOKYO (UPI) — Soviet President Nikolai Podgorney told North Vietnam's leaders today that they are close to victory in the Indochina war, and that Soviet military aid will continue.

"The liberation movement of the Indochinese peoples has been so successful that the future victory is already well in sight and the day of victory is not far off," Podgorney said in address in Hanoi.

The text of his speech was broadcast by North Vietnam's official news agency VNA and heard in Tokyo.

Poland Offers U.N. A Stand-By Force

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Poland offered the United Nations Tuesday a stand-by force of its army for possible use in peace-keeping operations.

Poland was the second Soviet Bloc nation to offer its troops for U.N. peace keeping, the other being Czechoslovakia two years ago.

36 Illegal Aliens Jailed In Banuelos Plant Raid

GARDENA, Calif. (UPI) — Federal agents raided the Mexican food packing plant owned by U.S. treasurer-nominee Mrs. Romana Banuelos Tuesday and arrested 36 illegal aliens.

About 35 other workers in Ramona's Food Products Co. escaped, agents said, by running out side and back doors and scrambling over a six-foot chain link fence.

Mrs. Banuelos, who was working in the plant at the time, said she did not know illegal aliens were employed by her company.

She said the raid may have been "part of an attempt by Democrats to block my nomination as treasurer of the United States."

The firm was founded by Mrs. Banuelos, 46, and she now serves as president, while her husband, Alexander, is secretary-treasurer.

President Nixon last month tapped Mrs. Banuelos, who built her $6 million yearly business empire from a taco stand she opened 22 years ago, as the next treasurer.

"I am not doing anything wrong," Mrs. Banuelos said. "If I asked every person who came to us for a job about their immigration papers, I'd start a fight."

Six agents of the Bureau of Immigration and Naturalization took part in the raid. Of those arrested, 27 were women and nine were men. They were bused to the U.S. border station at San Ysidro, officials said.

An immigration spokesman said there was no law against hiring illegal aliens.

George K. Rosenberg, district director of the Immigration Service, said it was the sixth raid at the Mexican food packaging plant in three years.

He said that in August, 1969 he sent Mrs. Banuelos' company a letter asking it to stop employing illegal aliens.

Mrs. Banuelos said she did not receive the letter.

Tonight's Agenda

Modular housing and proposed revisions to the city's park plaza plan will be among items considered by the Sausalito Planning Commission when it meets at 8 p.m. today in city hall.

Goldwater Views Peking To U.N.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., believes the admission of mainland China will make the United Nations a sounding board of communism.

Goldwater said in a Senate speech Tuesday that he believed the admission of China would lead to successful campaigns for the admission of North Vietnam, North Korea, and East Germany.

But he said he saw nothing "devious or evil" in President Nixon's plan to visit Peking.

"I would rather see President Nixon in that particular role than any of our former presidents or any of our softheaded liberal diplomats," the 1964 Republican presidential nominee said.

Hickel Hedges On Support To Nixon

NEW YORK (UPI) — Walter Hickel hedged Tuesday when asked if he would support for a second term President Nixon, the man who fired him as secretary of the interior last November.

"I don't want to lock myself in, or lock myself out, without knowing just what the alternatives are," Hickel said at a news conference in answer to a question whether he would back Nixon for re-election.

Aircraft Bomb Try In Beirut

BEIRUT (UPI) — An explosion ripped through a pile of suitcases today just before they were to have been loaded aboard a Royal Jordanian airliner for a flight to Amman with 47 passengers.

The plane had arrived from Amman two hours late and its tardiness apparently kept the time bomb from exploding in flight. The passengers were in the airport lounge at the time.

"It was a miracle," the airliner pilot said. "The plane had been scheduled to take off for Amman two hours ago. If we had moved on time we would have blown up in midair somewhere over the Mediterranean."

The luggage was aboard an airport trolley and had reached the wingtip of the plane, a French-built Caravelle, when it blew up.

The plane was not damaged and there was no immediate report of injuries to airport personnel.

Security officials said the explosive device had been hidden in one of the suitcases on the trolley.

Lebanese intelligence officers began to question passengers immediately after the incident.

Novato Republican Women Will Meet

Flournoy Asks A Minitax Bill

SPEAKER BOB MORETTI
New blast at Reagan

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — State Controller Houston Flournoy today urged Gov. Ronald Reagan and the legislature to forget tax reform temporarily and pass a mini-tax bill to save California from another "Great Depression" fiscal crisis.

The Republican official and keeper of the state's checkbook said payroll withholding must be enacted immediately and additional taxes raised "even if no immediate agreement can be reached on tax reform."

Meantime, one of the tax reform negotiators, Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco, accused Reagan of attempting to "drive a wedge" between himself and Democratic Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti.

Both Moretti and Moscone are potential Democratic contenders for governor in 1974.

Flournoy's demand for approval of a minimum tax bill to ease the state over a $330 million budget deficit and do away with the need to issue tax anticipation notes followed by one day collapse of tax reform negotiations between the governor and legislators.

Reagan and Moretti declared they were ready and willing to resume the bargaining over property tax relief but voiced little optimism that deep philosophical differences could be overcome.

The governor leaves Friday for a two-week tour of the Orient.

The governor insisted at a news conference Tuesday he did not "storm out" of the 17th negotiation session on Monday but declared he told the Democrats that Republicans had made a last offer and "if we were to have property tax relief and tax reform, it was up to them."

Reagan said he left the meeting swiftly to catch a plane for a Los Angeles speech but that he hoped the talks wouldn't collapse and told negotiators he was prepared to return to the bargaining table.

Asked whether the Republicans' offer, submitted shortly before talks broke off represented their final bid, Reagan replied, "That's it."

Moretti and the governor agreed that controls over how much taxes local governments could raise was the issue which finally broke the talks. Reagan said Moretti later asked for and he agreed to send the speaker specifics of the Republican spending control proposal but indicated little optimism this would bring the Democrats back to talk formally.

Demos Chop Up Marin In State Remap Plan

the committee since January, however, forced other changes in Behr's district as lines were pushed around the map to satisfy political needs.

Behr lived in Mill Valley until early this year, whe he moved to Tiburon, thus he already lives in his proposed new district.

Marler, as of only last Friday, was supposed to be thrown into the First District, represented by Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka. But Collier successfully demanded that the committee put Marler elsewhere, so Behr's district boundary was bulged in a wedge extending north to take in Marler's home in Redding. Collier's district would continue to include virtually all of Sonoma County.

Behr told the Independent-Journal that the plan "represents the finest flowering of gerrymandering." He said "it would be difficult to conceive of a district drawn with less community of interests."

(The Sacramento Valley counties in Behr's proposed new district are predominantly devoted to timber, agriculture, cattle and dairy industry, and have little in common with Bay Area counties.)

Noting that Marin traditionalally was the population anchor of the Fourth District, Behr said under the Democratic plan the county "will be one-fifth of a district dominated by San Francisco and one-fifth of a second district which moves so far north that it has to be seen to be believed."

Including Redding in the district "is a real compliment to Senator Marler," Behr said, "since it obviously means that Senator Collier does not dare face him as a potential threat in the next election."

Behr urged people "who are as appalled as I with the Democratic plan" to protest immediately to the elections and reapportionment committee and its chairman, Sen. Mervyn M. Dymally, D-Los Angeles.

Marler, who holds the influential position of Senate minority leader, told the I-J that the Democrats' plan was "using Marin County to supply population to satisfy other political requirements." The senator, whose own Second District was shifted to downtown Los Angeles to carve out a Mexican-American district, said "it makes no sense to cut up Marin County and stick it in with agricultural counties."

Such a highly disparate district would face "a great danger of constant internal conflicts," Marler said.

Moscone, Democratic leader of the Senate, assured the I-J that "there was no effort to hurt Behr, but to help Behr." Moscone said putting Behr in a district with Marler should be "a matter of indifference" to Behr because the Marin senator could defeat Marler.

Moscone predicted that all of the senators except Marler will accept the Democratic plan "at least in a grumbling fashion." As for Marler, he said, "fate picked him" as the sacrifice to satisfy the population shift requiring another Los Angeles district.

Marks declined to comment on the reapportionment plan, saying he needed more time to study it.

Behr's new district would have 498,437 persons, 391 less than the ideal district, or, off the ideal by only .08 per cent.

The new district would include all of Butte, Colusa, Glenn, Napa, Sutter, and Tehama counties, and portions of Marin, Sonoma, Solano, Yolo and Shasta counties. The Sonoma portion would be a band along the bay shoreline.

With 186,688 registered voters in the new district, party percentages would be 51.3 per cent Democratic and 44.6 per cent Republican, a slight gain in Republican registration over the percentage in Behr's existing district.

In Marin, 92,935 residents would be in the new Fourth District, and 113,103, in the Moscone-Marks at-large district.

Their district, now limited to San Francisco, also would include Burlingame, Hillsborough and parts of Daly City, South San Francisco, Millbrae and San Mateo in San Mateo County. In Alameda County, it would include the unincorporated black ghetto near San Leandro.

The new Ninth-Tenth District would give Democrats the registration edge with 59 per cent of the voters.

Still unclear was whether Behr and Marler would have to run in next year's election, since both were elected only last year to four-year terms. Legislative Counsel George Murphy has advised that senators in even-numbered districts will not have to run again next year, even though their districts may be reapportioned out from under them.

Murphy, however, has been challenged successfully before in court tests, and his ruling in this sensitive issue is almost certain to be tested as well.

Also due for a clash in the Legislature is Moscone's hope to switch the number of his district from the Tenth to the Ninth so he can be reelected next year and have a "free ride" in 1974 to campaign for governor. However, Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, D-North Hollywood, already has stated publicly he will oppose such a move — since as an assemblyman he has to run every two years, and he also is shooting at the governorship in 1974.

The precedent for dividing Marin into separate legislative districts was set four years ago when Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, was given Marin south of Novato to add to his western San Francisco district.

Congressional reapportionment still has not been unveiled, but Mailliard's district is expected to take in the rest of Marin this time.

Also pending disclosure is the Democratic plan for Assembly districts. Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, is expected to lose some of his Sonoma County territory, but retain all of Marin.

Kentfield Trustees Work On Bylaws

Kentfield School District trustees began reviewing and updating board bylaws at a special workshop meeting last night.

Supt. Anthony G. Bachich said the board will meet again at 8 p.m. tomorrow in Wolfe Grade School, to continue updating the district's policy handbook, which has not bee revised since 1967. He predicted that up to eight sessions will be needed to complete the review.

Richmond-San Rafael Span Traffic Up

Traffic on the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge totaled 617,948 vehicles in June, up from 569,929 in June 1970. Revenue totaled $464,320, down from $464,709 the preceding June because of toll reductions.

In the year ending June 30, 6,857,616 vehicles crossed the bridge, up from 6,340,467. Revenue for the year amounted to $5,124,743, down from $5,210,211 the preceding year.

Big Post Offices Will Be Remodeled

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Postmaster General Winton M. Blount today announced the U.S. Postal Service will spend $40 million to improve lighting, heating, air conditioning, toilets and eating facilities in 800 of the nation's largest post offices.

"In all candor it is overdue," Blount said. "Some of our postal employes have worked for years in unsuitable or unsafe or unsavory surroundings. They deserve a good working environment and I have ordered a top priority effort to see that they have it."

Wornum and a second by Peter R. Arrigoni, Jr., supervisors approved a resolution asking the President and Congress to halt the experimental five-megaton blast because it may be a threat to the Bay Area and to wildlife in the Aleutians.

Chairman Louis H. Baar argued that the protestors should appeal to congressmen in Washington, not to county supervisors, because nuclear tests are federal actions and completely outside the realm of county supervisors. However, Baar voted a "reluctant yes" on the resolution to make it unanimous.

Paul Giampaoli of Ross, speaking for Concerned Citizens of Marin and the Party of the People of Marin, warned supervisors that the Atomic Energy Commission had planned the underground blast on Amchitka Island on Oct. 10, but the date had been postponed until later in the month.

The island is only 57 miles from the northern end of San Andreas fault and could trigger earth movements that could slough the Bay Area into the ocean or cause a disastrous tidal wave, said Giampaoli.

He said the government has proclaimed Amchitka Island as a natural wildlife refuge. "Sea and wildlife is in danger of extinction."

"I want to know what safety precautions have been taken," said Giampaoli. "I don't wanna be poisoned by fallout or pushed into the ocean. You are the only ones we can go to for help."

Other speakers who urged a halt to the bomb were Greg Fearon, student body vice president at College of Marin; Arthur Lisch of Novato, Party of the People of Marin; and Barbara Bloomquist, who said she represents Another Mother for Peace.

In moving for a halt to the test, Wornum said he can certainly see possibility of danger in view of reports of nerve gas being disposed of underground and fallout damaging and killing livestock. "I think this is playing Russian roulette with our environment."

Arrigoni added that the government should provide the county with a report on the environmental impact of the Amchitka blast, if such a study has been made.

The antibomb delegation of about 20 applauded the resolution by the supervisors.

Oakland Man Leaps To Death

An Oakland man leapt to his death from a point near the South Tower of the Golden Gate Bridge yesterday while a bridge employee watched.

The California Highway Patrol said Rhey Bartlett, 32, stopped his car in a northbound lane at about 2 p.m. and scaled the railing while a painter, William Gavery, watched.

The body was recovered a short time later by a fishing boat and taken to Fort Point, San Francisco.

Film On Hopper At Sonoma State

"The American Dreamer," a film depicting the lifestyle of actor-director Dennis Hopper, will be shown in Ives Hall at Sonoma State College Friday, Saturday and Sunday at 7:30 p.m. and 9:30 p.m.

The film, sponsored by the World Peace Organization, is a first-run production being shown at colleges rather than at commercial theaters. The film was produced by Lawrence Schiller and L. M. (Kit) Carson.

cause of its harm to the environment," Gravel said in a statement after the Appellate decision.

The unanimous, unsigned opinion by the three-judge court found that District Judge George L. Hart erred when he ruled in the government's favor in a suit brought by seven conservation groups. They charged that the Atomic Energy Commission did not meet standards set by the National Environmental Policy Act when it evaluated the effects of the $190 million explosion.

Critics claim the test could set off earthquakes, cause tidal waves in the Pacific and endanger marine and wildlife. But the government, which acknowledges that it would be too powerful for the Nevada test site, claims it would not harm the environment.

The appeals court said Hart accepted the government's argument that Congress' appropriation of money to conduct the test constituted "a conclusive determination" that the AEC had complied with all its obligations.

Furthermore, it said his summary judgment against the conservationists erroneously shut off all lines of inquiry from opposing scientific opinion. The District Court should see to it that this line of inquiry continues, Tuesday's opinion said.

It added that there were "unresolved questions of fact" that needed to be argued and that the district court's action "was plainly inappropriate."

Seven groups —the Sierra Club, Friends of the Earth, National Park and Conservator Association, the Wilderness Society, American Indian Affairs, Inc., SANE Inc. (Society Against Nuclear Explosions) and Amchitka Two —filed their suit here July 8.

Hart denied the motion for injunction Aug. 31 and the seven groups appealed.

The test, code-named Cannikin, is designed to test the Spartan missile warhead for the Safeguard antiballistic missile (ABM) system.

Astronaut Will Speak On Friday

Astronaut Vance DeVoe Brand will be guest speaker at a no-host luncheon of the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau, Friday noon at the Holiday Inn in San Rafael.

Brand, back-up command module pilot for Apollo 15 and a five-year veteran of the space program, will give a 20-minute talk on "What We Are Doing in Space — And Offshoots." Brand will visit Marin to participate in the opening ceremonies Friday for the Marin County Fair at the Civic Center.

Luncheon reservations may be made by telephoning the chamber office, according to Carroll A. Snyker, manager.

Committee On Park Will Meet Tonight

The ad hoc committee to establish a regional park district in Marin County will meet at 7:30 p.m. today in the Marvin B. Pomeroy home, 92 Golden Hinde Boulevard, San Rafael.

Pierre W. Joske, county parks and recreation director, said a member of his staff would attend the meeting as an observer.

The committee is composed of conservationists who wish to explore creating an autonomous park district, to replace the present control by the county board of supervisors, according to committee chairman Robert Young of Terra Linda.

CHINA

for negotiations to relax tensions. An agreement was reached to maintain the status quo and negotiations then proceeded.

Referring to Nixon's statement that the current era is one of negotiations, Chou said it was indeed "an era of negotiations — and one of struggle by armed force.

"As for us, we do not like armed struggle and we do not provoke others. Not only have we not gone to Long Island, we have not gone to Honolulu. Even with the U.S. Navy in the Taiwan Strait, we are for negotiations."

History has taught China important lessons, Chou said.

"If we are only prepared for negotiations without preparing against armed war, that is not good," he said.

"If a war is launched against China, what should we do?" How have we prepared? It may sound impossible to our friends, but we must think of it.

"Suppose the Soviet army goes straight to the northern banks of the Yellow River, the Americans go to the southern banks of the Yangtze River, and Japan invades and occupies Tsingtao to Shanghai and India joins in and invades Tibet?

"What should we do? We are ready. We must dig underground tunnels, and this has been done in every big and small city.

"Only when one dares to engage in war, can one negotiate, and if one wants peaceful negotiations, he must be prepared against war. China has had no soldiers abroad, no overflights of anyone's territory and no naval forces on anyone's oceans or seas. We are holding on to our own territory and carrying out defensive measures."

Chou only briefly mentioned the United Nations situation, saying there had been no change from the Foreign Ministry statement issued Aug. 20—China firmly opposes two Chinas, one China, one Taiwan; and any independent Taiwan. All were unacceptable, he said, and if anything the third even less so.

Chou said, however, he hoped to see more Americans visiting China. "More and more have been coming," he said. "Though Japanese visitors have been the most numerous, the number of Americans coming should catch up with them in the 1970's."

Joint Session On Ridge Park

City councils from three Marin communities will hold a joint meeting Oct. 14 in Mill Valley to review progress on the North Ridge regional park proposal.

Meeting at 8 p.m. at city hall, councilmen from Larkspur, Corte Madera and Mill Valley also will discuss possible methods of financing the park.

The North Ridge Plan envisions a regional park along the undeveloped ridge between the three communities.

$1,343 Collected For Student Exchanges

The Foreign Student Exchange Club of Terra Linda High School has collected $1,343 in its annual fund drive to send students abroad in the summer and to bring a foreign student to the high school.

Margaret Council, co-ordinator for the drive, said the $1,343 figure was preliminary because about one-third of Terra Linda didn't get covered in the door-to-door drive Monday night. She said another date would be set to complete the area.

meetings in the 1970-71 school year, and has missed nine of 11 meetings held since July 1 in the present year.

Thompson said there would be no valid reason for the board's conservative coalition to move for Johnson's ouster because of his politics.

"How can he be a threat to those who disagree with him if he never comes to board meetings or functions as a trustee?" Thompson said.

He said some trustees and the superintendent have for the past several months questioned whether Johnson, a musician in a San Francisco nightclub, is involved in a San Francisco entertainment business and attends San Francisco State College, and whether he was a resident of the Sausalito district and eligible to serve on the board. Johnson lived in Marin City when elected to the board in 1965, but moved out of that community last year.

"We have been unable to determine where he actually lives and he has consistently refused to give his address to the superintendent or his fellow trustees," Thompson said.

"It is becoming increasingly difficult to find a place to leave notification of school board meetings for him. In fact, it has become a major project to find Johnson for anything."

According to Thompson, Johnson has been using the Sausalito School District office as his Sausalito mailing address, a fact which the superintendent confirmed.

In addition to recall by the voters, a school district trustee can be removed from his post in two ways. He can be ousted if the county grand jury brings charges of misconduct or corrupt behavior against him, according to a county schools spokesman.

Also, the state education code provides that a seat on a school board can be declared vacant if the board or the county superintendent determines the seat holder has moved from the district or has failed to discharge his duties for three consecutive months except if prevented from doing so by illness or authorized absence.

Thompson said the school board had hesitated to oust Johnson for "some time, despite his ridiculously poor record as a board member. We felt that to ask for the resignation of the only black member of the board would only intensify political and racial antagonisms in the district."

Thompson added, "Our district faces many serious problems and we need board members who are willing to get in there and work for solutions. "Their political views are inconsequential. Even some of the people who disagree violently with this board have shown they are vitally interested in what goes on in the district."

Johnson's letter of resignation, delivered yesterday afternoon to the superintendent, marked the second time he had quit. He first resigned in June of 1970 in the wake of the firing of black principal Sidney F. Walton Jr., the recall of two liberal trustees and the resignations of two moderate board members.

Then, a week later at graduation exercises at Martin Luther King School, Johnson announced publicly that he had changed his mind.

With the recalls and resignations, Johnson became the final surviving member of the school board which initiated integration in the district in 1965.

Johnson's letter to the board yesterday was a brief, one-sentence note, which read: "At this time I submit my resignation and extend many thanks and regards to all and the best of luck in your endeavors."

Tam High Students Demanding Trustees To Reconsider Firing

About 60 Tamalpais High School students have demanded that the Tamalpais High School District board reconsider its firing of English teacher Kenneth Anderson.

According to Supt. Wilber D. Hawkins, the students made their demand Monday before the board, which refused to discuss the matter since it is now is litigation.

Dr. Hawkins said the student group denounced Anderson's firing as politically motivated and unwarranted.

Their complaint followed by two weeks a similar position taken by the Tamalpais Federation of Teachers, the union to which Anderson belongs.

Anderson's firing in May, according to district officials, was based on 11 charges ranging from his alleged encouragement of antisocial attitudes among students to his failure to follow district policies.

His dismissal is pending a court hearing in Marin Superior Court. Anderson, meanwhile, remains on the district's payroll although assigned non teaching duties.

The Tamalpais High School District board also:

MEETINGS — Took no action on a request from Trustee Jerrold M. Ladar that the board consider changing its meeting days from Mondays to Saturdays.

POLICIES — Received but took no action on the first of nine revisions proposed by Dr. Hawkins to streamline district policies.

GRIEVANCE — Referred the district's student grievance procedure back to staff for modification in the light of district reorganization plans.

I-J EDITORIAL — Took exception to an Independent-Journal editorial which questioned whether trustees actually read the reams of material submitted for their study by the district staff. Trustees said they not only read all of it, but appreciate having it, Hawkins said.

INTEGRATION — Were told that a proposed "tri-county consortium" of Marin, San Francisco and San Mateo counties to discuss integration of students had been scraped because of lack of funds.

COMMITTEE — Referred back to staff for additional information a proposed citizens' advisory committee of 100 persons. Hawkins said the board wants clear guidelines on the scope and functions of the group.

RESIGNATION — Accepted the resignation of Francis P. Shafer, assisting principal at Sir Francis Drake High School, after 38 years with the district.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to Monday when the board will meet with district principals and central office officials to discuss goals and priorities for the district.

New Program For Adults To Be Considered

The Marin Community College District board, meeting tonight at 8 o'clock at Room 101 of the College of Marin's new science building, will consider a remedial education program for adults in Marin City.

The program, to teach basic reading and mathematics skills, would use the Manzanita Center and cost the district about $22,000.

The board also will consider naming the schools within the planned Indian Valley Colleges in Novato and approving a child care center for the College of Marin.

New Youth For Park-Rec Panel

A senior at San Rafael High School, Marty Davis, was named to the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission by unanimous vote of the Marin County Board of Supervisors yesterday. (Other supervisors stories, page 1.)

Miss Davis will succeed another youth, Raymond A. Bresnan, who resigned after three years on the commission.

Supervisor Chairman Louis H. Baar announced that Bresnan quit because he plans to travel to South America.

Bresnan was a 15-year-old sophomore at Novato High School when appointed to the parks and recreations commission in August 1968.

The supervisors also appointed Marilyn Kramer of Fairfax and Kenneth Bott of Mill Valley, student body president at College of Marin, to the Marin County Juvenile Delinquency Prevention Commission.

Four adult incumbents reappointed to the juvenile delinquency prevention commission are Gary Giacomini, Maryann Garthwaite, Richard Oesterman and Cecelia Michael.

Other appointments made yesterday were:

Family and Children's Services Advisory Committee — June R. Tolbert of Forest Knolls.

County Supervisors Association of California, Board of Directors — John F. McInnis, with Arnold M. Baptiste as alternate.

Automatic Traffic Signal Due At Dolan's Corner

An automatic traffic signal will be installed at Dolan's Corner in Tamalpais Valley for about $70,000 with the help of state financing.

Marin County Board of Supervisors yesterday authorized the expenditure of about $32,000 in county funds, with the rest to be paid by the state because the State Division of Highways agrees that a traffic signal is needed.

The intersection, where Shoreline Highway meets Almonte Boulevard is one of the worst traffic congested areas in the county, said Lawrence H. Loder, assistant director of public works.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors also:

FILL — Held up for two weeks a decision on what to do about rancher Waldo Giacomini's program to fill flood areas at the corner of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and Bear Valley Road near Point Reyes Station. Public Works Director Ray W. Foreaker Jr. asked for time to investigate further.

VIEW ACRES — Voted 3-to-2 to uphold conditions imposed by the Marin County Planning Commission on Edward V. Grundstrom's View Acres subdivision at Laguna Vista Drive and Cerro Crest in east Novato. Grundstrom protested the requirement that the subdivision must be annexed to the Novato Sanitary District. The requirement was upheld by Arnold M. Baptiste, Michael Wornum and Petter R. Arrigoni Jr., and opposed by Louis H. Baar and John F. McInnis.

NICASIO ROAD — Agreed to change the name of San Geronimo-Nicasio Road to Nicasio Valley Road, as requested by the Nicasio Landowners Association Inc.

CONFERENCE — Gave the county's official blessing to Vera Schultz and Edward T. Ryken to attend the White House Conference on Aging from Nov. 28 through Dec. 3. There is no cost to the county.

BIKE RACK — Approved an outlay of $2,762 to install a large rack for 40 bicycles instead of the present rack for eight bicycles at the Novato branch library.

HUD GRANT — Approved a preliminary application for federal Housing and Urban Development funds for a $150,000 planning program for 1972-73 fiscal year. The federal share will be one-half. County Planning Director Werner Von Gundell said the $150,000 program can be scaled down later if the county wants to do so.

RESURFACING — Awarded a $22,846 contract to Valley Slurry Seal Co. of Sacramento to resurface various roads in upper Lucas Valley and in portions of Marinwood north of Miller Creek Road.

JAIL COST — Approved a rate hike requested by Sonoma County for housing Marin County Jail inmates at the Sonoma County Jail and Honor Farm. The cost will go up from $8.62 per day to $9.57.

STAGE LIGHTING — Bought special lighting fixtures for the stage of the Veterans Memorial Building for $16,373.40 from Cinema Services Co. of San Francisco. Asst. Administrator Thomas F. Campanella said the various amateur groups who use the lights will pay fees to offset the cost of purchase.

BEER AND WINE — Voted 4-to-1 to support the Civic Center Caterers in its appeal to the state Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control for permission to sell beer and wine at the Civic Center Cafeteria. Chairman Louis H. Baar dissented, explaining the Civic Center is no place for liquor sale.

COLLEGE BONDS — Gave unanimous support to Hadden W. Roth, co-chairman of the citizens committee urging voter approval of Proposition A on Nov. 2. The proposition asks for a $16,760,000 bond issue to complete College of Marin and build a new college near Novato.

PARKING ATTENDANTS — Set the following pay schedule for attendants who work at the Veterans Memorial Building parking lot: $5 per performance, and $10 per performance for the two who handle the cash transactions. Parking fee is 50 cents per car.

General Relief Work Project Outlined

Marin County supervisors yesterday approved the ground rules for a general relief work project, which will require able-bodied recipients of general relief to show up for work or get off public aid.

As a starter, the work project will be able to hire only five to 10 persons, but county supervisors asked County Administrator John F. Barrows to look around for other work programs such as cleaning up water district trails or parks.

Assist. County Administrator Thomas F. Campanella reported that the only county department where work crews can be handled is in the parks and recreation department. Between five and 10 men can be provided shovels, picks and wheelbarrows and engaged in cleanup and maintenance of county grounds and landscaping.

The supervisors appropriated $600 to buy the necessary hand tools to be used in the program.

Under the ground rules approved, each person who receives general relief and is able-bodied must show up for county work four days each week. County general relief will be terminated if the recipient fails to show up without good cause.

Campanella explained that the able-bodied recipients will get general relief in exchange for showing up for county work and doing what work is assigned. There will be no pay for the work itself.

Since there will not be enough jobs for all general relief recipients, inequities could arise in the number of hours or days worked by the various recipients, Campanella explained.

"Is there any way we can farm out the workers to the Marin Municipal Water District?" asked chairman Louis H. Baar. "They've got miles of trails that need cleaning up."

Deputy County Counsel Thomas H. Hendricks said he believes Marin will run into legal difficulties if it began farming out general relief workers to perform duties outside of county property.

"Can't we enter into a joint powers agreement with the water district?" asked Baar.

Campanella said the water district is reluctant because of the problem of providing supervision for such workers.

Why can't park caretakers at McNears Beach or Paradise Park Beach take a few of these workers in town and put them to work, John F. McInnis wanted to know.

The unions will insist on giving caretakers supervisory pay as soon as men are assigned under them, said Campanella. "In fact the Marin County Employees Association told me already they will ask for such supervisory pay."

"Get that in writing and I'll have it headlined in the I-J," snapped McInnis. He said the unions should cooperate in the county's effort to reduce the cost of general relief.

"Right on!" applauded Baar.

The supervisors asked Hendricks and Campanella to study all means of expanding the general relief work program and come back with more recommendations.

Sexual Freedom Bill Is Defeated By The Assembly

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Assembly, after an emotional debate punctuated with biblical quotations, flatly rejected yesterday a bill legalizing all forms of sexual conduct between consenting adults in private.

"The capital of this state is Sacramento—not Sodom and Gomorrah," said Assemblyman Frank Lanterman, R-La Canada, an opponent.

Opponents contended homosexuality is immoral and cited the Bible to make their point. Backers said it was time to get government out of the bedroom.

The vote on the bill was 29-38. Forty-one votes were required for passage. Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael cast a yes vote.

"I doubt there are many people in this society who have not at one time engaged in some sexual conduct that is illegal," said the author, Assemblyman Willie L. Brown Jr., D-San Francisco.

"But maybe society has not caught up with the level of intelligence that is required for this measure."

Assemblyman E. Richard Barnes, R-San Diego, a former Navy chaplain, read from a large gold-embossed Bible and cited Leviticus, 18th chapter, 22nd verse: "Thou shalt not lie with a man as with a woman. It is an abominjtion."

But Assemblyman John T. Knox, D-Richmond, said "the Bible can be used for a lot of purposes."

He said laws against homosexuality "are not enforceable now and were not enforceable in the times of the writings of Timothy, Leviticus, St. Paul."

"Gay Power" leaders journeyed to the state Capitol to lobby the measure prior to the floor debate.

"The Bible says these people should be stoned to death. I don't think any of us would go for that," said Assemblyman John L. Burton, D-San Francisco, who noted many homosexuals live in his district.

"These are people who get up in the morning, they breath air, they eat food, they pay taxes. They participate in society. They aren't criminals. They're people."

Assemblyman Robert H. Burke, R-Huntington Beach, said "I'm mighty ashamed of this body today. We're saying, 'Let's elevate ourselves above God.'"

He added "homosexuality doesn't serve any purpose whatsoever. It can be prevented."

"A government that has to live in people's bedrooms can't be defended and can't be justified," said Assemblyman John Vasconcellos, D-San Jose. "These are questions for the individual and the church, not for the state.

"Maybe it's time the government got out of people's personal sex lives."

Assemblyman Mike Cullen, D-Long Beach, said "25 per cent of the police in Long Beach are engaged in looking through peepholes."

An opponent, Assemblyman Newton R. Russell, R-Tujunga, read from the Bible and said Sodom and Gomorrah "were destroyed because of their wickedness."

But Brown answered that the Bible also says women shall not wear red dresses.

Brown said his bill would not affect laws against prostitution.

Fair Will Feature Moon Rock, Pictures Taken On Lunar Trip

The Marin County Fair will feature a unique and timely space exhibit including a visit by an astronaut, a moon rock, pictures taken from the moon and a full-scale command module.

The full extent of the exhibit was reported yesterday by county administrator's office, which announced it will include seven exhibitors including the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the Atomic Energy Commission.

Highlighting the exhibit to be shown in the Veterans Memorial Building exhibition hall when the fair opens Friday will be a visit from Astronaut Lance Brand, backup command module pilot for Apollo 15 and one of 19 astronauts selected by NASA.

The NASA exhibit covering 3,780 square feet will also feature a moon rock brought back by Apollo 11 astronauts who made the first manned-flight to the lunar surface and a photo display of pictures taken from the moon.

Rounding out the NASA display will be an audio-visual presentation of "Space in the 70's" and 12 cylindrical compartments seating one person at a time and offering different recorded messages about the benefits of space exploration. Each compartment will have a message appealing to various types of people including teachers, doctors, rock hounds, athletes, women and taxpayers.

The Atomic Energy Commission will have a present lecture on "Energy, Today and Tomorrow," and will have a booth with an audio-visual display on understanding the atom.

The TRW Systems Inc. will stage a photo display on ecology and space and a mockup of a communications satellite. An instrumentation panel for a Saturn rocket will be included in the IBM exhibit and the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. will have a mobile atomic power exhibit and an atomic plant display.

Owens-Corning Fiberglass will feature an Apollo space unit and Aero-Jet Co., with displays of Apollo and Nerva engines.

The exhibitions, spanning 70 years of Picasso's work as a painter, sculptor and ceramist, opened at the Saidenberg and Marlborough galleries with a preview for the benefit of the American Cancer Society. Many of the paintings are from private collections and have not been shown in public before.

Picasso was born in Spain Oct. 25, 1881.

CHART I

HOW TAXES WILL BE AFFECTED BY ANNEXATION

$40,000 Home In	1970-71	If Annexed	Annual Increase
Strawberry	$1,159	$1,201	$42
Bel Air	$1,191	$1,256	$65
Eagle Rock	$1,100	$1,165	$65
Bayview Heights	$1,077	$1,142	$65

Column two shows what owners of $40,000 homes actually paid last year in taxes based on the total tax rate for fiscal 1970-71. The total rate includes special district rates which vary from community to community. Column Three indicates the tax bill that would result from annexation, using Tiburon's 1971-72 tax rate of 73.5 cents, which would be added to the county rate. Strawberry's lesser increase (Column Four) assumes it would become exempt from the 23.5-cent rate in Flood Control Zone III.

CHART II

PROPERTY TAX REVENUES

	To County (with or without annexation)	To Tiburon (with annexation)	Assessed Valuation
Area I:
Bel Air, Eagle Rock, Bayview Heights	$132,045	$33,500	$4,569,037
Area II:
Strawberry	349,903	$88,900	$12,107,385
Total of both areas:	$481,948	$122,400	$16,676,422

The county will continue to receive property tax revenue even if annexation takes place. Its income here is based on this year's county tax rate of $2.89 per $100 assessed valuation. Tiburon will receive property tax income, if annexation takes place. Using this year's city tax rate of 73.5 cents, Tiburon would receive the above income from the various communities involved.

CHART III

	Area I	Area II	Total
Sales tax	$15,000	$88,000	$103,000
Motor vehicle	$14,633	$29,800	$44,433
Gasoline tax	$15,000	$30,115	$45,115
Cigarette tax	$6,595	$12,500	$19,095
Liquor license fees	$278	$600	$878
Miscellaneous, such as business licenses, traffic fines, motel taxes, franchises.	$22,500	$47,500	$70,000
TOTAL	$74,006	$208,515	$282,521

These nonproperty tax revenues, many allocated by the state according to population and paid last fiscal year to the county, are indicative of the amount of income from this source that Areas I and II would bring with them to Tiburon upon annexation to that city.

BALLOTING OCT. 19

Strawberry Annexation

Residents of Strawberry Peninsula will vote Oct. 19 on whether to annex its 1,006 acres to the City of Tiburon or remain part of unincorporated Marin.

Separate elections will be held in the two areas east of Highway 101. The 268 acres north of Tiburon Boulevard, made up of Bel Air, Eagle Rock and Bayview Heights, are called Area I on the ballot. The 738 acres south of Tiburon Boulevard, including Strawberry, are called Area II.

A majority vote is required to annex either to Tiburon. About 1,400 persons live in Bel Air-Eagle Rock-Bayview Heights and 2,800 live in Strawberry.

If annexed, residents would pay higher property taxes. On a $40,000 home, for example, the increase would amount to $42 in Strawberry and $65 in the other areas. (See chart I)

Tiburon would gain about $229,000 in income after deducting from new revenue the cost of service to the annexed areas.

Marin County would lose about $283,000 in nonproperty tax revenue though it would continue to receive property tax income which is expected to total nearly $482,000 this year based on the current county tax rate of $2.89 per $100 assessed valuation.

(Figures were furnished by the Marin County auditor's office, the county assessor's office and the State Board of Equalization.)

If annexation is approved in both areas, Tiburon's gross income will rise $404,921 annually as the result of an additional $122,400 in property taxes (See Chart II) and $282,521 in nonproperty taxes (See Chart III), such as sales tax, motor vehicle in-lieu fees, gasoline and cigarette tax and liquor license fees.

Against that gain would have to be charged the cost of providing services to the two areas, a cost estimated by City Mgr. Bert A. Balmer at $176,000, leaving a net gain of $228,921.

Police protection is the largest charge at a cost of about $75,000 a year, Balmer said. Tiburon now is served under contract with the sheriff's department, but is organizing its own force which will begin operation July 1.

Although residents of the two areas last year were promised a police substation if annexation was approved, a recent study of the proposed police department and subsequent recommendations by Balmer have excluded the substation. No decision has been made yet by the city council.

Other costs and estimates by Balmer are public works, $35,000; street and drainage improvements, $40,000; planning staff, $12,000; parks and recreation, $5,000, and building inspector, $9,000.

Marin County would continue to collect $481,948 (See Chart II) in property taxes, but it would lose the $282,521 in nonproperty taxes which would go to Tiburon if annexation is approved in both areas.

Though exact comparison is impossible, if the cost of services to the areas involved is about the same for the county as for the city, estimated at $176,000 by Balmer, then the net loss in revenue to the county would be $106,520.

The Strawberry area includes the Town and Country Village Shopping Center and, although exact sales tax figures are difficult to compute, the State Board of Equalization estimates about $88,000 comes from the center itself.

A large hunk of the peninsula, the 126-acre Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary, is exempt from taxation because it is an educational institution.

Based on Tiburon's current tax rate of 73.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation, homeowners property taxes would rise (See Chart I) $42 or $65 annually if annexation is approved. The areas would not go on the city tax rolls until July 1 and residents would not pay property taxes to Tiburon until December, 1972.

Residents pay taxes to more than a dozen special assessment districts, such as school, fire, sanitary, recreation. Of these, only one assessment can be eliminated by annexing to Tiburon: the county highway lighting district with a tax rate of 8.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation. There also is a possibility that the Flood Control Zone III assessment, which affects only the Strawberry area, could be eliminted through annexation. It is 23.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Novato Little League Drops Purchase Plan

The Novato Little League has dropped its plan to purchase 20 acres in the vicinity of Deer Island for baseball diamonds, the Novato Parks and Recreation Commission learned Monday night.

Recreation director Edward S. Adams presented a letter from the league saying the plan was being dropped because of cost.

The league previously had offered to donate the site to the city for a park if the city would maintain it.

Commissioners agreed to work with the league toward obtaining a school site for a diamond. That matter will go before the Novato Unified School District board at 8 p.m. today at Novato High School lecture hall.

In other business, commissioners adopted a policy in favor of a girls' "summer ball" league next year, but that it be limited to softball.

They also took under study a request from the Marin Trails Committee to establish cycling and horseback trails, particularly in the area of Novato Creek and Pioneer Memorial Park.

County Fair To Be Radio Topic

The 1971 Marin County Fair at the Civic Center will be discussed by three speakers tomorrow at 9 a.m. on radio KTIM's "Marin Sounding Board."

The fair, scheduled for Friday through Monday, will be discussed by Robert A. Petersen, coordinator of the Space Science Show at the fair, and a member of the county administrator's staff; Robert J. Mahoney, fair designer, and Inez Storer, coordinator of the arts and crafts exhibit.

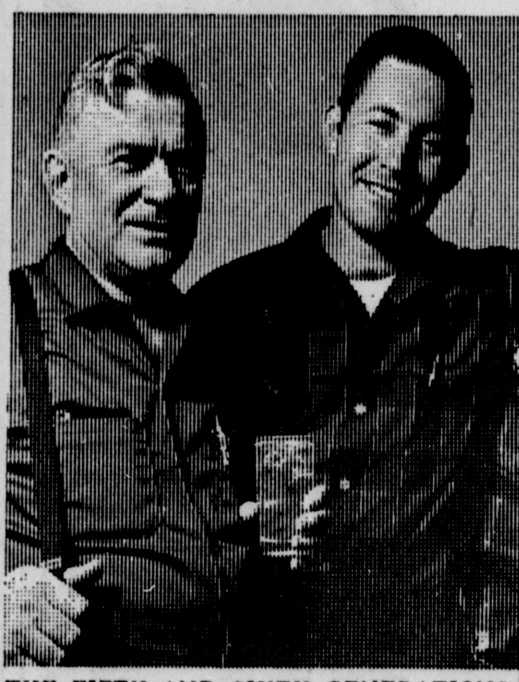
Jim Beam–making news for six generations

Generation gap? We never heard of it.

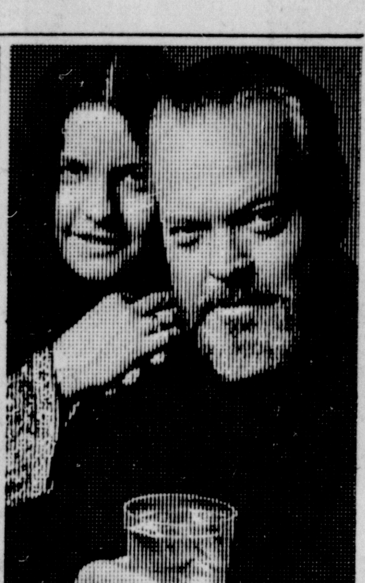
CLERMONT, BEAM, KY. —Six generations ago Jacob Beam started distilling Beam Bourbon here in Kentucky. It is still being distilled here today. And still by the Beams.

The quality of the Jim Beam Bourbon of today owes much to the careful preservation and adherence to the original formula. But it owes even more to the fact that today, as for over 176 years, it's the Beam family who distills Jim Beam.

Every glass of today's Jim Beam Bourbon holds the best from nature and the pride that has been passed on from Jacob to David to David M. to Colonel James to T. Jeremiah to Carl to David, Baker and Booker—over 176 years.



THE FIFTH AND SIXTH GENERATIONS carry on the unbroken tradition. Carl, Master sons, Baker and David.



Noted actor and actress daughter star for Beam

CHICAGO—Orson Welles is an accomplished actor. His daughter, Rebecca is an aspiring actress. They're of different generations, but they have the same love for their craft. They're appearing now coast-to-coast in ads for Jim Beam Bourbon.

College Bond Issue Gains Endorsement

Fairfax School District trustees last night formally endorsed the $16.7 million Marin Community College District bond issue on the Nov. 2 ballot, according to Supt. Reginald H. Hammond.

The Fairfax School District Board also:

SPECIAL MEETING — Set a special meeting for 8:45 p.m. Monday in the district office, to discuss and prepare a superintendent evaluation policy.

ROOF — Approved installing a thermal roof on the two wings of Manor School, but instructed Hammond to obtain more than the single bid submitted to date. The more costly thermal roof can reduce classroom temperatures 10 to 15 degrees in hot weather and will outlast conventional tar and gravel roofings, Hammond reported.

WORKSHOPS — Heard Hammond report that the district faculty was to hold an extended day-session today on report cards, and would hold a series of workshops on translating district goals into curricula.

RIGHT-OF-WAY — Adopted a resolution of intent to grant the Marin Municipal Water District a right-of-way through the White Hill School property, and set a public hearing on the contract for the board's next regular meeting, Oct. 19.

ENROLLMENT — Heard Hammond report that the district gained 10 pupils since the last meeting, for a new total of 1,064.

GRANT — Approved an application for federal Title III funds to study a program for youngsters not properly prepared by their kindergarten experience for first grade.

BUDGET — Heard Hammond report that property assessments have placed the district in a basic aid category, costing it more than $10,000 in Miller-Unruh special reading funds for next year.

WAGE FREEZE — Heard Hammond report "we still don't know where we are."

Bound Over On Fraud Charges

Oscar Mickey Curry, 26, of Marin City, was bound over to Marin Superior Court yesterday on two felony counts of fraudulent possession of checks.

He is to be arraigned in superior court next Wednesday.

Curry was arrested Sept. 22 on a warrant charging he stole three checks from the car of San Rafael Police Capt. Lincoln Borba while the car was being washed at a car wash where Curry was employed.

Asleep At Wheel, Car Runs Off Road

Daniel Edwin Smalle Jr., 44, of 410 Ridge Road, suffered minor cuts of his forehead early today when his car veered off Ridge Road, east of Canyon Road, and into a tree, according to Novato police.

According to officers, Smalle said he apparently had fallen asleep momentarily. His car went down a 30-foot embankment and traveled about 50 feet off the roadway at 2 a.m., police said. Smalle was treated at Novato General Hospital.

Petaluma Plan Panels Formed

The Petaluma Planning Commission last night heard that study committees on the city's environmental design plan have been formed and will soon schedule regular meetings.

Assist. Planner Richard Anderson said commissioners serving as study committee chairmen reported that most committees have been fully formed and a few organizational meetings held.

The committees will study specific aspects of the environmental design plan.

Aqueduct Public Debate Off After Court Order

Tomorrow night's scheduled public discussion of the pros and cons of Measure B, participation in the Sonoma-Marin aqueduct, has been cancelled because of a court order temporarily restraining the Marin Municipal Water District from advocating passage of the measure.

The debate was set for tomorrow night at a meeting of the city-county planning council at the Civic Center, in the board of supervisors' chambers.

Eugene A. Miller, director of the water district, and Thomas H. Thorner, chairman of Marin Alternative, were to debate the issue at 9 p.m. This debate has been called off.

However, Miller is prepared to speak on the present status of studies on water reclamation and the proposed consolidation of the county's sanitary districts.

Anne L. Ellinwood, chairman of the City-County Planning Council, said the rest of the council's agenda will be unchanged. The meeting will start at 8 p.m.

Nixon Sets Freeze Talk; House Approves Tax Cuts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon will announce his Phase II economic policy to follow the current 90-day wage-price freeze in a nationwide radio and television address at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow, the White House announced today.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, in announcing the speech, declined to discuss any details of Nixon's followup economic program.

The White House announcement came only a few minutes after the House approved a $15.4 billion tax cut bill which would benefit both individuals and corporations over the next three years. It was a major point in the Nixon plan.

The President has indicated that his Phase II program will apply to the whole economy although it will concentrate on major industries and will be enforced by the government, probably by selective actions against flagrant violators.

Nixon has also made it clear that profits will not be controlled along with wages, prices and rents.

The House passage of the tax measure, which now goes to the Senate, came on an unrecorded voice vote.

The bill was revised to tilt more heavily toward individual taxpayers, by the House Ways and Means Committee from the form originally proposed by Nixon. The administration bought the changes and House members approved the measure without further change.

It calls for an increase effective this taxpaying year of $25 per person, to $675, in the personal exemption for individuals on their tax returns. This would go up to $750 a person next year.

The standard deduction for those not itemizing deductions also would go up to 13 per cent effective this year, to a maximum of $1,500, compared to 10 per cent last year. This would rise to 20 per cent, to a maximum of $2,000 next year. The 7 per cent auto excise tax also would be wiped out immediately.

For business, the big item is a 7 per cent tax credit for equipment purchases retroactive to last April 1.

The bill now goes to the Senate where chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., promised to expedite hearings which begin Thursday. The bill is expected to reach the Senate floor late in the month, and several senators have served notice they will try to increase the tax break for individuals.

Organized labor still is pushing for more benefits in the tax bill for working people and tried to beat the measure on the House floor, calling it "a giant raid on the federal Treasury" accruing to the benefit of big business.

Prior to today's vote, House Republican leader Gerald R. Ford questioned whether the AFL-CIO, and particularly President George Meany, was accurately representing the views of rank and file workers in steady criticism of the tax bill and of Nixon's economic program in general.

Terming Meany's steady attacks on Nixon and the economic plan as "purely political," Ford said: "I think the rank and file support the President ... because they think (his program) will produce jobs. And they are interested in jobs and not political rhetoric."

The bill as approved by the House could mean that taxpayers would start receiving a taste of the cuts by mid-November — if the Senate also acts before then — in the form of reduced withholding from paychecks.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the Ways and Means Committee said individuals would get well over half the benefits from the cuts, whereas business would have had the biggest benefits under the original version proposed by the administration.

Angela's Arresting FBI Agent Testifies

By MARY LEYDECKER

The Federal Bureau of Investigation's special agent who arrested Angela Davis in New York City almost a year ago today testified how she was traced from Florida to New York.

The agent, Lawrence J. Monroe, was a witness at a pretrial hearing in Marin Superior Court in which Miss Davis's attorneys are seeking to keep certain evidence from being presented at her trial because they say it was illegally seized.

At issue today were the wig she was wearing and the purse she was carrying when she was arrested Oct. 13, 1970, in a New York motel.

Agent Monroe told how information from David Poindexter's mother led to Miss Davis's arrest.

Poindexter was with Miss Davis when she was arrested.

Monroe, however, was not queried nor did he testify how the FBI knew that Miss Davis was with Poindexter after she fled California following the Aug. 7 shoot-out at the Marin Civic Center.

He said that Mrs. June Hunzinger of Chicago, Poindexter's mother, told agents on Oct. 9, 1970, that she had purchased a car for her son in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. Furthermore, she said that she had last seen her son in late September in Miami at an apartment there.

With him, according to what Mrs. Hunzinger told agents, was a black woman named "Ann Moore."

Monroe related today how agents got the license number of the Toyota purchased by Mrs. Hunzinger in Fort Lauderdale and also how a mechanic at the car agency identified from photos a woman accompanying Poindexter as Miss Davis.

Although she and Poindexter were no longer at the Florida apartment, employees there also identified Miss Davis from pictures as having stayed there as Poindexter's wife, "Loreen," Monroe said.

Her arrest in New York at the Howard Johnson Motor Lodge came about, Monroe said, when he learned that the Toyota was parked in the motel's garage. The room in which Miss Davis and Poindexter were staying was staked out and when the couple walked toward the room, they were arrested.

Monroe said that at that time Miss Davis was wearing a short, black wig with bangs and large square glasses which made her look different than she did today.

Miss Davis, her head down while she read legal papers in court today, did not look up as Monroe scrutinized her present appearance.

In another development yesterday, it was learned that Miss Davis's codefendant, Ruchell Magee, had written her a letter from San Quentin Prison before the shoot-out.

The letter was listed as having been seized in one of the searches termed illegal by Miss Davis's attorneys. Written in July 1970, the letter was the first evidence publicly revealed that there had been any contact between the two before the escape attempt on Aug. 7.

In the affidavit filed by the attorney general's office there was no indication of what was in the letter.

Miss Davis and Magee are to be tried separately on charges of murder, conspiracy and kidnapping stemming from the shoot-out.

The Bear Flag revolt, proclaiming California independent of Mexico, came on June 14, 1846.

Body Discovered By Hikers Identified

The body of a woman found by two hikers yesterday in hills west of the Marin approach to the Golden Gate Bridge was identified today as a 25-year-old Sausalito resident.

Coroner's investigator Keith C. Craig said the body of Rosemarie Rulofson of 31 Crescent Avenue was dressed in blue bell bottom Levis and a tan sweater.

There was no evidence of foul play, Craig said, although the cause of death had not been determined.

She was found by two college students yesterday and appeared to have been dead at least 18 hours.

Miss Rulofson, a legal secretary in San Francisco, is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Rulofson of Palo Alto.

Funeral arrangements are pending at Russell and Gooch Mortuary in Mill Valley.

Rapid detection and mapping of crop blight areas will be possible with future earth resources and technology satellites.

Women Say They Were Swindled

Two Marin women reported to San Rafael Police yesterday that they were swindled by a man who said he was representing a vacations contest firm.

Lori Jacquelyn Ross, 18, of 960 Bel Marin Keys, Novato, and Beverly Jo Bridges, 23, of 520 Canal Street, San Rafael, told police they had been notified in August that they were winners of a contest requiring that the winners pay $9.95 for three days and two nights lodging in Reno, Tahoe or Las Vegas.

They said a man who identified himself as Jim Denney, representative of Vacations Ltd. of Oakland, collected the money from them and promised they would receive $150 in coupons within the next 30 days, according to the police report.

The coupons never came and Miss Ross said she reported the incident to the police after she read that Vacations Ltd. had been in court over its operations.

N. Viet Units Bombarded After Shelling A Dozen Allied Bases

SAIGON (UPI)- — Outnumbered North Vietnamese infantrymen fought two ground battles and shelled a dozen Allied bases on both sides of the Cambodian frontier Tuesday and U. S. B52s retaliated today with two huge bombing raids.

The Thailand-based eight-engined Stratofortresses dropped at least 180 tons of high explosives on suspected North Vietnamese Army (NVA) troop concentrations within one and three miles of the Cambodian border.

There were two other American air attacks against North Vietnamese territory Monday and Tuesday after Communist antiaircraft batteries apparently threatened U. S. B52s bombing the Ho Chi Minh Trail in Laos, the command said today.

Spokesmen said U. S. F105 fighter-bombers carried out the raids inside North Vietnam as the 65th and 66th of what the military calls "protective reaction strikes" this year.

The Command said nearly 200 rockets and mortar shells were fired on the Allied bases Tuesday, causing what were described by spokesmen as light Army of the Republic of Vietnam (ARNV) casualties.

New Abortion Group Forming

A new organization aimed at eliminating liberalized abortion laws has been formed in Marin.

Marie DePizzol, president of the Marin chapter of Voice for the Unborn, said the organization will have an informational meeting Oct. 15 at 8 p.m. at St. Raphael's School library in San Rafael.

She said similar organizations have been formed throughout the Bay Area. She added that a speakers bureau was being formed to speak in Marin schools.

Other diseases reported were gonorrhea, 28; infectious hepatitis, 4; syphilis, 2; mumps, 1; salmonella, 1; and serum hepatitis, 1.

Another Story Of Vietnamese Village Shootings Is Revealed

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Four U.S. helicopters shot up a pair of friendly Vietnamese villages and killed 10 civilians in an unpublicized incident two years ago, the writer who broke the story of the My Lai massacre charged yesterday.

Seymour M. Hersh said only three men were punished and they got "almost the lightest punishment possible" although U.S. authorities learned almost immediately of the shootings and acknowledged after investigation that American rules of engagement had been violated.

"This is not another atrocity story," Hersh said in an interview at his Washington office. "It's much deeper than that."

The writer gave details of the shooting, the investigation by then Americal Division commander Maj. Gen. Lloyd B. Ramsey and the punishment Ramsey handed out in an article Hersh wrote in the Oct. 9 issue of the New Yorker magazine.

Hersh said circumstances around the shooting raised "grave moral and legal questions about the military's reliance on 'rules of engagement.'" He said the shooting took place July 1, 1969, after one helicopter pilot thought he heard about 50 rifle shots being fired at him near the hamlet of Phu Vinh.

The four helicopters attacked Phu Vinh, which was classified as a "no fire" zone because it was believed free of Viet Cong or North Vietnamese, after receiving permission by radio, Hersh said. He said one helicopter also attacked the hamlet of Diem Pho about half a mile to the southwest without receiving clearance.

The three men brought up on charges were given temporary letters of reprimand. Hersh said the reasons why the division commander decided against more severe punishment "may help to explain why there have been few, if any, courts-martial of helicopter pilots, although reports of excessive shooting from the air have dominated much of the criticism of the war."

Castle Repairs

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A bill providing $300,000 for repairs at the Hearst Castle at San Simeon was approved Tuesday by the Assembly on a 72-0 vote.

A Spanish Draft Law Is Proposed

MADRID (UPI)—A military commission Tuesday approved a draft law proposed by the government to the Spanish Cortes (parliament) which would drastically increase penalties for bombings and other such revolutionary violence.

The bill, drawn up following the court-martial in Burgos of 16 Basque separatists in December, will need the approval of the Cortes before becoming law.

The draft law provides only two penalties for terrorism, causing death, mutilation or serious injury—30-years imprisonment or death.

'Join Hands For Peace' Planned In Tiburon

"Join Hands For Peace," a procession to dramatize the opposition of Marinites to war, will take place at 6:30 p.m. next Wednesday on Tiburon's new bicycle path.

Participants will meet either at Blackie's Pasture or at the Lyford Drive entrance to the pathway and walk toward each other, carrying candles, which will be provided, march organizers said.

The procession is sponsored by a group of Belvedere and Tiburon residents, and the public is welcome, organizers said.

After the groups converge at Rock Hill Road, marchers will walk to the Community Congregational Church for a short program of singing and liturgy prepared by Rev. Frank Evans, pastor of the church, and Charles Gompertz of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church.

After the service, marchers will share a "peace meal." Each person is asked to bring a piece of cheese, some bread, fruit, tomatoes or wine to share with others.

Forging Felony

SACRAMENTO (UPI) The Senate Monday approved legislation making it a felony to alter or forge a driver's license.

Attica Inmates Ask Top Court For Legal Help

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A group of inmates at Attica prison asked the Supreme Court Tuesday to prevent the state from questioning them about the September uprising unless they get legal help.

The application went to Justice Thurgood Marshall, who administers the 2nd U.S. Circuit which includes New York. Since the seven justices are in conference all this week on a summer backlog of cases, Marshall could refer the Attica matter to the full Court.

Marshall was asked to instruct the circuit court to stop the questioning unless the prisoners have a lawyer present or are allowed to consult one beforehand and are given warnings required by Supreme Court decisions for criminal suspects.

SANDWICH TIPS

Tea Time Table Is Work Of Art

Setting a fine tea table calls for special little foods to complement the hot drink and to be arranged attractively on the tea table, which can become a work of art in its own way.

Preparing for its Table Decor and Tea event next Wednesday, the Northgate Group of the Marin Art and Garden Center will include such a tea table setting. Some of the tea sandwiches and cookies they will use are offered to Food Page readers:

CRABMEAT SANDWICHES
from Mrs. William W. Cole of Ross

½ loaf sandwich bread
1 lb. fresh crabmeat
4 slices bacon - crisp and minced
2 large stalks celery chopped very fine
juice of half a lemon
mayonnaise to moisten and bind

Cut bread in small rounds with biscuit cutter and spread with crab mixture. Top with a dash of paprika. Makes 55.

LACE COOKIES
from Mrs. Francis L. Auger of San Rafael

Combine 1 C. each sifted flour and finely chopped nuts (half oatmeal and two thirds nuts can be substituted)

Combine in saucepan ½ C. light or dark corn syrup, ¼ C. each butter and shortening, and ⅔ C. firmly packed brown sugar

Bring this mixture just to the boiling point. Remove immediately from the heat and gradually blend in the flour and nut mixture.

Drop the dough by round teaspoonfuls onto a buttered cookie sheet, placing cookies three inches apart. Bake in moderate-slow oven (325 degrees) for 8 to 10 minutes or until delicately brown. Let cool for a minute and remove cookies carefully from baking sheet with a spatula and cool on a wire rack.

If desired, the cookies may be rolled into cones while still warm. Makes about 5 dozen cookies.

EMPIRE BISCUITS

From Mrs. Walter M. Meier of San Rafael, whose aunt sent this recipe from a Grand Highland Bazaar held in Glasgow, Scotland.

⅔ C. Butter
2 Tablespoons sugar
2 C. flour

Cream butter and sugar then sift in flour, a little bit at a time. Roll out thinly and cut into rounds. Bake at 375 degrees for 5 minutes or until golden brown. Place favorite jam between two cookies and ice with mixture of 4 tablespoons of powdered sugar and 2 scant teaspoons milk or water.

Freezer Tips

NEW YORK (UPI) — The main objective in packaging foods for the freezer is to keep them from drying out, to preserve flavor, color and nutritive values.

A Tasty Apple Treat

For centuries Europeans have known the delight of serving fruit and cheese at the end of a meal. But American apples, colorful, crisp and delicious, are the perfect choice for this service. For a change, serve the cheese a new way by combining three different cheeses, shaping the mixture into balls and rolling in flaked coconut. Add slices of red and yellow apples and you have a combination that everyone will enjoy. Try it to celebrate National Apple Week which begins tomorrow.

CHEESE-COCONUT BALLS
(to be served with apple slices)

2 pkgs. (3 oz. each) Roquefort cheese
1 pkg. (4 oz.) shredded cheddar cheese
1 pkg. (8 oz.) cream cheese
1 pkg. (3½ oz.) flaked coconut

Mash the cheeses and combine thoroughly, using an electric mixer if available. Chill at least one hour. Shape into balls about one inch in diameter. Roll in coconut.

Southern Charm In Buffet

Located in the heart of Tidewater territory, the nation's capital is not limited to a single cuisine, but combines the myth and charm of southern cooking with the sophistication of continental sauces and condiments.

A typical special buffet may display quail, from Virginia and a shellfish casserole containing Chesapeake bay scallops and crabmeat. Cornish game hens make a good substitute for quail, but like the delicate wild birds, should be served with a simple lemon-butter sauce for greatest enjoyment.

The lemon souffle, topped with a stormy sea of brown tipped meringue, is a modern adaptation of the English trifle, popular with plantation dwellers in Colonial times.

ROAST GAME HENS
(or Quail)

6 Cornish game hens
½ cup butter, melted
1 cup bottled lemon juice
1 cup chicken broth
1 teaspoon rosemary
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon paprika

Also, parsley, kumquats, pear halves, mint jelly.

Remove giblets and and rinse hens in water; pat dry.

Arrange on a rack in an uncovered pan, breast side up. Combine butter, lemon juice, chicken broth, and seasonings. Pour sauce over hens and roast at 425 degrees for one (1) hour or until tender. Baste frequently with sauce and use sauce to make gravy.

Garnish with mint jelly-filled pear halves and parsley.

Serves six.

TIDEWATER CASSEROLE

2 lbs. scallops
½ cup bottled lime juice
¼ cup butter, melted
1 tablespoon chives
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon paprika
4 cups cooked, long-grain rice
1½ cups peas, cooked
1 crabmeat, flaked

Marinate scallops in mixture made of ½ cup butter, lime juice, chives, salt, pepper and paprika. To broil, place in a shallow pan, basting frequently with marinade. Turn scallops to broil on both sides — about 5 minutes.

Combine rice, peas and crabmeat. Top with broiled scallops and drizzle with remaining marinade. Serve hot.

Serves 6 to 8.

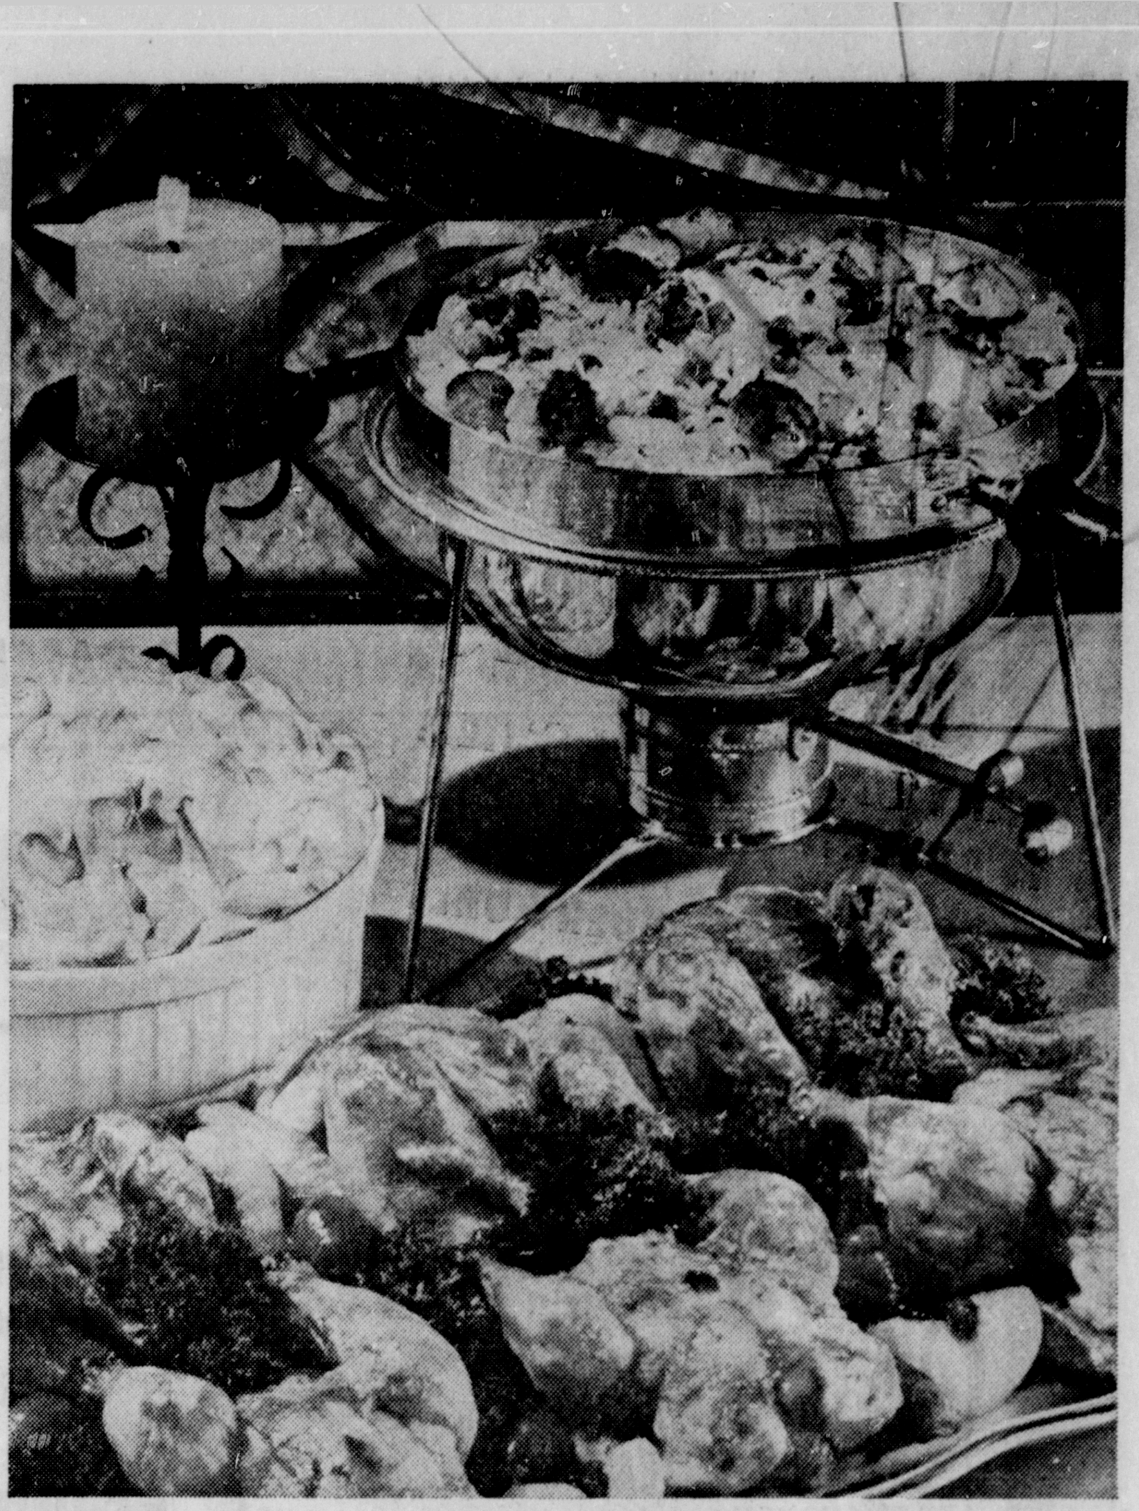
LEMON ANGEL SOUFFLE

¾ cup bottled lemon juice
¾ cup milk
1½ cups sugar
½ cup butter, melted
4 egg yolks, beaten
4 cups angel food cake cubes
4 egg whites
½ sugar

Combine lemon juice, milk, 1½ cups sugar, butter and egg yolks. Add cake cubes and toss gently. Pour into a well-greased, 2-quart casserole. Set casserole in a pan of hot water: bake at 350 degrees for 40 minutes.

Beat egg whites and sugar until stiff peaks form. Spread over souffle and bake for 10 minutes or until browned.

Serves 8.



COOKING IN the nation's capital reflects its affinity with the Tidewater area Southern cuisine and familiarity with the sophistication of continental sauces and condiments. The special buffet may offer quail or Cornish game hens with a shellfish casserole and a fluffy meringue-topped angel souffle that is adapted from English trifle, a popular dish with plantation dwellers in Colonial times.

GAIL MOORE sits a moment in her third floor office at Marin General Hospital to describe her work as part of extended care service as a clinical nurse specialist. After special training in a master's degree program, the nurse works with special patient cases and the patient's family.

OUTSIDE THE HOSPITAL

Example Of New Nursing Career

By BARBARA HOSMER

Gail Moore of Marin General Hospital is an example of a new role the registered nurse can play in a hospital's extended care services.

As a clinical nurse specialist she works very closely with the patient and the patient's family, as needed, and with the doctors and other nurses.

Gail, who lives in San Francisco, is still excited about her own job, which she has held since last February.

"It's getting paid to do what you want to do anyway," she says, adding that the clinical nurse specialist can be closely involved with patient care and yet help work on innovations in care techniques, and assist in their teaching among the nursing staff.

Gail, who especially likes working with babies and children, is assigned to the maternity and pediatric departments at Marin General, where she is involved with special cases.

Just recently there were "premie" twins born at the hospital. It was quite a job for the mother to have two tiny ones at home, so Gail visited the parents and taught them both how best to feed the babies.

"I often visit the home, when asked to come, and see what they have prepared to feed a child and offer suggestions on health care," Gail explained. "It's part of the care services that are free to those who need it."

FOR NEW babies with anomalies, Gail may visit the family to see if she can help them to accept the situation. Usually she just makes one visit, except with hematology patients. She tries to establish a continuing good relationship with them and their families because they will have to return to the hospital, where she will see them again.

This kind of continuity with young patients and their families helps ease their hospital experiences, Gail feels, and enables co-operation that leads to better patient care.

She also works with diabetic children aged 3 to 13, and is helping to form a junior diabetic unit for both the parents and their diabetic youngsters.

"The idea is to have a fun program," explains Gail. She likes to have the older children learn about their condition and how they can handle it, and then teach their parents and grandparents about it. Diabetes is s lifelong thing, and they must learn to get along with it„ Gail adds.

The clinical nurse specialist also works with the families of babies who have had surgery and the critically ill child who needs a parent to be with him at the hospital.

ANOTHER PART of her job is teaching other nurses, who sometimes will ask for a specific class to be taught. Often Gail will present a patient's case and then try to bring in all the academic knowledge that is pertinent to it.

"Whatever you do, you teach, and ultimately you want to educate the public to use medical services better."

Gail spent an extra two years at the University of California Medical Center beyond her R.N. degree to become a clinical nurse specialist. She did her undergraduate work at Michigan State University and then had several years nursing experience before she took the year's master degree program at U.C. The following year was devoted to post-master's work in hematology. Gai says she worked in the clinic and with eight families especially as a part of a team approach to medical problems.

The team work she carries out as part of the doctor, patient, nursing and other hospital department coordination as a team on various cases at Marin General.

Gail likes to work with the children, and her master's degree is in pediatric and maternity nursing.

She also spent a year in pediatrics aboard the teaching hospital ship SS Hope in Tunisia, which she said gave her the experience of working with patients and their families from a totally different culture.

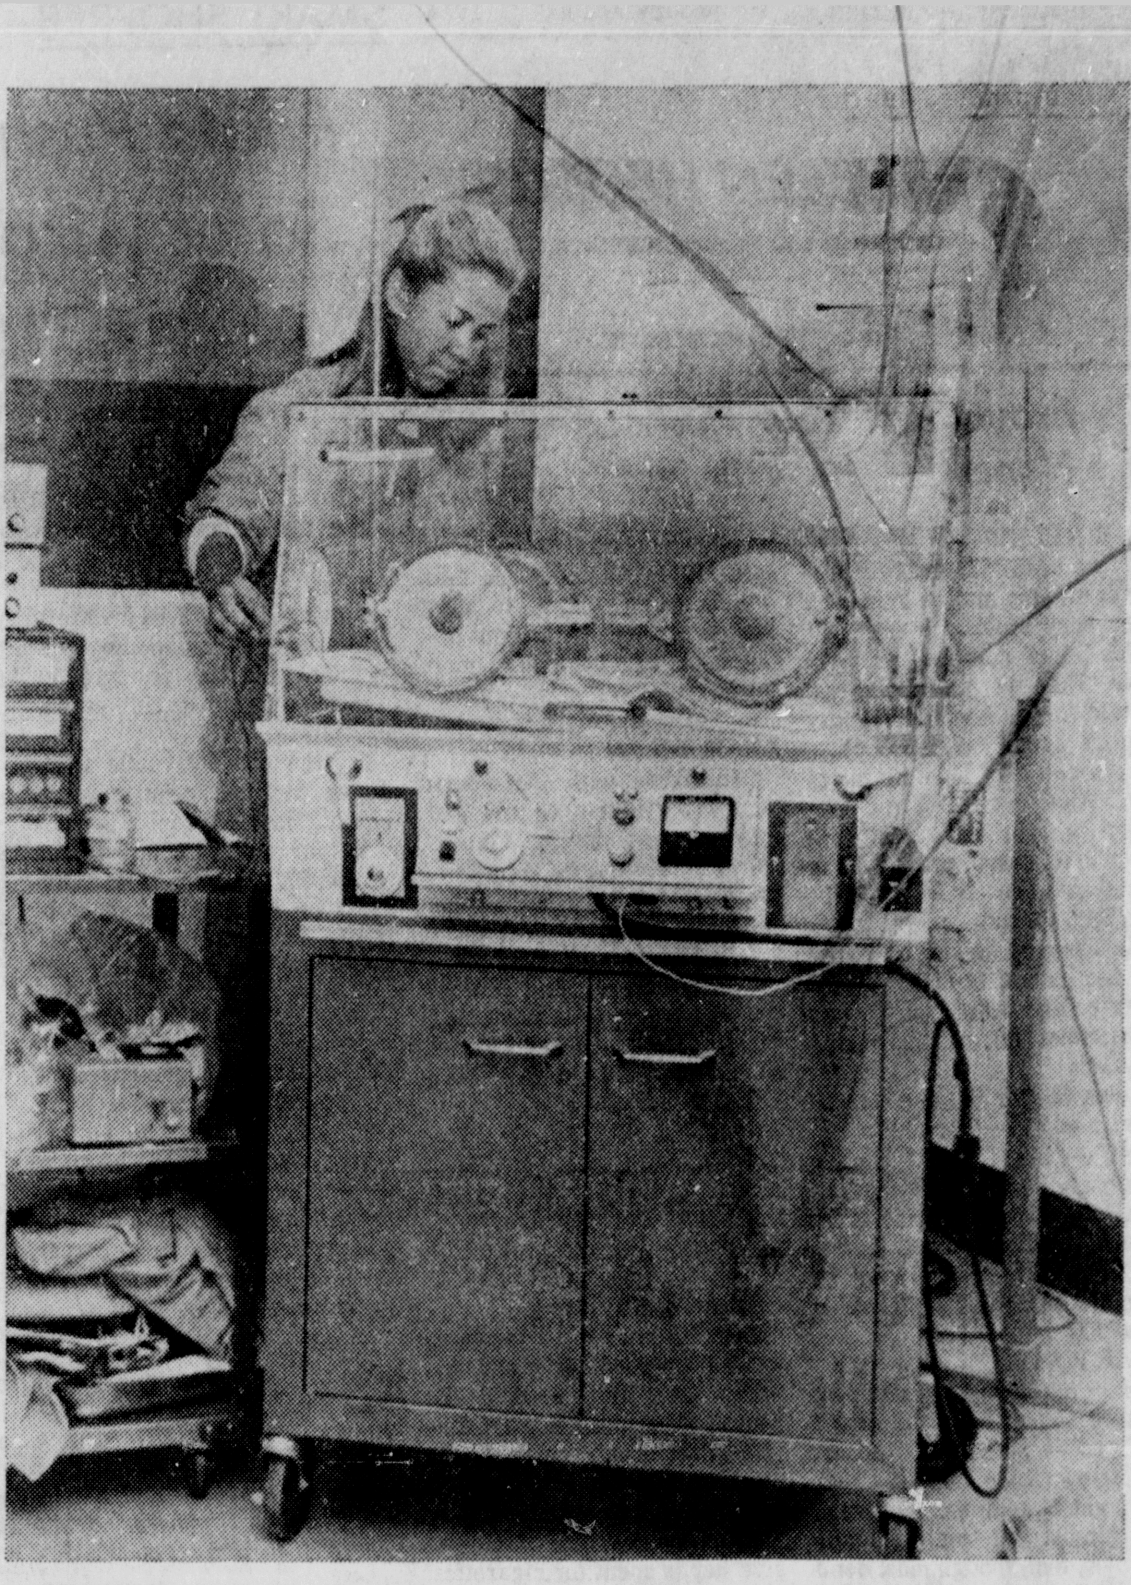
Gail has also worked in pediatric nursing at Ann Arbor Hospital in Michigan, her home state, and in a hospital in Munich, Germany. She then became a pediatric nurse at Stanford Hospital.

PRIOR TO coming to Marin, Gail had done all of her nursing in large nursing centers and she is finding her work at Marin General refreshing.

"And the resources for referral in the county are phenomenal," Gail says. One example is her work with leukemic and tumor children. She found the Candlelighters, an organization of parents of children with various forms of cancer. She said that the parents wanted a nurse liaison who could work with them, and Gail was ready to fill the role.

She herself keeps on learning as medical techniques advance, and takes classes at Children's Hospital, U.C. and Stanford Hospital to keep up with developments and visits various hospitals to observe.

"Everything I do is a combination of doctor, nurse and patient family," says Gail, who recommends the job of clinical nurse specialist to those who are interested in nursing but may feel it is too confining. She feels her kind of job has more freedom.



SPECIAL CASES are nurse Gail Moore's specialty. Assigned to pediatrics and Maternity at Marin General, here she checks the heartbeat of a tiny premature baby boy who must stay in an incubator. She also works with leukemic and diabetic children in her job as clinical nurse specialist in Pediatrics and Maternity.

Urge Children Not To Overeat

With overweight a contributing condition to health problems, the California Medical Association suggests that parents discourage their children from eating excessively or turning to food because they are bored.

Equality For Women: Long Fight Ahead

Four panelists took on the tantalizing subject of men and women last night and agreed that women have a long way to go to win equality. They also agreed that men would benefit from women's liberation from their crippling, stereotyped roles.

Speaking in the series "Women: Past, Present and Future" at the College of Marin each panelist gave a personal assessment of women's place and future place in the world.

Elizabeth Smith, president of the Marin County Chapter of the National Organization for Women, termed herself a feminist who wants "to see the walls between the sexes come down."

Women need to have economic, political and social rights equal to men's, she said, "Women today are second class citizens."

SHE CITED such common terms as "he, his, man and mankind" to show the male orientation of what has been written and said about all persons.

"That is the norm," she said. "Women have to write themselves in — " they are abnormal by male standards.

"And women who refuse the standard definitions of themselves — submissive, nonagressive — are told they aren't 'real women', she said.

"The fact is that women must define themselves. We know

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Be Proud That Your Husband Is So Honest — He Will Not Stray

DEAR HELEN:

We've been married two wonderful months and we love each other very much. Up until last night I had complete trust in Dave. Then we got talking and he told me he had these guilty feelings about looking at other girls because of what he imagines. What really hit me was when he said he wasn't sure how he'd react if a woman made advances to him — like he might not run.

He also said he sort of regretted not having been more of a lover before marriage. He had experiences, but not that many, he said.

I was liberal and told Dave if he wanted an affair, I'd understand — but I don't! He got upset and said that's the last thing he wants. I caried every time I thought about it this morning. How can I ever be sure of him again? — REALLY SCARED

DEAR R.S.:

One great big wonderful fact is sure: You've got an honest husband — perhaps too honest for his own good. When he said he might be tempted, he speaks for almost all males (many females, too), though most don't admit it to their mates. He's telling you he is human. You read him wrong when you assumed he pants for an affair.

Also, in a society where men are conditioned to relate sex conquests with superiority, what common garden variety of male doesn't regret an un-misspent youth, suspecting he bombed out on something the more virile guys take for granted?

Be proud Dave feels so secure in your love that he can level with you — not upset that his purely normal imagination sometimes wanders. A man who actually planned to stray wouldn't tell his wife about it — unless he's a good deal more modern than is yours! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I disagree with the woman who wrote that a church wedding is more binding. The last time I was married, my wife-to-be insisted we get spliced by a minister in front of the altar — so it would "be forever."

For all the good it did, we might just as well have been married by a cocker spaniel! Instead, I got the dog! — DESERTED

DEAR DESERTED:

Advice for the next time around: "Who" is more important than "how" you marry . . . and beware of dogs. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Our 18-year-old daughter won't even keep her room tidy, much less help around the house. She quit her part-time job. Too much bother. She doesn't lift a hand, but has all kinds of energy to attend R or X-rated movies. The money we give her is spent for cigarettes, beer and grass — and she expects us to furnish her with a fat allowance because we can afford it.

How much allowance are parents expected to give a girl who gives nothing in return? — M.V.C.

DEAR M:

$000.00!!! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Who stares more openly at girls in hotpants — men or women? — C.R.

DEAR C:

After people-watching one warm afternoon at Fisherman's Wharf in San Francisco, I'd say: Women stare more openly at other women's "dress," but men see as much while pretending not to look. They're great eye-swivelers. — H.

Pilots Pushing For Safer Airports

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — The commercial airlines of this country have compiled a remarkable record for safety over the years. It shows that 99.9999 per cent of all flights are completed each year without a fatality.

But is that good enough? The pilots who guide these planes don't believe so. Through their organization, the Air Line Pilots Association, they have been campaigning for tougher safety laws, stricter regulation by government agencies and greater public awareness of safety problems.

On the day last June when American astronauts were landing on the moon, a spokesman for the association was presenting testimony to Congress on another landing problem, the inadequacy of automatic airport landing devices.

JOHN J. O'DONNELL, president of the association, presented figures to show that more than 80 per cent of airport runways do not have the rudimentary equipment necessary for safe flying at night or in bad weather. He said only 10 per cent of the airports had any instrument landing systems.

Lighting equipment is also lacking, he said, with more than 80 per cent of airport runways without the proper lights to show the end of the runway or visual approach indicators to show a pilot precisely where the runway boundaries are.

The importance of these matters is clear in the statistics. Fifty-one of 58 landing crashes in the past 10 years occurred on approaches not equipped with instrument landing systems.

Safety regulations governing landing conditions are also deficient, according to the pilots. At hearings last month in New Haven, Conn., on a fatal crash there, one pilot said the Federal Aviation Administration had "stubbornly refused to recognize" the weakness of its own regulations.

THE PILOT said that at authorized minimums, a pilot would be allowed to land even though he could not see anything.

Also last month, the pilots organization released its annual survey of firefighting equipment at airports throughout the country. It showed that only 25 per cent of the airports came up to minimum recommended standards set by the FAA and the National Fire Protection Association.

One fourth of the airports, the report said, had no fire or rescue equipment whatsoever on standby duty. Of these 129 airports, 15 are served by jet aircraft. This was a slight improvement over the previous year when 146 airports fell into this category.

Airports failing to meet minimum standards are not all small ones in rural areas. They include some of the largest and busiest. Among them are Logan International Airport at Boston and others at Dallas, Pittsburgh, Chicago (Midway), Jacksonville, Las Vegas and Minneapolis.

NINE STATES have no airports meeting the FAA-NFPA recommendations. They are Arkansas, Iowa, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Massachusetts, Nevada, North Dakota, South Dakota and Vermont.

A new law passed last year, the Airport and Airway Development Act, authorized the FAA to set minimum airport safety standards and withhold certification if they are not met by May 21, 1972. But final regulations have not been issued, and a delay in that deadline is likely.

For details on the safety equipment of any airport, contact the Air Line Pilots Association, 1329 E Street NW., Washington, D.C., 20004.

Panelists Agree: Long Fight Ahead For Women

that there are physiological differences between the sexes, but the question is are these relevent to behavior?" she remarked.

She criticized Dr. Margaret Mead's point in her Marin lecture last week when Dr. Mead warned that women with weapons could be extremely violent and dangerous.

She "overcompensated" for women's historical lack of violence, said Ms. Smith.

"The theory of female aggressiveness feeds the fear that women are unable to control their own emotions. The reality is that women have not waged the wars. Hiroshima was not a woman's accomplishment," she said.

She also pointed out that the reverse view that women are by nature peacemakers is equally unrealistic.

KAREN WELLS of San Francisco, a former wife who is now living in a Lesbian relationship, described her life in a male world. It's rough to be outside the mainstream in this country, she said. In a Lesbian relationship "two women suddenly have to struggle with the traditional roles. We know what it is to struggle to stand alone and free of limiting roles and male definitions of roles.

"It's a battle to try for bigger things than women are taught to hope for," she said.

Dr. William Scalapinio, College of Marin sociologist and psychologist who has done marriage counseling, said that "our very narrow definitions of the female have to be curtailed" and that such narrow definitions of the male and female roles do not make for very open relationships.

"And it's time to teach our sons the value of tenderness and sensitivity . . . In counseling I see roles getting in the way."

SPEAKING AS a man in the women's liberation movement, Arthur Padilla, a Manpower Administration representative with the U.S. Department of Labor and a member of NOW, said that he became interested in equality for women as a civil right and a human right.

He pointed out that the rhetoric of discrimination against women is very similar to rhetoric used in discrimination against other minorities, and that in treatment women have minority status.

"In my job I have seen barriers set up against women and the development of young women stultified. To me that is a crime," he stated.

He said that the job market is difficult for women, although many have to support their families as the breadwinner.

"IT TAKES A psychologically mature person to accept another who is different as an equal," he said. "The immature person uses stereotypes to define people. The concept of women as slaves forces men into machismo roles as slave holders.

"For men women's equality would give men the freedom to live without the fear of failure for providing" in his breadwinner role.

"Women also can be the best qualified person for the job if they are not crippled by the culture in growing up," he said regarding the job market.

He added that release from traditional male-female roles would release men to be more tender, sensitive and warm.

HOW DO women gain equality?

"It starts in the head of women," said Karen Wells. "Your responsibility is to raise your own consciousness. Talk to someone in women's liberation face to face. Get child care centers and support them. It doesn't matter if they are gay or straight, as a woman you've got a tough row to hoe."

"I'm hopeful the law will legislate change in employment for women, said Padilla, "I hope it will also legislate change in attitudes."

"Some women say they are superior and don't need equality," remarked Elizabeth Smith. "That attitude comes out of hostility to the society. It takes a lot of looking inside yourself to see what notions you have, and once you see them, it's growth. Growth is painful — and freeing."

She suggested women join talk groups of women to end the "games you play as women that are expected and part of your whole society." She said that women need to change their own attitude inside and society's outside. — BH.

"Fears of parental anger and disappointment are very real," according to Goldberg. "Students perceive the college experience as a test of their worth as human beings, and fear that any stumbling or sign of indecision suggests they are not worth very much."

Large Sleeves

Large, flush sleeves, elaborated by flounces of smocking, give a round soft feeling, a good body line in the Jerry Silverman collection by Shannon Rodgers. In the same collection, deep flounces at the hem of late day clothes give pretty movement to skirts.

The Influence Behind Growing Old

NEW YORK (UPI) — What influences aging? "Only genetic factors and assaults by the environment," says Kathleen J. Halberg, recreation consultant for Indiana State Board of Health. "Aging starts the day you're born and retirement days are just one stage in the continuum."

The human body reaches its maximum degree of efficiency during the early 20s. After this, there is a gradual loss of speed, strength, endurance and coordination.

Eligibility For Housing Eased

The Marin County Housing Authority board last night increased the amount of income that applicants may have and still remain eligible for low rent public housing and for the Leased Housing Program.

The action came at a special meeting at the Casa Nova housing project for the elderly in Novato where the board also endorsed a preliminary Novato housing policy prepared by the city's Novato Housing Committee.

After hearing a report by Shirley A. Williams, acting manager of leased housing, who said the admission limits had not been revised in three years although the cost of living went up, the directors added about $800 to each category.

The admission limit was raised for a single person from $3,700 yearly income to $4,500; two persons to $4,900; three persons to $5,300; four persons to $5,700; five persons to $6,100 and $300 and $400 increases for each additional person up to 10.

The directors agreed to support the Novato Housing Committee which outlined its goals before an audience of about 40 persons, mostly senior citizens living at Casa Nova.

Jerry A. Cannon, committee cochairman, said Novato is following in the footsteps of other Marin cities by moving toward higher-cost housing. He said the committee supports the spreading out of low and moderate-income housing in the city while it opposes bringing all low-cost housing in Marin to Novato.

Cannon said housing should be provided for students when Indian Valley College opens and there should be a higher density of housing near the downtown area to preserve the hills and open space.

He said Novato must provide housing for all types of people while preserving and maintaining the existing stock of housing in the city.

The directors approved a revised budget, adding $2,000 to the present budget to cover five new employee positions until December and the cost of another staff car.

Executive Director Wallace K. Shepherd said that $2,000 could cover the additional employees and a car because the Marin County Redevelopment Agency has partially taken over expenses the authority formerly had to pay, including 50 per cent of Shepherd's salary.

The positions that were added include a senior accounting assistant, a tenant relations officer, two clerk-typists and a youth coordinator.

In other action, the directors approved writing off delinquent rents amounting to about $6,000 by welfare recepients who have vacated public housing. Mrs. Williams said it would take too much staff time to make collection worthwhile and that there is little hope the rents could be collected anyway.

She said the authority still will pursue about $3,600 in delinquent debts owed by employed persons. Shepherd added that he is working with the Marin Department of Social Services and the board of supervisors to see that welfare money earmarked for rent is automatically spent for rent.

Shepherd was also asked by the directors to find out what would be needed to make a building housing six small businesses in Marin City safe enough to pass a building inspection. Shepherd said the building, near Hayden's Market, was substandard because the county authorized its use on a temporary basis three years ago.

WEB-FOOTED FRIENDS — PLEASE NOTE

MONTEREY (UPI) — It's raining spider webs in this coastal community.

Fragments of web have been dropping from the sky and clinging to bushes, trees and telephone wires.

Zoologist John Davis of Carmel Valley said the airborne material appeared to be from a "local dispersal" of spiders that apparently spin balloon-like webs and use them to float over the countryside.

Birth Of Solar Flare Recorded

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Space scientists have reported that America's newest sunwatch satellite has photographed for the first time the birth of a gigantic solar flare.

A National Aeronautics and Space Administration spokesman, describing the scientists as enthused over the development, compared the photography as the difference between hearing two cars crash and actually seeing the accident.

Solar flares have direct effects on earth's environment, weather and radio communications.

The spokesman said the $28 million satellite, orbiting Solar Observatory 7, also had sent back to earth the first photographs of solar "streamers" ever taken by a spacecraft. Solar streamers are mysterious rays in the faint outermost layers of the sun's atmosphere.

Nixon Seen In China This Year

BUDAPEST, Hungary (UPI) —The Peking correspondent of the official news agency MTI said today that President Nixon probably will arrive in communist China before the end of the year.

Denes Baracs, the MTI Peking correspondent, quoted "observers" in the Chinese capital. He reported them saying the forthcoming second visit of Henry A. Kissinger to China indicates "that Nixon will probably arrive in Peking before the end of the year."

Baracs said the visit of Nixon's national security adviser to China "is a spectacular reminder that the settlement of relations between the United States and China is continuing."

Kissinger's talks in Peking also indicate that the course of the Chinese foreign police hallmarked by the Nixon invitation is still valid, the report said.

UC Enrollment Figures Decline

BERKELEY (UPI) — The University of California announced Tuesday that preliminary enrollment figures for eight campuses showed a drop of only 595 students over last year.

The figures showed 97,803 students enrolled this year, compared to a 1970 enrollment of 98,398. Undergraduate enrollment was 74,310 and graduate students numbered 23.493.

Sonoma State Alumni Sets Wine Tasting Benefit

An afternoon of music and wine tasting will be presented by the Sonoma State College Alumni Association Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m. at Tiburon Vintner's Windsor Winery, north of Santa Rosa.

Proceeds will benefit the newly established Sonoma State Botanical Gardens. Members of the College Opera Workshop will present music from "The Merry Wives of Windsor," "The Student Prince," "Don Giovanni" and "Kismet," according to music department chairman Dr. Peggy Donovan-Jeffry.

Madrigal singers directed by Dr. Gardner Rust will present English madrigals and the chamber music ensemble with string players will provide chamber music. Walt Oster's 20-piece concert jazz ensemble will perform "MacArthur park" and other music.

Tickets are available at the College Public Affairs office and music department.

Controversial Sidewalk Ordinance Fails Sausalito Council Passage

A controversial ordinance prohibiting any activity "unreasonably" impeding pedestrian traffic on sidewalks and areas leading to businesses or other buildings failed last night to win approval from a four-member Sausalito City Council which split over the issue.

One councilman strongly opposing the measure vowed to be the first person arrested if the regulation becomes law, in order to test its validity in the courts.

Nearly two hours of discussion on the ordinance, which had been requested by the Sausalito Police Department, ended in a tie vote, with the council asking the city attorney to redefine the term "sidewalk" and present a revised draft at a future council meeting.

Favoring the new ordinance were Councilmen Robin Sweeny and Earl F. Dunphy, while Councilman Wyman Hicks and Mayor Alexander Imlay opposed it, both for different reasons. Councilman Stephen A. Fraser was absent.

Police Capt. David Malkin said his department considered the proposed regulation necessary because at present the police "have no tools to stop people from blocking the sidewalks or the steps."

City attorney Leland H. Jordan said it was his opinion that an existing state statute covered some of the provisions of the sidewalk ordinance. But he said the district attorney's office has refused to prosecute sidewalk blocking cases from Sausalito saying it had "more important things to do." If a city ordinance forbidding blocking of pedestrian traffic were passed, Jordan said that he, not the district attorney, would prosecute violators.

About 16 persons in the intense, but polite audience, most of them young and many of them street ministers, rose to speak against the regulation. Almost all agreed that the ordinance, as proposed, was too vague and could allow police to arrest "just about anyone."

The most stinging criticism came from Councilman Hicks who asked: "If I happen to be involved in an argument in front of The Tides bookstore and was blocking the sidewalk, could I be arrested under this?"

"Yes, you could," Jordan replied.

Calling the proposal a "violation of constitutional rights" and "an unbelievable thing to come up in 1971," Hicks said if it is enacted he would "be the first one to be arrested, I promise you that. I simply cannot allow this kind of capriciousness to become a part of the laws of this city." He drew rousing applause from the audience.

One man said he thought the regulation was "legislation out of Nazi Germany" and "would add to the hostility of this town, and we have enough of that." Others complained that the police would use it to harass people, particularly the young.

One young street minister said the proposed law reminded him of the chagrin of Jerusalem city officials who complained that supporters of "Jesus Christ were blocking the streets when Christ rode into that city on Palm Sunday. Others said it was a "catch-all" and that anyone, including persons standing in front of a residence, union pickets or people crawling around looking for contact lenses, could be arrested under it.

When asked, Jordan said prosecution of a misdemeanor violation of the law would cost the city about $100 if the person pleaded innocent and asked for a jury trial. Under the proposal, the first offense would be an infraction and the second a misdemeanor. Sally Stanford said the city attorney was promoting the ordinance because it would bring him financial gain.

Councilman Sweeny, after listening to the opposition, said most of the opponents had "missed the point" of the proposed rule. "It is not to hassle people or take away liberties, but to protect all people's rights," she said.

She talked about her own experiences of being unable to pass because people blocking stairs or streets refused to move.

"In these cases my rights were being violated," she said. "I have had sufficiently bad experiences on the streets of my own community that I think something should be done. I feel our police officers have the discretion to use this."

Mayor Imlay concurred, but objected to the city attorney's interpretation that sidewalks would include walkways in parks. "Parks are for people to congregate, to get together," he said.

As the vote neared, Hicks asked the council to wait at least two weeks before acting on "such a drastic measure." He said he will make himself available to the police department during that time and will ask to be called to "any situation which would require enforcement of this ordinance."

"I would like to see these situations because I feel it is incomprehensible that things are so bad we have to pass this law," he said. "I can get down here in two or three minutes if the police call me."

On the consensus of Sweeny, Imlay and Dunphy, the ordinance was referred back to the city attorney for a redefinition of the term sidewalk, one which would eliminate park walkways.

The Sausalito City Council also:

TRAIL TECHNIQUE — San Geronimo resident Carole Pittman gives her pet llama, Sydney Dangerfield, a lesson in walking the trails of the Mount Tamalpais. She hopes eventually to take the South American beast of burden on pack trips. When her pet plants all four feet and throws back his head, "he doesn't want to play anymore," she explained.

Sydney Dangerfield Is Lonely As Any Lone Llama Would Be

By JEFF GREER

Morists driving the winding byways of San Geronimo haven't lost their senses when they think they see a llama.

There is a llama, pronounced like yama.

His name is Sydney Dangerfield.

Sydney is a lonely llama.

Carole Pittman, Sydney's owner, said she has searched far and wide for a companion for her lonesome llama, but none is to be found in Northern California, outside the zoos.

So, Sydney has to be content with companionship from an assortment of dogs, a few neighborhood horses — and occasionally a startled passer-by. If Sydney is aware of Mr. and Mrs. Pittman's other pets — including a couple of boas, some chipmunks and a pair of parrots — he merely looks superciliously down his snoot at them, as only llamas and their big Asian cousins, the camels, can.

Meanwhile, when his young, long-tressed owner isn't busy on her job at Marin General Hospital, Sydney gets lessons in how to be a pack animal like his South American kin.

"He's really pretty good on the trail," Mrs. Pittman reported. "I walk him all over" on the wooded slopes above San Geronimo Valley. "He's pretty well quit trying to stop and eat the grass — but water really freaks him out. He can't stand to see it moving beside the trail."

Sydney happily submits to a pack on his back, but doesn't think much of a saddle, Mrs. Pittman said.

Even though llamas are notorious for their habit of spitting when annoyed, Sydney seldom indulges the vice.

Sydney may originally have been in the movies, but his owner isn't sure. She bought him at auction when Jungle Land near Los Angeles closed two years ago.

For her $150, the buyer got no birth certificate, nor information about where her pet was born, only a strange looking, scared creature.

And strange looking he is — a sort of pixilated goat with no horns, spreading, two-hooved feet, a fat body, and a head that looks too small, carried by a long, tapering neck. Sydney's fur is a lustrous brown — it's obvious why his cousins the vicunas are popular as a source for costly coats. His face is splotched with white, a bit reminiscent of a minstrel show performer.

Mrs. Pittman named her pet Sydney Dangerfield — "we have an awful time thinking up good names for all our animals" — and calmed him down with a five-minute halter lesson before loading the llama into a trailer and taking him home.

The Pittmans lived briefly in Fresno, where Sydney happily consorted with other pet llamas. But now "he's lonely."

Library reference works are confusing about the Pittman's pet. Webster's Dictionary calls him a lama; the Encyclopedia Brittanica, a llama.

"A lama's somebody from Tibet," Sydney's owner declared. He's a llama."

The argument produced an instant verse from an onlooker:

When trying to tell a llama
From a run-of-the-mill lama
You can avoid much trauma
If you ask its mama.

Reed Trustees Adopt State Achievement Test

A program of achievement tests, required by state law and designed to measure progress of students, was adopted last night by Reed School District trustees.

Supt. Ralph D. Giovanniello said trustees rejected his recommendation to drop eighth-grade tests from the program. He said he made the suggestion because the test is given in May of the eighth-grade year and doesn't prove very useful in evaluating students for most of the school year.

Giovanniello said he suggested administering the test in the seventh-grade instead, but the board decided to retain the eighth-grade test.

The achievement tests are required by the state in the first, second, third and sixth grades. In addition, the district conducts other tests of its own, including one which measures achievement in the "sigma" project, a district math program.

In other business, the board adopted the Marin County basic course of instruction and awarded an $8,100 contract to R.E. Hawkins of Novato for concrete work at Reedland Woods School.

Trustees also hired Miriam Hess for one year to replace a teacher on leave from Reedland Woods. She will be paid $9,000.

The board held a closed meeting to discuss appointments to the district's standing committees, especially the research and instructional assessment committee, but made no appointment.

Giovanniello said the three trustees present wanted to have a full board before making appointments. Board members Leo Souza and James Richwagen were absent.

Schools Consider A Land Purchase

The Shoreline Unified School District board is considering purchase of land for expansion of Tomales Elementary School.

Trustees will consider obtaining an appraisal of a possible site at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at Tomales High School.

Supt. Charles E. McCully said the site consists of about 15 acres between Tomales Elementary School and the old Tomales High School, which now houses sixth, seventh and eighth-graders.

New Oil Spill Cleaning Device

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —A new scoop for cleaning oil spills looks like the paddle wheel of an old river boat and is mounted between the twin hulls of a catamaran.

The prototype device, called "Clean Sweep," was put on display Tuesday by its developer, Lockheed Missiles and Space Co.

Review To Continue On Lagunitas Bridge

The Ross Town Council Flood Control Advisory board will hold a special meeting at 8 p.m. Monday to continue its review of plans for a new Lagunitas Road bridge over Corte Madera Creek.

At the board's last meeting, two schools of thought developed, one urging that the bridge be designed to block the view of the future concrete channel and one supporting a more open design.

Mayor Complains Over Nixon Stay

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI)— Mayor Terry Schrunk complains that President Nixon's recent stay in Portland cost the city $12,000 in overtime pay for policemen and the city cannot afford it.

Schrunk told a City Council meeting Tuesday that the figure did not include the cost of extra firemen kept on duty during Nixon's visit Sept. 25-26, nor the costs of barricades and other public works department expenses incurred during the visit.

"If the federal government expects this protection for all declared candidates—as well as the President and vice president—then they'll have to put more manpower in the field or else start reimbursing cities," Schrunk said.

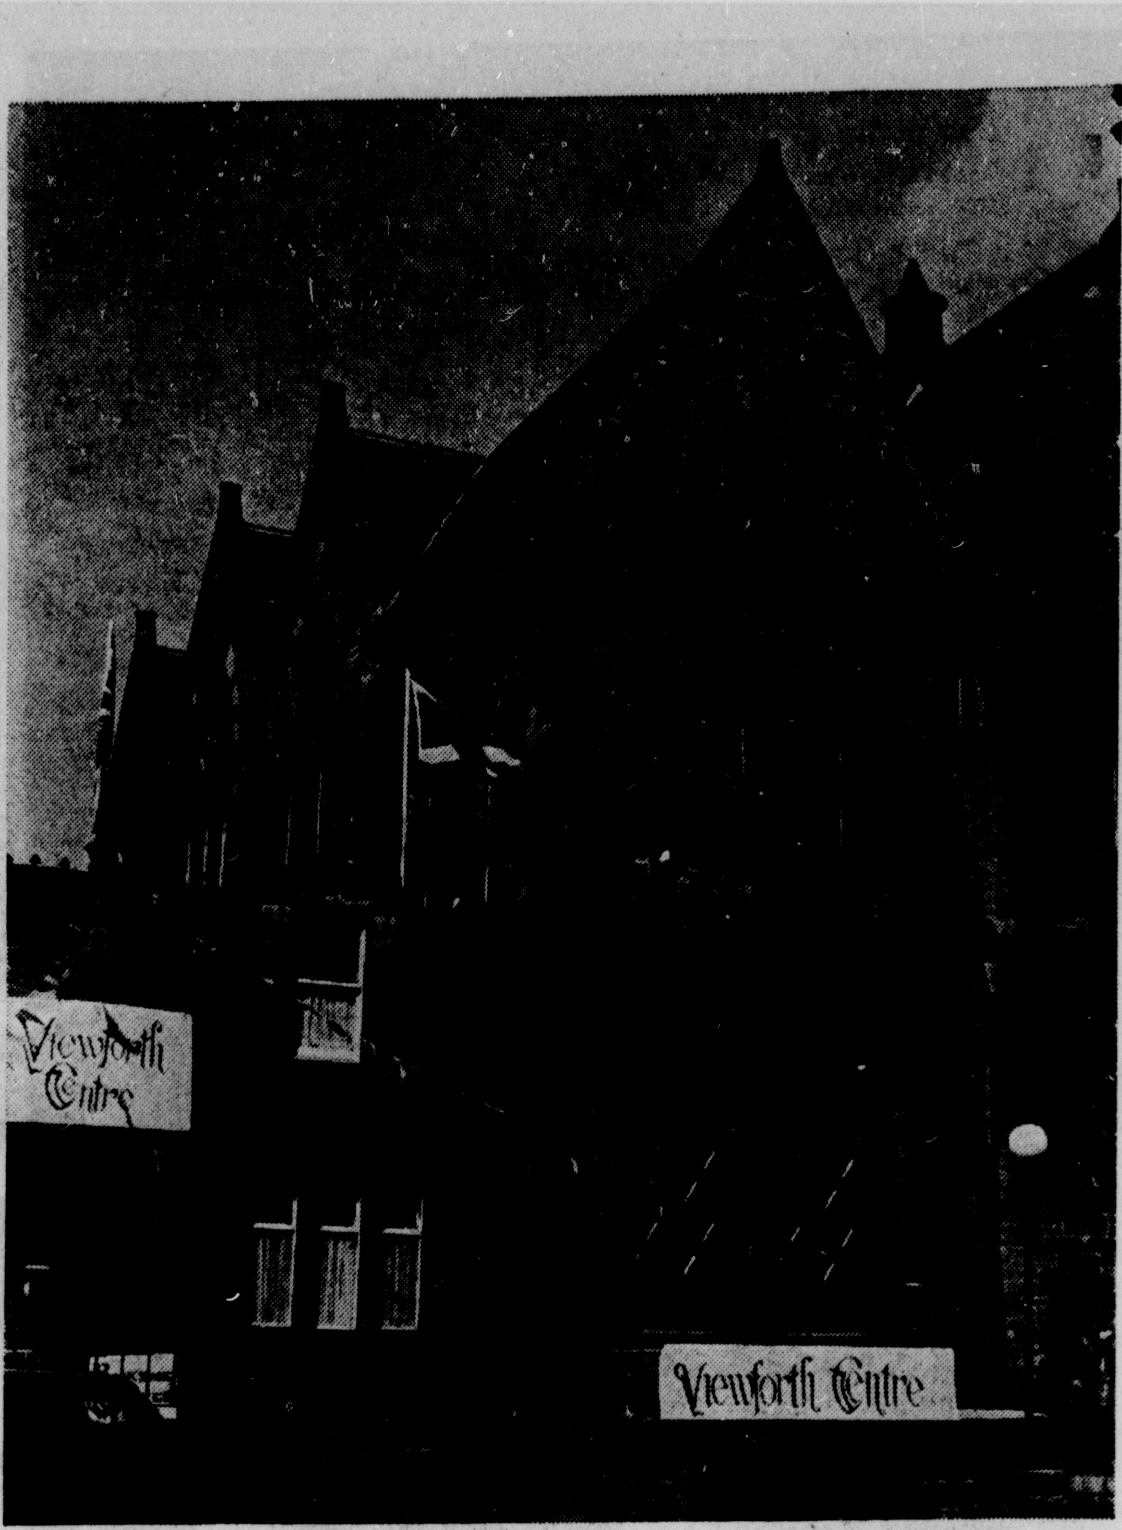
College Of Marin's 'Shrew': Scenes In Edinburgh

Prince Charles

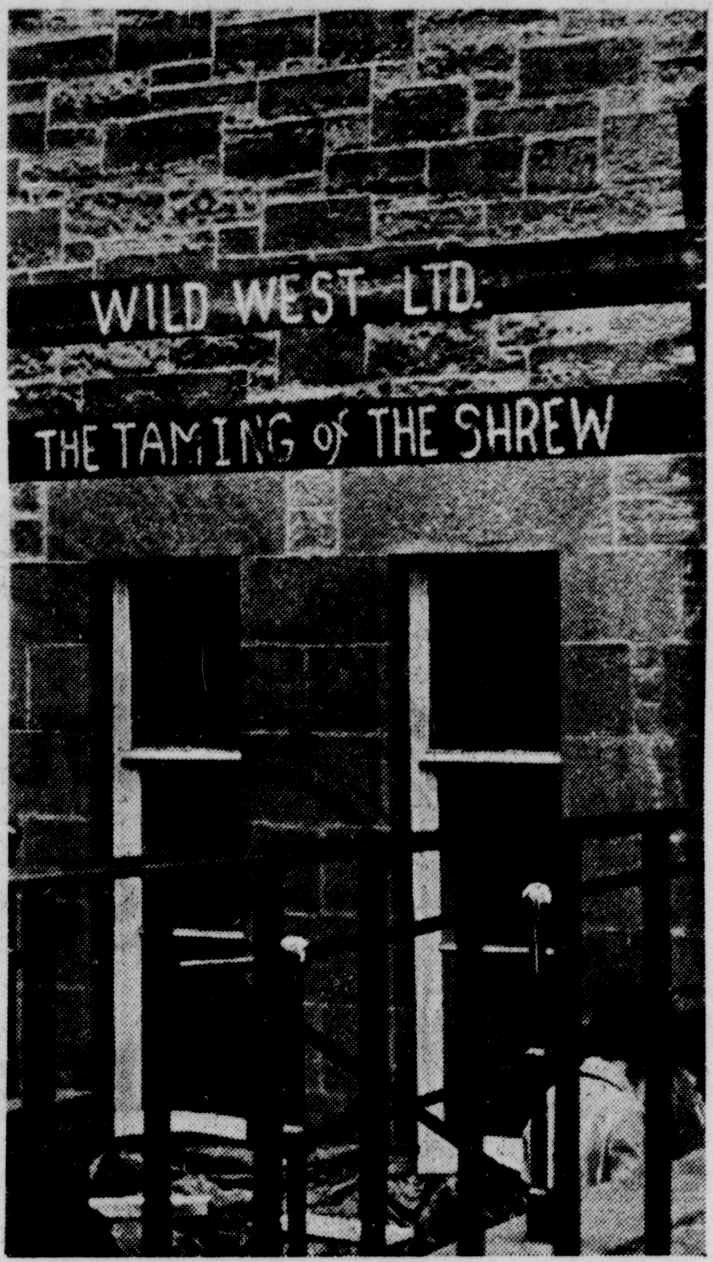
AND THEY'RE OFF — With the sound of bagpipes in the air, the College Of Marin company of the Wild West version of William Shakespeare's "The Taming of the Shrew" leaves Oakland International Airport for the Edinburgh, Scotland, Festival. The troupe was in Scotland from mid-August to mid-September, presenting the play to packed houses and critical acclaim.

(College of Marin photos by H. J. Susser)



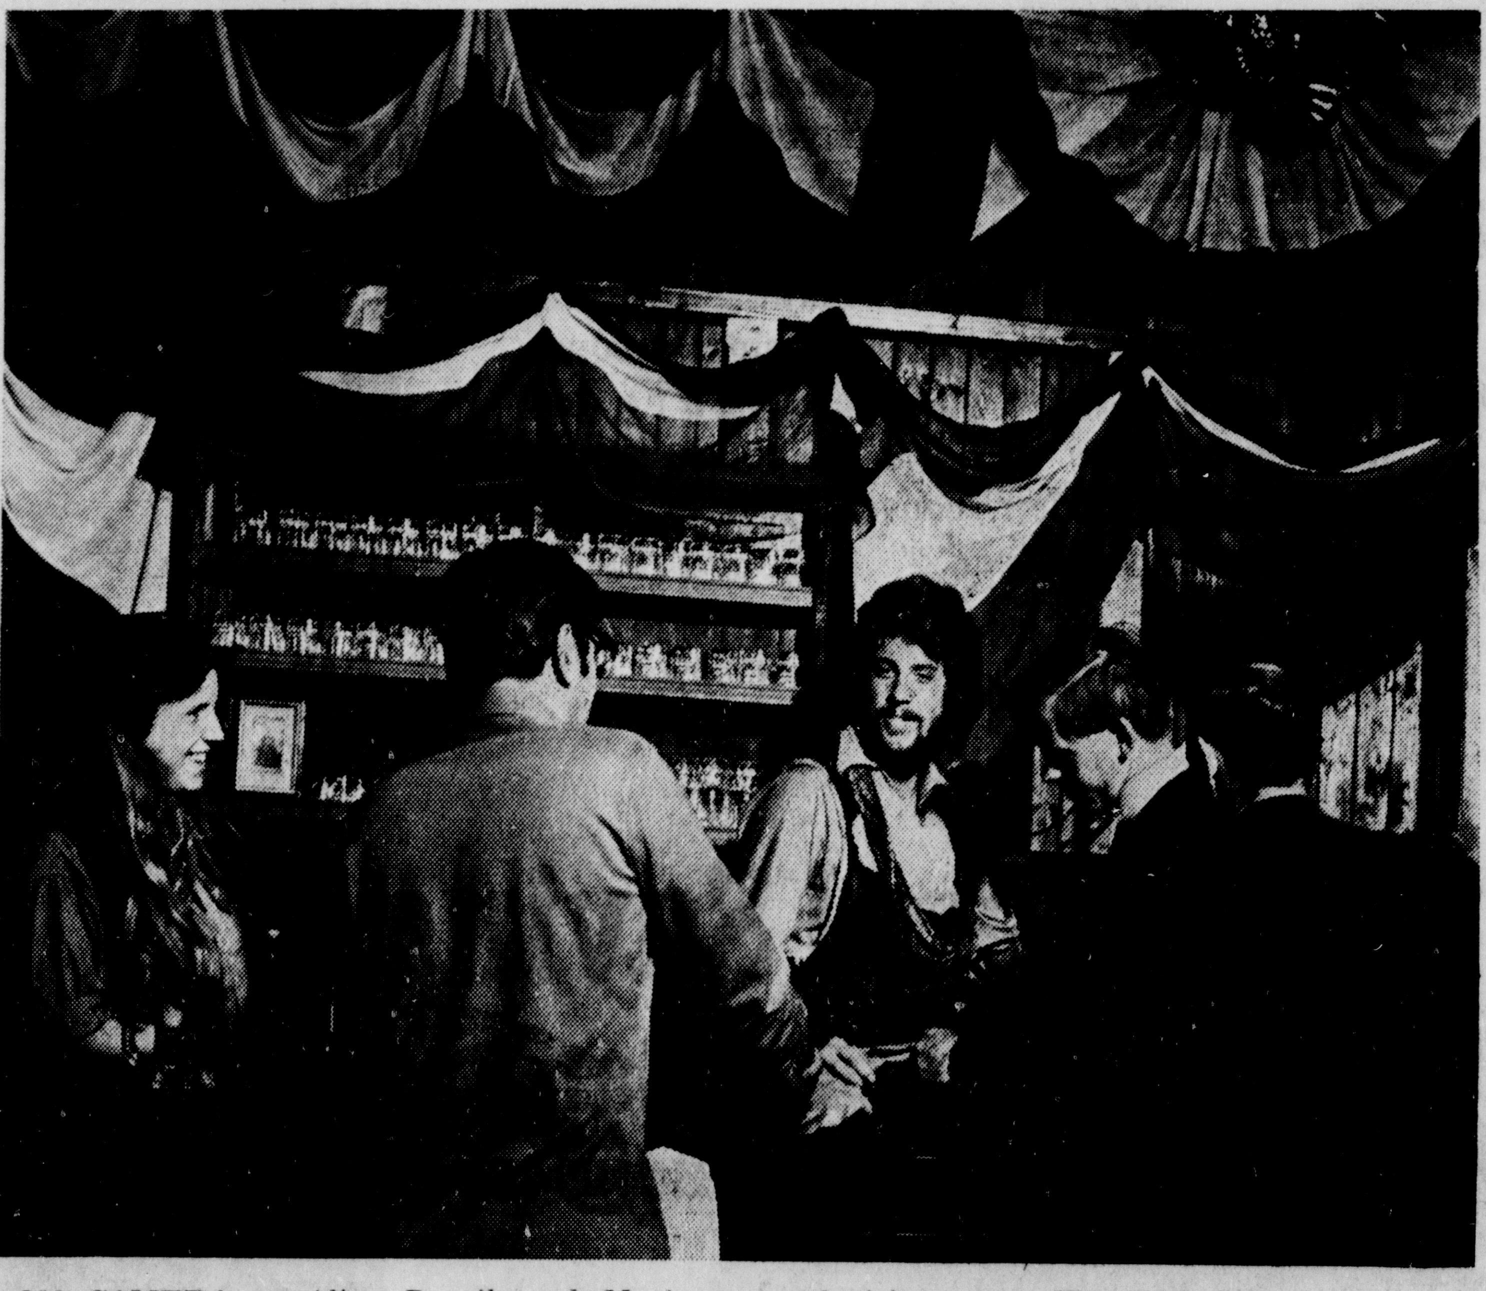
PLAY SITE — The Viewforth Center Church on the outskirts of Edinburgh was the home for James Dunn and his College of Marin drama company during their stay. The 90-seat basement theater was packed nightly for the troupe's production of the "Shrew."

ON LOCATION — Todd Norris, who played Vincentio in the college's production of the "Shrew" enters Bennet's Pub in Edinburgh for a "confrontation" with Joseph Hernandez, who played Petruchio's "wild west" sidekick. This scene was just one of many filmed by Mike Alexander, a young British cinematographer, who did a documentary on the festival. It will be released in February.



YE OLDE CORRAL — Though located on the "fringe" of the Edinburgh Festival this little sign etched in boards proved to be one of the most popular during the run of the famed fine arts event. The house for the "Shrew" was in the basement of the Viewforth Center Church.

THE YOUNG LOVERS — Mark Rasmussen as Petruchio and Alice Rorvik as Kate strike a pose from the "Shrew" for the camera. Critics called Rasmussen's performance "splendid" and Miss Rorvik's on equal footing. Allen Wright, drama critic for the Scotsman said it was "the happiest Shakespeare production I have ever seen."



ON CAMERA — Alice Rorvik and Mark Rasmussen discuss technical points with members of a British Broadcasting Company television team. The BBC filmed scenes of the college's play for inclusion in a special it did on the festival.

A ROYAL VISITOR — Princess Margaret listens intently to J. W. Harper, a member of the "Shrew" cast after seeing the production. In the background is Edward Schoon of the drama department faculty. The visit by Princess Margaret was the first by British royalty to a "fringe" area production in the festival's history.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Take This Advice: Put Your Faith Only In Murphy's Rule

"I've been disappointed in everything," South declared, "but a man must believe in something. I believe in the old rule that it's wrong to finesse with nine trumps." Nothing works for the sort of man who has been disappointed in everything. Put your faith only in Murphy's Rule: If something bad can happen, it will.

FREE FINESSE

The opening diamond lead gave South a free finesse, and he led a low trump at the second trick. West put up the queen, and dummy's king won. When declarer led a low trump from dummy at the third trick, East followed suit with the eight.

Mind you, I don't agree with declarer's hasty trump leads. He should have led spades first, preparing to ruff a spade or two in the dummy. But there South was at the third trick, trying to decide whether to play the ace or the ten of hearts.

WRONG GUESS

As we already know, South guessed wrong by putting up the ace of hearts. Declarer switched to the jack of clubs, but West stepped up with the king of clubs and got out safely with a diamond.

Nothing good happened in clubs, and East drew a third round of trumps when he gained the lead in spades. This left only a trump in dummy, so that South had to lose three of his four spades. Down one.

CONTRACT UNBEATABLE

There was no need to guess at the Third trick. The contract was unbeatable if South finessed with the ten of hearts.

If the finesse worked (as it would in this case), South would not lose a trump trick. If the finesse lost, no trumps would be left out; and South could surely ruff two spades with dummy's two remaining trumps.

DAILY QUESTION

You hold:
♠- A Q 3
♥- J 8 5
♦- K 8 6
♣- A 10 8 3.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two no-trump.

This promises 13 to 15 points in high cards, balanced distribution and strength in each of the unbid suits. It is a perfect description of your hand.

Discrimination Charge For Jails

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The County Jails here are guilty of discrimination against women because they refuse to allow them to participate in the work-furlough program, a suit field in federal court charged Monday.

The suit, filed by the San Francisco Neighborhood Legal Assistance Foundation, charged that womenmust serve their full jail terms in confinement because the county has not provided work-furlough facilities for females.

Men may work during the day and return to jail-like confinement at night, the suit said.

Prize Set For Best Writing

Fifty dollars in prize money will go to winners of a student writing contest on the subject of drug abuse.

Paul M. Cohen, chairman of the Marin County Youth Commission, announced that his group will join the Marin Human Rights Commission, Marin Open House and the Marin County Pharmaceutical Association in co-sponsoring the contest.

Prizes will be $25 for first, $15 for second and $10 for third.

Students who want to compete will meet at a press conference at 3:30 p.m. Oct. 13 at Marin Open House, 1327 Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael.

"The contest is open to any student in Marin County," said Cohen. "Attendance at the press conference is not required."

Articles must be mailed by Nov. 15 to the Marin Youth Commission, Room 163, Hall of Justice, San Rafael, Calif., 94903.

Judges will be Gerald J. Hood, executive director of the Human Rights Department; Paul Lofholm, representing the Marin Pharmaceutical Association; Roger Smith, director of Marin Open House; and two representatives from the youth commission.

The contest is similar to a writing contest on the subject of venereal disease, which was cosponsored by the youth commission and the parmaceutical association.

Winners of that contest were Carl Willat of Mill Valley, a student at Tamalpais High School; and Alice Jacobs, a recent graduate of Tamalpais High School and now an American Field Service exchange student in Lulea, Sweden.

Lowered Air Fare Plans Announced

NEW YORK (UPI)—United Air Lines announced Tuesday it has put in effect a large series of group and independent autumn and winter vacation fares that could "revolutionize" the domestic pleasure travel market.

The packages represent 30 to 40 per cent discounts from regular fares and in some cases are cheaper than transcontinental bus fares, James J. Hartigan,. vice president-system marketing said. Many are packaged roundtrips conditioned on certain minimum per person ground accommodation outlays.

Typical are a round trip between New York and Las Vegas including three nights in the Nevada resort for $199 plus a $30 tax and service charge. The package includes one show and baggage handling and transfer costs.

A San Francisco trip for $289 plus a $30 service and tax charges includes roundtrip air fare, seven days at a hotel and a tour of the city.

Discounts of up to 52 per cent on one-way coach fares for approved affinity groups of 52 to 120 on Boeing 747 and Douglas DC-10 aircraft can reduce the one-way coach fare between New York and Los Angeles to $78.

A round trip packaged seven-day ski tour at Aspen or Snowmass in Colorado is being offered to New Yorkers for $210.

The discounts all were put in effect over the past week and will remain in effect through next May 31.

Bodega Bay Hearing Set On Subdivision

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — The Assembly Planning and Land Use Committee, will hold a hearing Oct. 13 at 10:30 a.m. in the Grange Hall at Bodega Bay regarding a subdivision known as Bodega Harbour.

Committee Chairman Paul Priolo. R-Santa Monica, said "The Assembly Rules Committee has directed the Planning and Land Use Committee to inquire into the activities of TransCentury Properties, Inc., owners of the Bodega Harbour development. This subdivision encompasses 824 acres and 1.5 miles of coastline adjacent to the community of Bodega Bay. The owners have plans to put 1,623 residential units in the development.

Allegations have been made that the Bodega Harbour development, as planned, will result in many problems including traffic congestion, destruction of scenic resources and bird and wildlife sanctuaries, and dangerous overloading of sewage treatment facilities and water supply systems, Priolo said.

"I want to stress, however, that no conclusive evidence of improprieties or lack thereof has yet been presented to the committee. We are holding the hearing at Bodega Bay in order to view the site and give all concerned parties an opportunity to testify."

Any persons wishing to testify at the hearing, Priolo said, should phone or write the Planning and Land Use Committee, Room 2016 State Capitol, Sacramento 95814.

Colorado leads the nation in oil shale reserves with an oil potential of 1,259 billion barrels.

Capital's Homicide Force Is Doubled

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Three murders in 18 hours —two within five blocks of the White House —have spurred Police Chief Jerry V. Wilson to assign 21 more detectives to the homicide squad.

Wilson doubled the size of the 20-man squad Monday. All three murders occurred Friday and raised the total for the year to 207. There were 170 through Oct. 6 last year.

Proposal On Courts Is Beaten

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A Senate Committee, heeding the advice of state Chief Justice Donald Wright and a major segment of the California legal establishment, early today killed omnibus legislation to create a single statewide trial court system.

The controversial proposal, which would abolish justice and municipal courts and consolidate them into a new state-operated and financed superior court system, was defeated by a split voice vote in the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Democrats cast the only audible votes for the proposal by Assemblyman James Hayes, R-Long Beach, while Republicans appeared to cast the opposition votes.

Chairman Alfred Song, D-Monterey Park, ruled the measure lacked sufficient votes in the 13-member committee for passage after a four-hour hearing.

Outright defeat followed on the heels of rejection of a motion to send the package to a between sessions study by the legislature with a view toward drafting a new bill at the 1972 session, which starts in four months.

But Hayes insisted the issue had been "studied enough." He told the committee, "the easy way out would be to take a duck and refer it to interim, but I submit to you it would not serve the needs of justice."

The opposition of California Supreme Court Chief Justice Donald Wright was relayed to the committee by Ralph Kleps, executive officer of the state Judicial Council, which Wright heads.

Kleps testified it was Wright's "personal conviction that this massive reorganization should be held in committee" and studied along with a council-sponsored study of California court reorganization.

Basically, the Assembly-passed bill would have established a uniform statewide superior court system for civil and criminal trials. Municipal court judges would be elevated to superior court judges while justice court judges would have become "magistrates of the superior court" and would try traffic, small claims and certain misdemeanor cases.

The judicial council, composed of judges, legislators and attorneys, would administer the system. Sheriff's deputy court bailiffs would have been replaced by state marshals.

Hayes, himself an attorney and former member of the council, told the committee his bill would result in speedier trials, partly because of the elimination of duplicate motions by lawyers injustice, municipal and superior courts.

He said the opposition of various bar associations was based on economics. "When you cut down on the number of motions that attorneys make, you hit them right in the pocketbook," he added.

Hayes termed the current trial court system a costly "tri-headed monster" which needs "something more than band-aid remedies."

He estimated by switching to a statewide system the administration of justice would be more efficient, would save local property taxpayers $80 million a year and would cost the state a maximum of $20 million more than it currently pays for operation of the courts.

Kleps told the committee the Judicial Council currently is sponsoring a study by a private research firm into overhauling and consolidating the courts.

"The council decided that is makes no sense to go into something of this kind without laying some foundation," he said.

"There's nothing to indicate that the state of California has the extra resources in the general fund that will pickup the kind of costs that this program will contemplate," Kleps said.

Other opposition witnesses, including representatives of the San Diego County Bar Association, estimated the cost could rise as high as $350 million.

But Hayes rejected this and reported that legislative Analyst A. Alan Post "has not been able to calculate figures like anything you've heard tonight. They're grossly exaggerated.

Presiding Judge Charles A. Loring of the Los Angeles County Superior Court said the legislation "will create an absolute administrative Frankenstein" for Los Angeles courts by doing away with the county's court administrator.

Hayes countered, "that county court administration is already a Frankenstein and it needs state help."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Tonsils No Longer Taken Out Becuase They Fight Infection

In the early 1930s, removal of tonsils and adenoids was a very common operation. The procedure was done mainly before the age of 4, when the organs had attained maximum size. Fewer tonsillectomies and adenoidectomies are done today because we know that the structures enhance immunity. In addition, removal does not lessen the chance of developing respiratory infections. Furthermore, tonsils and adenoids are largest in early childhood and tend to shrink after puberty.

WE ARE NOT implying that tonsils and adenoids never cause trouble. Acute tonsilitis, for example, common in children and young adults, begins suddenly with sore throat, difficulty in swallowing, fatigue and aching. The temperature may go up to 104 degrees Fahrenheit.

Rapid pulse, coated tongue and fetid breath coexist. The tonsils are swollen, reddened and covered with yellowish white spots and purulent material. Fever usually subsides within four to six days, sooner when antibiotics are given.

THE ADENOIDS are located in the vault of the throat. When swollen, they block the back of the nose and interfere with talking. The enlarged lymphoid tissue may also press on the eustachian tube and by interfering with the regulation of air pressure in the middle ear may impair hearing.

Chronic involvement usually follows recurrent attacks of acute tonsilitis. Removal is indicated when recurrences have destroyed or damaged the tissues. In these instances, tonsils merely harbor disease-producing microorganisms.

THE CONCEPT of focal infection was in vogue some 40 years ago. The tonsils, adenoids and teeth were the main suspects and removal was considered a cure for various diseases including rheumatic fever, Bright's disease, epilepsy, arthritis, lethargy and asthma. We know now that in many instances this was pure speculation.

AID FOR NOSEBLEED

C.A. writes: Why do so many people recommend that the person lie down when his nose bleeds? If I do this I swallow a lot of blood and that can't be very safe, can it?

REPLY

Swallowing blood is not harmful, but makes some people nauseated.

CHELATING AGENT

C.T. writes: Please explain what the drug EDTA could be used for.

REPLY

Poisoning due to lead and other heavy metals. EDTA (edathamil calcium disodium) is a chelating agent. These compounds bind and inactivate lead and other heavy metals and are used in the treatment of lead poisoning (plumbism). EDTA exchanges its calcium for lead and is then excreted via the kidneys.

'WORN-OUT' HEART

A.J.O. writes: What is meant by a worn-out heart?

REPLY

This is not a medical term, but it is most descriptive. I assume the heart is working under undue strain and is doing its best to maintain a normal output of blood. The time comes when the muscles no longer function properly or perhaps the rhythm is too irregualr. When this stage is reached, the heart is beginning to fail; and unless bolstered with medicine and rest, it wears out.

Assembly Demos Beat Environmental Bill

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Gov. Ronald Reagan upbraided Assembly Democrats today for resorting to "petty politics" in defeating his proposal for an environmental "superagency" opposed by conservationists.

In the wake of the action killing the plan, the Republican governor eulogized it as a "positive approach to environmental protection" and "good government."

The plan was sent back to committee Tuesday for further study on a motion by Assemblyman Mike Cullen, D-Long Beach. The vote was on a straight party line, 41-27.

It was the third reorganization proposal lost by Reagan this year, but the two earlier ones were, in comparison, relatively minor.

"I am astounded," said Reagan, "that the Democrats would put petty politics above the recognized need to improve our fight to preserve and enhance California's environment."

The proposal would have consolidated state environmental agencies, including the state Water Resources and Air Resources boards, under a new Department of Environmental protection. It would have also abolished the Environmental Study Council and the Water Quality Advisory Committee.

Reagan's plan would have gone into effect today if the Assembly had not acted.

The proposal was opposed by conservationists, who said it did not do enough; legislative Analyst A. Alan Post, who said it was "probably impossible to accomplish successfully," and the Assembly Governmental Organization Committee, which contended in an 88-page study that it was "limited and superficial."

Reagan said, "It is very regrettable that some Democratic legislators, who continually pose as protectors of the environment until it comes time for them to take action instead of spouting rhetoric, put politics above the good of the public."

One of those leading the opposition was Assemblyman Edwin L. Z'berg, D-Sacramento, a strong conservationist whose own massive environmental reorganization plan is now before a Senate committee.

Z'berg said, "Not only does this bill not do anything, it moves backward."

The Senate last week approved Reagan's plan, but a negative vote by one house alone was enough to kill it. Assembly Republicans turned back a move Sept. 29 to refer it to interim study. Cullen acted, however, to have it reconsidered.

The Assembly committee report, prepared by a subcommittee chaired by Cullen, said the Reagan proposal "fails entirely to address itself to such important environmental problems as land use, noise pollution and pesticide contamination."

The study said the plan affected only eight of 24 agencies concerned with the environment and concluded that it "fails to offer any substantial improvement in current state pollution control programs and may, in fact, be detrimental to certain existing environmental activities."

Reagan's other reorganization proposals dealt with two water quality control districts and the state board of Dry Cleaners. He withdrew one and the other was killed by the Senate.

Magazine Begins TV News Service

NEW YORK (UPI)—Newsweek Magazine this week will begin producing a color news and feature service for local television stations.

The weekly magazine said in its announcement Tuesday that stations covering almost 70 per cent of the households in America have contracted for the weekly service, which will consist of between 12 and 15 segments, each about 90 seconds long. The service will be produced by the magazine's staff for inserting into local television news programs.

Most of the subjects will come from the feature pages of the magazine, Newsweek said.

Guam Assignment For Navy's Bucher

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI)—Navy Cmdr. Lloyd Bucher, former skipper of the spy ship Pueblo, was reassigned Tuesday as chief staff officer of a mine flotilla based in Guam.

The Navy said the new assignment was a two-year tour. Since the controversial Pueblo hearings, Bucher has been special projects program officer at the 11th Naval District Headquarters in San Diego.

Ambitious Greenbelt Project Is Revealed

Lucas Valley Homeowners Association intends to buy about 300 acres of the Nunes Ranch and operate it as a greenbelt for recreation purposes.

This ambitious project by the homeowners group was revealed yesterday by Supervisor John F. McInnis. He said the cost of the property would be between $250,000 and $300,000. "It's a very commendable goal if they can work it out," said McInnis.

The property to be acquired is the hill to the north of Lucas Valley homes. Martin Kaufman, president of the Lucas Valley Homeowners Association, asked the supervisors to expand the authority of the Lucas Valley County Service Area so that it can maintain the greenbelt and provide park and recreation activities. The activity of the county service area is now confined to fire protection, which it contracts from Marinwood.

On a motion by McInnis, the supervisors asked the Marin Local Agency Formation Commission to approve the added park and recreation function to the service area's fire protection function.

Bagley, Behr In Support Of College Bonds

Two Marin County legislators have endorsed the Marin Community College District's $16,760,000 bond issue on the Nov. 2 election ballot.

Assemblyman William T. Bagley and Sen. Peter H. Behr both R-San Rafael, also supported the bond issue last year when it was narrowly defeated.

This year's proposal, would finance construction of the north campus in Novato and complete construction at the College of Marin in Kentfield.

The Corte Madera Board of Design, meeting tonight at 7:30 o'clock at town hall, will consider design of three prefabricated duplexes proposed for a quarter acre strip along Paradise and El Camino drives.

The parcel is currently under study by the town for possible purchase as a park site.

Site design for an 87-unit complex of apartments and townhouses was approved yesterday by the Petaluma Board of Zoning Adjustments.

Plans for the Cherry Hill residential village at 180 Cherry Street were approved as submitted by Milton Forman, according to Asst. Planner Richard D. A. Anderson.

In other action, the board approved the request of Campbell Real Estate Agency for an office complex to be located at 308 Washington Street and plans by Triple "S" Tire Co. for a retail tire sales outlet at 416 Madison Street.

Oil Firms Win Round On Pollution

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Bay Area smog officials have lost their campaign to charge fees for registration of industrial equipment that was or might be a source of pollution.

Opposition by oil companies to such fees has stalled a bill that also would hike permanently the maximum property tax rate of the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District.

The bill, AB 517 by Assemblyman John T. Knox, D-Richmond, would hike the rate from 1.3 to 2 cents per $100 assessed valuation. The assemblyman last year won passage of a bill providing the increase for only two years.

A spokesman for Knox said that he had agreed to "compromise" with the oil companies by amending the provision for the registration fees. The amendment will assure prompt passage of the bill, now pending in the Senate Finance Committee, he said.

The bill cleared the Assembly without difficulty, encountering opposition only after oil company lobbyists noticed the registration provisions in Senate committee hearings.

Creek Access Work Rights Into Court

The Marin County Counsel's office yesterday filed in superior court for permission for the Army Corps of Engineers to enter property along the next proposed phase of the Corte Madera Creek Flood Control Project.

The petition, filed on behalf of the Marin County Flood Control and Water Conservation District, said that owners of 14 parcels along the creek had not given the corps of engineers written approval to enter their property.

Deputy County Counsel Joseph A. Forest said he didn't believe the absence of the permission represented an organized protest against the project, but he said such a protest could materialize.

The next phase of the project is scheduled to run from 700 feet below Lagunitas Road in Ross to a bridge at Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, immediately south of the San Anselmo city limits.

The corps needs access to the property for staking, measuring and appraisal purposes, and such access must be made available by Nov. 1 if the project is to remain on schedule, according to the petition.

All property owners along the creek within the boundaries of the next phase were sent forms to return, and the owners of the 14 parcels have failed to return them, Forest said.

The matter was being taken to court, he said, not because of organized opposition to the project, but because of the "urgency" to keep the project on schedule.

The petition will be heard at 10 a.m. Oct. 20 before Judge Samuel W. Gardiner.

Short Notice For Nixon Tour

TOKYO (UPI)—Japan was given several hours notice prior to the announcement that U.S. presidential adviser Henry Kissinger would travel to Peking for a second time.

Chief Cabinet Secretary Noboru Takeshita made the disclosure on prior notification Tuesday after being pressed by newsmen.

On July 15, when President Nixon announced his impending visit to Peking —and the fact that Kissinger had traveled there secretly —Japan was given only three minutes notice. Washington gave Tokyo about 30 minutes notice before Nixon announced his new economic policy.

Precise Plan For Hilarita Housing Project Approved

A precise development plan for reconstruction of the Hilarita Housing Project, a source of great controversy last year — has been approved in routine fashion by the Tiburon Planning Commission.

Under plans endorsed Monday by the panel, 112 units of low and moderate income housing would be built on the eight-acre site on Tiburon Boulevard near Reed School.

Richard G. Arjo, director of community development, said the precise plan follows closely the master plan approved last June by the city council after a stormy series of hearings.

Opposition to the project at that time centered around population density, concern over possible devaluation of nearby properties and fear of overloading Reed School.

Critics said the density — 14 dwelling units per acre — was not in keeping with surrounding single family residential areas. Supporters said all 112 units were needed to make the project economically feasible.

No opposition to the project arose Monday, Arjo said.

The city council will consider the precise plans at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 26 at city hall.

Present World War II housing on the site will be demolished to make room for the new apartment units, being built by the Tiburon Ecumenical Association, a coalition of churches.

In other business, Arjo said the commission set three public hearings for Nov. 1: consideration of prohibiting professional offices in residential areas; a recommendation to calculate height of buildings by feet rather than by stories, and a proposed amendment to the zoning ordinance regulating outdoor campfires.

The commission also agreed to discuss two matters at a special meeting at 8 p.m. Oct. 20 at city hall: the question of requiring developers to dedicate land for parks and whether to require builders to submit plans for single-family residences to the design review board.

CELEBRATION TIME — Winning Baltimore pitcher Jim Palmer (center) received congratulations from teammates Elrod Hendricks (left) and Boog Powell after the Orioles defeated the host Oakland A's 5-3, to win the American League pennant yesterday. The O's took the Western Division champions in three straight to win the best-of-five series. (UPI Telephoto)

Orioles Make Quick Work Of A's

By JOHN G. GRIFFIN
UPI Sports Editor

OAKLAND (UPI) — Concern over the painful wrist of slugger Boog Powell was the only cloud on the horizon for Baltimore's American League champion Orioles today while they waited for the start of the World Series in Baltimore Saturday.

"Maybe the three days rest will help Boog," said Orioles manager Earl Weaver, who disclosed that Powell "almost passed out" at one point during the Orioles' 5-3 victory over Oakland Tuesday that completed a three-game sweep of the American League playoffs for the third straight year.

The romp over the A's certainly produced no other problems for Weaver, and the doughty little manager indicated he doesn't worry much about whether the Giants or the Pirates eventually win the National League flag.

"I've got four 20-game winners," Weaver pointed out, "and I can go either way against either the Giants or the Pirates.

"One of those clubs has pitching (the Giants) and the other (the Pirates) hits," said Weaver. "We'll just wait and see how it comes out."

Suddenly remembering that the size of the World Series shares depends on the size of the crowds, Weaver amended his neutrality stance.

"Because you might say I've got mercenary motives," he added with a grin, "I'd like to see the team with the biggest playoff ballpark win that playoff."

Weaver professed not to know which team that is, which is like claiming he didn't know who bats next inning. It's the Pirates.

Powell, of course, is a worry. The big first baseman, who hit two homers in the second game of the playoffs, was obviously in pain as he swung on Tuesday — so much that in the eighth inning with a runner on third waiting to be picked up by even a fly ball, big Boog tried to bunt.

"With my hand hurting like it was, that seemed to be the right thing to do, he said.

It was just before then, Weaver said, that Powell nearly fainted.

"We gave him some smelling salts and a soft drink, and he seemed to feel a little better."

While the Orioles weren't making any claims about being a "super team," the A's came darn close to calling Baltimore that after going the way of the Minnesota Twins, who also lost playoffs in three straight games to the Orioles in '69 and '70.

"They're the better club and they beat hell out of us," said A's slugger Sal Bando, whose home run joined with Reggie Jackson's two homers for the A's only runs in the final game. "Baltimore is the best team assembled in baseball."

The Orioles reached that 9-0 playoff record despite wobbly pitching by Jim Palmer and a bunch of blown opportunities on offense in the final game.

Palmer couldn't get his curve ball over the plate until the ninth inning, when he wound things up with a flourish by striking out the side. He gave up seven hits, but his salvation was that all three A's homers came with the bases empty.

"I was just trying to throw a lot of fastballs," said Palmer. "I had some trouble in the early innings, but I felt stronger as the game progressed."

A's manager Dick Williams was coming in for some second

BROOKS SHINES — Baltimore's All-Star third baseman Brooks Robinson authored this bases-loaded single in the fifth inning, which plated two enroute to a 5-3, series-clinching triumph over the young Oakland A's. The veteran infielder's hit broke a 1-1 deadlock. (UPI Telephoto)

'SOMEDAY,' SAYS BANDO

'We'll Be The Best'

OAKLAND (UPI) — Captain Sal Bando of the Oakland Athletics feels his club will some day be the best in baseball.

But not this year.

"Right now, Baltimore is the best team assembled in baseball," said the 27-year-old third baseman, "but we're going to be better. We're going to improve and win our share of championships too."

New manager Dick Williams also looked to the future after the Athletics were beaten three straight by the Orioles for the American League championships.

"I told the players (after Tuesday's finale) they played good as a team and it was no disgrace to be beaten by Baltimore. We just didn't play very well in the playoffs," said Williams who guided the A's to 101 victories the first season he managed them.

"Baltimore is the best in our league and I hope they knock hell out of the National League in four straight."

Williams said the A's had a couple of opportunities to get to starting and winning pitcher Jim Palmer but missed both of them.

"He was wild in that one inning (fourth) when he walked two batters but he came back in good shape," said Williams.

"We were in this one until Brooks (Robinson) got that basehit (to drive in two runs in the fifth)," said Williams. "Then we didn't get the relief pitching we wanted."

Williams defended his strategy in walking the lefthanded batting Elrod Hendricks with runners on second and third in the fifth to get to Brooks Robinson with the score tied 11.

"We were playing the percentages—right versus left. Hendricks has hit us hard in the series and we had a righthander (Diego Segui) pitching. I figured our odds would improve to have Segui pitch to the righthand-hitting Brooks instead of Hendricks."

But Segui got a fastball up high and across the plate to Brooks and he singled home two runs.

"I'd have preferred if we could have crowded him (Brooks) or pitched him down," said the A's skipper.

Reggie Jackson, the 25-year-old rightfielder of the A's who slugged 32 homers this season, said the Orioles proved once again that they don't beat themselves.

"We didn't lose, they beat us," said Jackson. "We didn't give Baltimore anything. I'd be disappointed if we went out and handed the game to them but we didn't."

Earl Weaver, the Baltimore manager, also feels the A's may be a team of the future.

"They are young and they will improve," he said. "I hope we can meet them again in the playoffs next year."

In addition to winning 101 games, the A's set an American League record of capturing 55 games on the road and were the league's hottest road attraction, playing before more than 1,600,000 fans in the other 11 parks.

Of that total, A's owner Charles O. Finley received 20 per cent of the total gate and also picked up $1.1 million in radio-television rights while his club has one of the lowest payrolls in baseball. At home, the A's drew 913,000 fans.

Jackson's two solo homers off Palmer were the only ones hit against Baltimore in 11 regular season and three post-season games this year.

"I was just trying to make good, hard contact," said Jackson. "I was tired of hearing 'we'll get 'em next year.' "

But that's the way it will be, Reggie.

Angry, Frustrated Giants Not In Any Mood To Talk

S.F. Fighting With Backs To The Wall

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The San Francisco Giants were in no mood to talk to sportswriters following Monday's 2-1 loss to the Pittsburgh Pirates.

They were angry, disappointed, frustrated. And with $8,000 in playoff money not to mention a share of world series money at stake, it's no wonder.

A newsman who attempted to interview the players after being told by the dressing room guard it was okay to enter was unceremoniously and in one case crudely told to "beat it."

Juan Marichal, who lost the game on a four-hitter politely told a reporter, "I don't want to talk to you now. See me later."

Then came a hail of "get losts" from one corner. "Go to the other dressing room," came a voice. "Interview them. They were the winners."

Sensing the anger and frustration, Willy Mays called the reporter over and told him, "You'd better leave. They don't want to talk to you now."

The reporter took Mays' advice and as he started to leave the dressing room the same voice called out, "You'd better get the ——out or I'll kick you out."

Giant manager Charlie Fox was more tolerant but not much more talkative.

"Marichal pitched a good game and we lost," Fox said, "what more can I say?"

Asked why he thought his players didn't want to talk to newsmen, Fox said, "Would you after losing a game like that?"

Two of the four hits Marichal allowed were home runs, one by Bob Robertson to center field and the other, the clinching tally in the eighth by Richie Hebner.

Marichal said he threw Robertson a fastball, "low around the knees on the outside corner of the plate. Robertson swung with the pitch," the Giant righthander said. "If he tries to pull it he might ground out."

The crucial pitch to Hebner was a screwball. "I was just trying to get Hebner to hit the ball someplace on the ground," Marichal said. "I just wanted to get him out."

Bobby Bonds, the Giants rightfielder, said he thought he had a chance to catch Hebner's shot.

"It missed by about that much," Bonds said, holding his thumb and index finger about five inches apart. "But five inches is a mile when it goes over the fence."

BYE-BYE ALEX

Angels' Officials Happy With Trade

ANAHEIM (UPI) — The California Angels figure they made a good deal sending Alex Johnson to Cleveland since it was apparent the heavy-hitting outfielder would never be happy with the local club.

The Angels sent Johnson and catcher Jerry Moses to the Indians in exchange for outfielders Vada Pinson, 33, and Frank Baker, 27, and a fine pitching prospect, Alan Foster, 24, a former Los Angeles Dodger.

Johnson, 28, was suspended without pay by the Angels on June 26 when he failed to run out a ground ball. He had been fined several times previously for lack of hustle.

"We are pleased with the trade," said Angel general manager Dick Walsh." We obtained an established player in Pinson, and everyday outfielder. Foster is a prospect, a young starter who had his best year. Baker will be vying for one of the outfield jobs. We made the best possible deal for Johnson."

Johnson won the American League batting championship in 1970, his first year with the Angels. He was hitting .260 when he was suspended. He has been with three other clubs, all in the national league — Philadelphia, Cincinnati and St. Louis.

Moses, 25, hit .227 for the Angels in 69 games. He was unhappy with them and asked to be traded.

Foster had an 8-12 record with the Indians and a 4.15 earned run average with a club that finished last in the American League East.

Pinson hit .263 with 11 homers and 35 runs batted in, somewhat below his lifetime average of .291. Baker hit .210 in 73 games.

Johnson scored a victory over the Angels just a week ago when a three-man labor panel awarded him back pay of $29,970. A psychiatrist testified during a panel hearing he was under emotional stress and should have been treated as a sick person and put on the disabled list with pay.

At his home in Detroit, Johnson expressed pleasure at the trade.

"I'm not really surprised," he said. "I knew I couldn't do it (play) in California . . . that's for sure."

Cleveland general manager Gabe Paul, said, "Johnson has the ability to be a superstar. He can do everything. He is a very clean-living, highly sensitive fellow with high moral standards and with great talent. We're fortunate to be able to get him."

TWO-WAY TIE IN PREP SOCCER RACE

San Rafael, San Marin, Redwood and Drake high schools registered soccer wins yesterday.

San Rafael and Redwood downed hosts Marin Catholic and Terra Linda each by 2-0 scores, to remain atop the Marin County Athletic League with 2-0-1 marks.

In other games, Drake walloped visiting Tamalpais High School 8-1 to knock the Indians out of a first place deadlock; and San Marin dumped host Novato High School 2-1.

49ers Not Changing Their Style

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (UPI) —Coach Dick Nolan cited fullback Ken Willard, center Forrest Blue and defensive end Tommy Hart as special standouts in the San Francisco 49ers' 31-3 romp at Philadelphia last Sunday.

Nolan also said Tuesday that despite the Los Angeles Rams' razzle-dazzle style of play this season, he plans little change in preparing for the Sunday clash with the rivals from Southern California at Candlestick Park.

"WE'll be aware of things that the Rams do, but we aren't going to change our style of play. If you do that, you lay yourself open. It's like a fighter who keeps watching for an opponent's right and gets beaten to death by the left."

Huskie Offense Wows Ralston

OAKLAND (UPI) —Stanford moved for about as many yards against Duke as Washington did against Illinois.

But Stanford was on the short end of a 9-3 stunner while Washington romped 52-14 at Illinois.

Now the Indians have to play at Washington in a game that could decide the coast's Rose Bowl team and Indian coach John Ralston says the statistics from last week show that Washington makes the big play.

"Washington is averaging 50 points a game," Ralston told the Northern California sports scribes Tuesday. "They can really make a big play."

Meanwhile, coach Ray Willsey of the Bears said that Ohio State showed power in taking his team 35-3 at Columbus, Ohio, last Saturday, but that the officiating "left a little bit to be desired."

He was especially incensed about one play where Isaac Curtis, the speedster recently shifted to wide receiver, was knocked down by a defender and then had interference called on him.

Many felt Curtis was on his way to a sure touchdown and even Ohio State coach Woody Hayes mentioned the play after the game.

Willsey praised defensive back Clarence Duren and Sherman White on defense and Curtis on offense. The latter caught four passes and blocked well in his first start at wide receiver.

Duren was named player of the week by the scribes.

Cal plays Oregon State this Saturday and Willsey compared the Beavers to Ohio State in that both use a "quarterback-fullback offense... that stomps right over the top of you."

Ailing Packer Coach Gets Hydraulic Lift

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI)—Green Bay Packers Coach Dan Devine and his hip-to toe cast may revolutionize football and bring that physical, personal-contact game into the space age of electronics.

Realizing the importance of mobility in football — for coaches, as well as players—Devine Tuesday received a new coaching aid, a hydraulic coaching platform with a scissors-like motion that can lift him 19 1-2 feet off the ground.

That new gadget will give him mobility and a good view of his players during practice—something he hasn't had since his leg was broken in a sideline player-pileup several weeks ago during the Green Bay-New York game.

His roving tower, called a mighty-lift, can be moved up and down the sidelines and can boost Devine to any height desired to help him in overseeing the development of his players. It will probably replace the sporty golf cart he used right after his accident.

The now-electronically-mobile Green Bay coach put his Packers through a 90 minute drill Tuesday after reviewing films with the team of their 2017 win over the Bengals. They also heard a scouting report on their next opponent, the Detroit Lions, from Wally Cruice.

Raiders Showed Poise In That Comeback Win

OAKLAND (UPI) —The Oakland Raiders have had their problems this season, but being quitters is not one of them.

They showed their poise Monday night when they fell behind at Cleveland 14-0 early in the going and 20-10 early in the fourth quarter and still rallied for a 34-20 triumph.

"The thing about our quarterback Daryle Lamonica," says Raider tub-thumper Tom Grimes, "is that he doesn't worry about things that have gone wrong. He only concentrates on how he can do it right in the time remaining."

Coach John Madden credited interceptions by Jack Tatum and George Atkinson with turning things around.

Atkinson's theft set up the touchdown which shoved Oakland ahead 24-20.

"We're in a zone," Atkinson explained later, "but we disguised it so well that (quarterback Bill) Nelson couldn't recognize it. He never saw me."

PAT DOBSON

20-Game Winner Held In Reserve

OAKLAND (UPI) — You'd think a 20-game winner would get a shot in a championship series but Baltimore's Pat Dobson didn't.

Dobson, frequently referred to as the Orioles' "fourth 20-game winner," threw a couple of warmup pitches during the second game of Baltimore's three-game sweep of the Oakland Athletics in the American League's best-of-five title series, and that was it.

Dave McNally, head man of the staff with 21 victories, won the opener—with relief help—and then 20-game winners Mike Cuellar and Jim Palmer both turned in complete game victories to leave no start for Dobson.

But Dobson didn't really mind.

"It doesn't make any difference to me," he said while sipping a glass of champagne after Tuesday's 5-3 clincher. "I'm just glad to be here. This is a great ball club."

He quickly added, however, "I just hope I get a chance in the series" which is a best-of-seven set.

Manager Earl Weaver refused to tip his hand as to his starter in Saturday's opener.

"I've got four 20-game winners and I can go either way against either the Pirates or the Giants," Weaver added.

Thurmond, Mullins Pace Warrior Win

YAKIMA, Wash. (UPI)—The Golden State Warriors nipped the Seattle Sonics 94-90 here Tuesday night in a tough defensive battle in a pre-season National Basketball Association game.

Warrior center Nate Thurmond led the winners with 30 points but it was Jeff Mullins who broke a 90-90 tie and scored the final four points for the first Golden State victory of the preseason campaign.

Bob Rule, Sonics center who suffered an injured achilles tendon last season and is trying a comeback, failed to score a point in 24 minutes of action. Spencer Haywood led Seattle with 25.

The same two teams meet tonight at Moscow, Idaho.

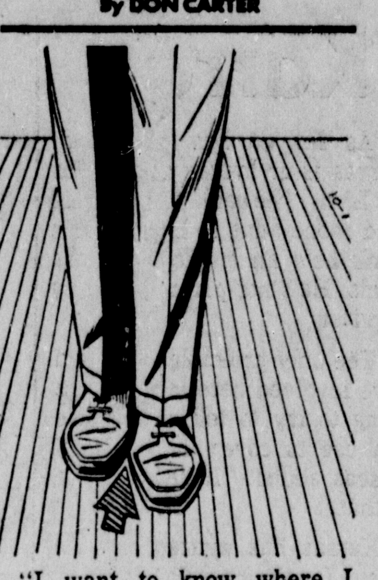
BOWLING TIPS

By DON CARTER



"I want to know where I stand!"

You'll frequently hear that at home or at work, but you should also be concerned about it at the bowling lanes. A surprising number of bowlers don't know exactly what board they started from the previous frame. Start checking, so you can make precise adjustments if necessary. Let your shoes touch each other at some point so your moves will be more accurate.

guessing on what turned out to be the key play of the game. With the score tied at 1-1 in the fifth inning, runners on second and third and two out, he ordered A's starter Diego Segui to walk lefthanded batter Ellie Hendricks and pitch to righthanded Brooks Robinson.

Brooksie, hero of the '70 World Series, promptly busted a two-run single to center field to make it 3-1 and the A's never caught up.

"We were just playing the percentages — right versus left," Williams said.

Robinson himself defended Williams.

"I haven't hit well against Segui in the past," Robinson pointed out. "I guess I'm hitting .180 against him. I just went up there looking for a fastball, and I got it."

Hendricks drove in the Orioles' first run with a sacrifice fly. Frank Robinson, emerging from an 0-for-10 slump, doubled home the fourth and scored the fifth on a wild pitch by reliever Darold Knowles.

"It's not a disgrace to be beaten by Baltimore," said Williams. "I hope they win four straight games in the World Series."

Sonoma To Host Aggies

Sonoma State College entertains the University of California at Davis Saturday at 1:30 p.m.

Some 1,000 fans are expected for this second-ever Cossack home contest pitting a developing Sonoma offense against the undefeated Aggies in a game benefiting the Sonoma area's Economic Opportunity program.

Quarterback Ernie Simon will welcome back last year's second leading receiver, Donovan Hall, heretofore out with bruised ribs. In his only encounter this year, Hall snagged three aerials for 50 yards against Whittier College.

Hall's understudy, Greg Akula, will also return from the injured list. Starting defensive tackle Sam Tharp, a standout in last week's heartbreaking loss to Sacramento State, 23-22, will team with burly Ben Guerra, 6-foot-2, 235 pounds. The latter is also returning from a disability.

"I'm also looking forward to seeing starting guard Simon Ramos (6-0, 215) playing. He has been out with a bad knee but is ready to go now," Cossack coach Carl Peterson said.

The reappearance of Hall, Akula, Guerra and Ramos is timely, the mentor added, "because we anticipate Davis will be up for us. We beat them last year, and now they are undefeated. They'll be looking for revenge."

To prevent an Aggie win, Peterson has drilled his troops intensively this week. "I'm trying to get the men up after last week's bitter, final quarter loss. Nonetheless, I expect a successful afternoon Saturday."

Champion Orioles Greeted By Throng Upon Return

BALTIMORE — An estimated 3,000 fans turned out in a driving rainstorm at Friendship Airport early Wednesday to welcome the American League champion Baltimore Orioles home from Oakland.

The Orioles beat Oakland 5-3 Tuesday to win the pennant in three straight games for the third year in a row.

The rooters huddled under umbrellas and homemade signs to await the chartered jet, which was more than one hour late due to a lengthy post-game celebration in the Oriole locker room in Oakland.

SPORT SHORTS

CHICAGO — The Chicago White Sox have released Luke Appling, who was named the Sox greatest all-time performer in 1969, from their coaching staff.

The announcement by general manager Stu Holcomb Tuesday said Appling would be replaced by Jim Mahoney, 37, a coach with the Sox Asheville, N.C., farm club.

Football

DENVER — The Denver Broncos in a surprise move announced Tuesday they had released outright veteran tight end Jim Whalen, 28-year-old former Boston college star who had caught seven passes for 124 yards so far this season, and running back Wandy Williams.

Whalen came to the Broncos two years ago from the Boston Patriots where he led all tight ends in the old American Football League in 1968 with 47 receptions for 718 yards and seven touchdowns.

SAN FRANCISCO — Don Bunce of Stanford, Sonny Sixkiller of Washington and Bobby Moore of Oregon still dominate Pacific Eight statistics after four weeks of play.

Latest figures show Bunce the top total offense performer with 978 yards in four games. Sixkiller leads the passers with 949 yards gained and is second in total offense with 899 yards.

Oregon's Moore has rushed for 562 yards in four games for a hefty 140.5 average.

Washington kicker Steve Weizbowski is the new scoring leader with 35 points while Oregon's Leland Glass dominates pass receiving with 25 grabs.

Tennis

NEW YORK — Although they did not compete in the Pacific Coast International Championships at Berkeley, Calif., over the weekend, Stan Smith and Ilie Nastase remained 1-2 atop the standings of the $250,000 Pepsi Grand Prix Tennis.

Smith, of Pasadena, Calif., has 177 points and is the leader for the ninth week. Nastase of Romania is second with 122 points, one better than Czech Jan Kodes, who picked up two points in the Berkeley event.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Boaters Need Insurance, Too

Most people are very conscious of having enough car insurance. In fact, most of the reasonable people I know wouldn't think of driving their cars around the block unless they were insured to the hilt against possible damage the car might do . . . and for which they could be liable.

Yet many of the same people have no insurance on their boats.

If you mention it, they say something vague like: "the whole rig is only worth a couple of hundred bucks," and dismiss the need to insure such an insignificant item.

But a $100 boat can damage a $50,000 boat beyond repair. It can cause injuries to its passengers which some jury might decide are worth $500,000 to the sufferers. And there is a disturbing tendency to lump the owner of a $100 boat in the same millionaire class as the man with the $50,000 boat . . . and judgments often are handed out accordingly.

The only protection, whether your boat is in the $100 class or the $50,000 bracket, is to be adequately covered by insurance. And the word "adequate" is very important whether your insurance is an "outboard" policy or a "yacht" policy. There is no blanket marine insurance.

Be sure it's adequate in that all possible risks are covered. Marine policies usually pay off only on losses as they are specified in the contract.

Here are probably the two most important areas in which you should be covered:

(a) As an owner you are responsible for the damage or personal injury caused by your boat, not only when you are aboard, but also if it is operated by a member of your family or by anyone else with your knowledge and consent.

(b) You are responsible for the safety of passengers on your boat. You must warn a passenger about a potentially dangerous condition aboard. If a passenger is hurt, and you are negligent, he can sue and most likely will collect.

There is a wry saying among marine and admiralty lawyers: "Today's guest is tomorrow's plaintiff."

Boat insurance is a big topic, with many facets which baffle most boaters. Here are some of the questions I've been asked on this topic this summer:

Q. How important is insurance on one's boat?

A. Just as important as insurance on your car. And it's conceded that anyone who doesn't have car insurance is either witless or irresponsible.

Q. What's the most important type of insurance?

A. It's a toss-up between "Hull" insurance which protects your investment and "Protection and Indemnity." The first is the same as collision insurance on your car, and the second the same as comprehensive personal injury and property damage.

Q. Is there passenger insurance?

A. Very definitely, and you should get it. A passenger on your boat is your responsibility.

Q. If I "finance" a boat with a bank or finance company, what about insurance?

A. I'm sure the lending institution will insist on insurance covering perils to the hull to protect its interest in your boat. But it's not likely to ask for other types of insurance because the bank or finance company can't be expected to care whether you get sued.

Q. Is there a standard form of insurance contract?

A. Positively not. Boat insurance varies to great extremes in coverage and cost. You have to shop around. Talk to a reliable insurance broker.

A. I have heard of an "all risks" policy. Is it the best?

A. This is a form of hull insurance which includes other risks such as fire, theft, personal liability . . . almost anything. But, although the policy says "all," read it very carefully to make sure that everything you want is specified in writing. Anything not specifically mentioned is not covered.

Q. Does boat insurance apply all year round?

A. It's whatever you buy. Generally coverage is provided only between specified dates written into the policy.

Q. Are "group" rates available in boat insurance?

A. Yes, write Boat Owners Association of the U.S. (Boat/U.S.), 1028 Connecticut Ave., Washington, D.C. 20036. Ask for the "Marine Insurance Primer." Group rates do save money.

Tables Turned On Karras

DETROIT (UPI)—When Alex Karras was dropped by the Detroit Lions, he made it clear the team hadn't heard the last from him.

Now the tables have been turned.

The Lions are trying to determine whether the outspoken former defensive tackle is violating his lingering contract through his outside writing activities.

Since Karras was released on waivers by the National Football League club two weeks ago, he has started writing a column for the Detroit Free Press in addition to hosting a television show in Chicago.

Lyall Smith, Lions public relations director, brought out the possible contract violation when asked why Karras had been denied use of the press box Sunday in connection with his work for the Free Press.

"Under terms of his contract," Smith said, "We are to pay him this year and next in full ($35,000 annually). If anyone under contract wants his own television show or writes a press column they must ask our permission. I've never been asked by Karras or by the paper for that permission.

"If the contract's good for him, is it good for us?" said Smith. "I don't know. That's the question our attorneys are looking at now."

Smith said Karras had not asked for a press pass to Sunday's game. However, Smith said George Puscas, executive sports editor of the newspaper, had informed him that Karras planned to use one of the paper's passes.

Puscas said he assumes Karras "knows his contract."

"As far as I'm concerned, Karras is no longer playing for the Lions," he said. "He is being paid money due to him. I don't think he's an employe for the Lions. He's not performing any services.

"The only principle we would have involved here is if they're going to try to tell us who we can use to cover the games," Puscas added. "It hasn't come to that."

Karras has written two columns for the Free Press so far. He also does a show for a Chicago television station prior to the telecasts of ABC's Monday night football games as well as a radio show for a Detroit station.

Smith said Karras had not asked for permission to do the broadcasting either, but said the Lions had not taken any action because of the activities.

"That's something we've never seen or heard," Smith said of the television program.

Karras has been critical of the Lions' management both before and after his release.

Variable Income Annuity Favored

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Please discuss in one of your forthcoming articles the advantages and disadvantages of tax-sheltered annuity plans permitted under Section 403b of the Internal Revenue Code. — E.C.

A. For those readers who may not be familiar with this particular section of the Internal Revenue Code it provides tax-deferred treatment for annuity purchase plans adopted by public school systems and tax exempt organizations. Unfortunately you failed to give me any personal information or particulars on the annuity plan or plans you are considering.

Basically there are two types of annuities which are included under the qualifications of Section 403b, fixed or variable income annuities. Since most workers are covered by Social Security, a fixed income-type pension plan, I would favor either a variable income plan or a combination, balanced income plan. Regardless of which type of plan you are considering the advantages of deferring tax liability on a portion of your current salary are obvious.

Because net premium reserves from variable annuities are invested in common and preferred stocks, the value of these funds varies in line with fluctuations in the security investments. Thus income from a variable contract fluctuates, sometimes monthly, in accordance with investment results.

In the past, investment values have increased more or less in line with the rise in the cost of living. Although more recently the market has dropped in the face of accelerating inflation, over the long term these reversals tend to be counterbalanced.

Nonetheless, because of the flexible income characteristics of the variable contract, a combination plan may be preferable particularly for the individual having only 10 to 15 working years prior to retirement.

A fixed income annuity provides the annuitant with a dependable monthly pension, which, because it cannot be outlived, can be a source of considerable peace of mind. However, unlike income from a variable contract, this pension will not increase to accommodate inflation, nor will it decrease in response to bear markets.

Stocks Hold In Moderate Trading

NEW YORK (UPI) Stocks held on an even keel in moderate trading today.

After about two hours of trading, market averages pointed slightly lower, but advances narrowly edged declines, 524 to 516, among the 1,428 issues on the tape.

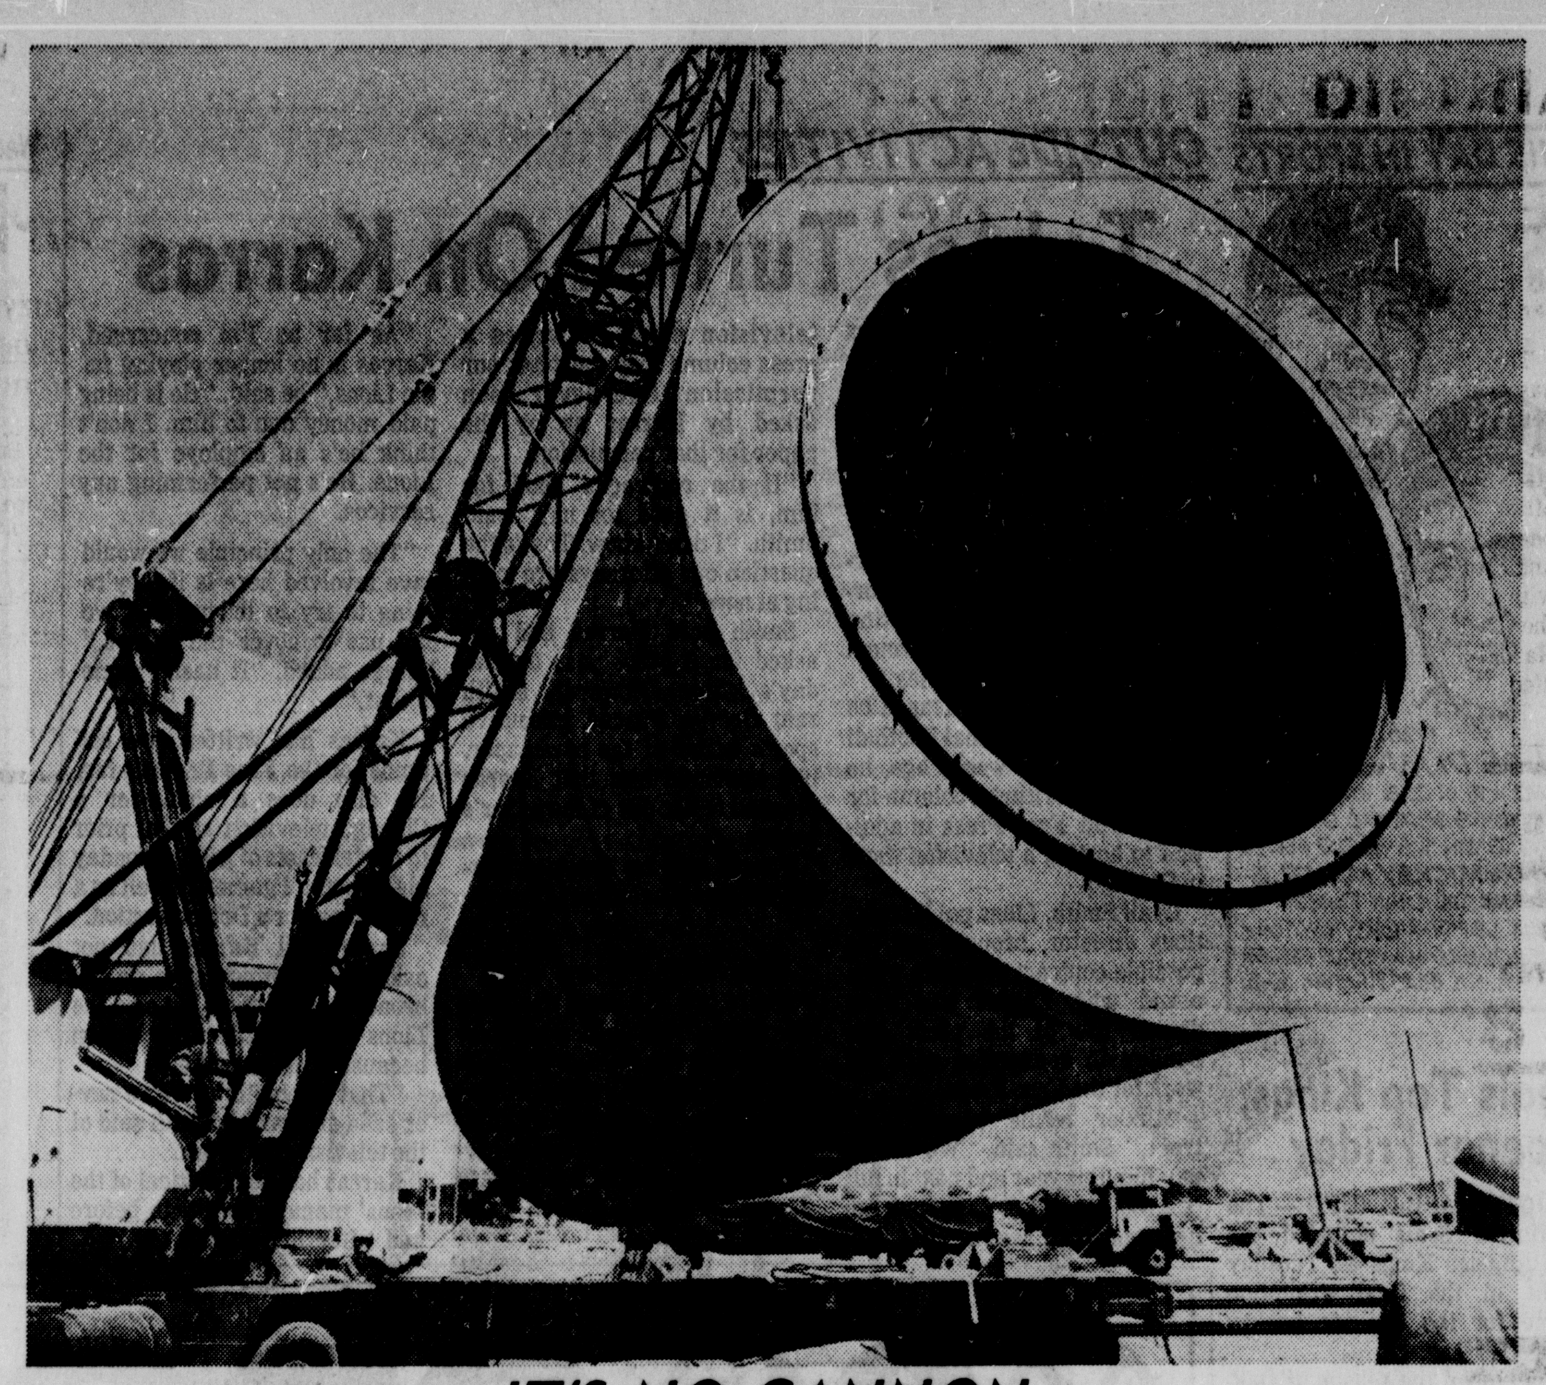
Oils, electronics, and selected glamor stocks were among the softest spots. Most other stock groups traded in narrowly mixed fashion, as did the day's most active issues.

Among the most active were Virginia Electric Power, unchanged, Pan American World Airways off 1/8, and Arlen Realty & Development 1/2 higher. Arlen looked for a big jump in earnings for the second quarter ended Aug. 31.

Prices were slightly higher in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Analysts said the cautious attitude among traders and investors reflected uncertainty about Phase Two of President Nixon's economic program. The president is expected to reveal details of his plan later this week.

Among the Big Board's weakest issues were Corning Glass down 3½, Jack Eckard 2, Polaroid 2¾, Superior Oil 2, Gulf, Mobile & Ohio Railroad 1, IBM 1¼ and Electronic Data Systems 1¼.



IT'S NO CANNON

This item may appear to be a huge cannon, but it's not. It's a spherodizer, a 30-ton piece of equipment being moved into Chevron Chemical's remodeled fertilizer plant across the San Pablo Strait in Richmond. A drum inside the "barrel" rotates to build up uniform fertilizer pellets from seed particles and food elements. The plant will be 90 per cent remodeled by the time it reopens late this year.

That Car Of Yours Is Due For A Pre-Winter Check

DETROIT (UPI)—Falling autumn leaves signal that it's time to give your automobile a pre-winter checkup to help get it through the coming ice and snow.

Since the heart of any checkup is an engine tuneup, garage and service station cash registers will be busy over the next few weeks. But they may play an even livelier tune if you don't have the checkup. It's more important now that stricter emission standards have required engine modifications and anti-pollution devices. Only a well-tuned car will give trouble-free service in cold weather.

It's also important from a gas mileage standpoint. Poor-running engines are inefficient as well as pollutant.

If your car has traveled several thousand miles since the last tune-up, new points and condenser in the distributor are in order and possibly, new spark plugs. Electronic ignition systems will eliminate the conventional distributor and make new points unnecessary, but they will not be in widespread use for a few years.

Check the distributor cap for possible cracks. A cracked cap can retard starting on a chill, dewy morning. Falling temperatures precipitate moisture which gets inside the cap.

Also important is a thorough check of the exhaust system. You'll be driving with windows closed most of the winter. A leaking exhaust system could result in deadly fumes seeping into the passenger compartment.

Then there's the battery. Cold weather makes great demands on it. To turn over an icy engine requires far more battery power than starting during summer months. Records show that about 90 per cent of all wintertime service station calls for assistance involve "no start" problems, usually resulting from a dead battery. If it is weak, replace it. You probably will save that much money in road and parking lot calls.

Anti-freeze in the cooling system should be checked. Since anti-freeze is used for both winter and summer driving, most motorists leave it in all year. If the anti-freeze is two years old or older, it may need a booster, or a new shot of rust inhibitor. The safest bet is to put in fresh anti-freeze.

Your tires should have a good thickness of tread. Winter months with rutted ice and heavy snow can be as hard on tires as hot summer driving. Smooth tires skid easily on snow or ice. While studded tires for winter driving are useful, some states are having second thoughts about permitting them. Evidence is building up that the studs rough up and wear out highways too fast. States that do permit them usually designate only winter months with a date for starting their use and another date in the spring for removing them.

Remodeling Work Soon Begins At Old Purity Store Location

Now that Purity Stores has vacated its location in the Montecito Shopping Center, San Rafael, work should start soon on remodeling the building by Standard Paint Co., Inc., of Torrance.

Standard Brand purchased the building from Purity about three months ago and recently has indicated it will open a paint store sometime after the first of the year.

The company has 34 stores throughout California and three in Arizona. It manufactures and sells a number of paint lines and also sells related items and equipment used in the paint industry.

Purity still maintains its store at Northgate Shopping Center.

GAREY, MOREY, who for 15 years has operated Morey's Junior Boot Shop at 1414 Fourth Street, San Rafael, has gone in for diversification.

He has purchased and is now operating the former Dorothea's custom and ready-made frame shop at 1331 Fourth Street, only one block away. For many years Morey pursued picture framing and art both as a hobby and on a freelance basis. He will call the shop The Skylight.

For the time being he is specializing in frames, mats, glass and custom framing, but later intends to add a line of art supplies.

His boot shop is being managed by Glenn Conner, who has been there nine years.

BUILDING ACTIVITY at the Northgate Mall has developed lease interest in that area under construction between the present mall buildings and the Sears Roebuck future store site.

Planning to go in is Chandler's Warp and Woof, already at 4000 Northgate Mall and intending to expand to 8,000 square feet.

Kinney Shoe Stores, which has one store on the San Rafael Miracle Mile, wants another in Northgate.

And what would a new development be without a restaurant? Bumbleberry Enterprises of San Jose is planning one, to take up 4,125 square feet.

JAMES F. LANGTON of Strawberry has been appointed to the advisory council of Bank of America's board of directors. A senior-vice president at San Francisco headquarters, he directs statewide, national and international public relations for the bank, which he joined in 1959.

Halleran

FRANK M. HALLERAN of Sausalito has been named managing director of the Pacific Coast Builders Conference, Inc., succeeding the late Rodney Radom, who served as director since its inception in 1958. Halleran has had about 20 years professional experience in convention contracting and hotel business in the San Francisco Bay Area. He will be in charge of overall functions and arrangements for the conference's June convention held each year at the Fairmont Hotel.

MARIN COUNTY TAXABLE RETAIL SALES for the second quarter of this year totaled $94,520,000 — an increase of 10 per cent over the $85,916,000 shown for last year's second quarter. The gain was comfortably above the statewide average gain of 6.4 per cent, as were gains of most other Bay Area counties.

San Rafael's retail sales for the 1971 period were $38,960,000, Corte Madera's $10,441,000, and Novato's $9,233,000. These were the only cities in Marin for which figures were published by the State Board of Equalization.

Computer Firm Reports Earning

CULVER CITY (BW) — Computer Communications Inc. has reported revenues and operating results for the year ended June 30.

The results reflect the acquisition in March 1971 of Micromation Technology Corp. on a pooling of interests basis. Also, the results reflect a recently announced determination of the treatment of certain transactions under a third party leasing arrangement, resulting in recording no revenues at the time of delivery; such revenues are to be recognized as income over the estimated lessor recovery period.

Sales and other revenues totaled $4,164,969 for the year, compared with $8,208,918 reported last year and compared with $8,293,603 when restated to include the acquisition.

Production Down

DETROIT (BW) — Chrysler Corp. produced 139,921 passenger cars in its North American assembly plants in September, compared with 154,696 in September 1970.

Magee, Angela Trial Cost Bill To New Senate Panel

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Legislation to require the state to pay part of the costs for the Angela Davis and Ruchell Magee trials, stalled since July in the Senate Judiciary Committee, yesterday went to the Senate Finance Committee despite objections from the Department of Corrections.

State officials variously estimate the potential cost to the state from $350,000 to $1 million under the bill (AB 644) by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael.

The measure, which already has cleared the Assembly, adds conspiracy to escape from prison to those offenses for which the state must reimburse trial costs. Miss Davis and Magee are charged with murder, kidnap and conspiracy in connection with the August 1970 shoot-out at the Civic Center in which Judge Harold J. Haley and three others died.

The Department of Corrections said that the state should reimburse the county for trial costs, but objected that it had no money for the increased costs under Bagley's bill.

The assemblyman, however, assured the committee that he expected the Reagan administration to provide Marin with as much as $800,000 as his reward for carrying an administration bill raising some $20 million in new taxes.

Canada is the world's biggest producer of nickel.

Military Pilots Slate Meeting

Golden Gate Flight Five, Order of Daedalians, a group of military pilots, will host the 1971 Western Daedalian conference at Hamilton Air Force Base Friday through Sunday.

The theme of the conference at the Officers' Open Mess will be "Duty, Honor, Country."

Retired Air Force Maj. Gen. Carroll W. McColpin will head a symposium on objectives of the order, including keeping the United States foremost in air power and space research, encouraging men to seek a military career and seeking ways of enhancing the public's image of the armed forces.

Ceremonies Set For New Sanctuary

Rev. Douglas Sniden, executive minister in the Bay Area for American Baptist Churches of the West will speak at the groundbreaking of a new sanctuary at Bethel Baptist Church, 1929 Novato Boulevard, Novato, at 3 p.m. Sunday.

Three former pastors of the church are scheduled to attend: Rev. Roy Herndon, the founder in 1957, Rev. Clark Wyly, and Rev. Gerald Moyer.

The new sanctuary will seat about 350 persons, according to building committee chairman William J. Olsen.

Pastor Wilbur J. Bullard will lead the responsive reading and Rev. D. M. Rayment will represent the Novato Ministerial Association.

Lorraine Dickinson and Carole Smith, vocal soloists, will be accompanied by Agnes Jensen in a special music program.

There will be a buffet following the groundbreaking. Ruth Barnett is social chairman, and Mary Olsen is program and publicity chairman.

Tam School Unification Vote Is Out

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Legislation to avoid another election next year to unify elementary school districts in the Tamalpais High School District has been signed into law by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Bitter unification elections were held in the district in 1964 and 1965, both losing badly. And under the state Education Code, a third election would have had to be held to coincide with next year's June primary.

Marin school officials, citing the disruption in the two past elections, had measure AB 358 introduced by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael.

Voters would continue to reject unification, they argued, because it would require up to a 62.5-cent tax increase in some elementary districts to raise teachers' salaries to the highest level in the unified district.

Sally Ann Rakow, president of the Ross School District board of trustees, led the long legislative campaign to win passage of the measure.

No Objection To Tennis Courts At Pioneer Park

The Novato Environmental Quality Committee has no objection to construction of tennis courts at Pioneer Memorial Park, according to Rodney Brown, administrative assistant.

The city council allocated $24,000 for two tennis courts in the 1971-72 budget, but the location was open for study.

Tennis advocates urged the courts at the park, but there were protests that they would create "overdevelopment" at the site.

The committee also received a report that more trash was collected last Saturday — the first day of the community's debris collection drive, "Trash Bash" — than in both days of the drive in previous years, Brown said. The "Trash Bash" concludes this Saturday.

The Wrong Car

The Independent-Journal erred Monday in reporting that a car driven by Wayne Jamison, 23, of Cotati, struck the rear of a car driven by James Hinsch, 27, of Berkeley, in an accident Sunday on Highway 101 north of Petaluma. The car driven by Hinsch struck the car driven by Jamison, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Thieu Finds Place In Notable Company

By getting 91.5 per cent of the votes for president of South Vietnam in an election in which he was the only candidate, Nguyen Van Thieu has joined a distinguised company.

Benito Mussolini showed the way when he won passage of Italian election laws which gave his appointees sole power to determine who should be nominated for office. A single slate of candidates — always headed by Mussolini — was then presented to the electorate. And the dictator could point with pride to the near-unanimity of his election.

WHEN ADOLF HITLER gained one-man control of the government of Germany in 1934 (although his Nazi party was a minority in the reichstag), he effectively combined appeal to his followers and terrorism of his opponents to win support of 90 per cent of German voters in a plebiscite. From then on, elections in Hitler's Germany were like those in Mussolini's Italy: a single slate of candidates was presented. The voter could vote "ja" or leave the ballot blank. Hitler was proud to point to better than 90 per cent approval in each such "election."

Josef Stalin also used the same system. First he had to have some political opponents executed without trial. That done, he could have "elections" with no worries — the list of candidates having to be approved by a committee headed by Stalin. He had no trouble getting better than 90 per cent vote for the single list placed before the electors.

WHAT WAS GOOD for Benito, Adolf and Joe is equally good for Nguyen Van Thieu, as the week end election in South Vietnam proved. With no opposition, an overwhelming majority is a cinch — particularly when the sole candidate controls all the election machinery.

Nobody that we ever heard of ever won a real election with 91.5 per cent vote. When Franklin Delano Roosevelt was at the pinnacle of his popularity in this country, he got over 60 per cent of the 1936 popular vote for President (that was the year when Alf Landon carried only Maine and Vermont.) That was an overwhelming majority — in a free election.

THE IRONY of the Vietnam situation is that the United States helped Thieu get to the top in the first place, while declaring that one of our major purposes in that ill-starred country was to assure free democratic processes.

Bringing a "truly representative government into power was an aim of the U.S. when it became involved in the ouster (and assassination) of Ngo Dhin Diem — as President Nixon himself remarked recently. But the "truly representative" government turned out to be a dictatorship — much like that in North Vietnam to which we object.

The Vietnamese election should provide the final proof that the United States has been misguided in its costly effort to Southeast Asia. There remains no reason to continue to shed American blood for a cause so patently lost.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

New Gold Rush To California By 'Investigating' Office Seekers

By FRED W. KLINE

SACRAMENTO (Capitol) — Suddenly California has become the prime location for United States Senate committee hearings.

It is interesting to note almost every one of these "important" investigations is being held by a Democratic senator who happens to have been mentioned as a possible candidate for President of the United States.

There has also been a rash of other political leaders from various eastern political jurisdictions who have suddenly found it necessary to study the methods and customs of California. It is interesting to discover the large Southern California population centers happen to have more investigations than such locations at Shasta County.

THE VARIOUS POLITICAL sages arrive with super fanfare and meek, humble expressions on their faces. All questions about office seeking are met with a knowing smile, a returned question, and a carefully expressed statement about "getting the nation back on the track."

The Democratic fact-finding trips are countered by the President and top administrative officials who come to California for a "working vacation," a conference on a federal project, or to announce a new program which means hundreds of new jobs or some other great "public good" for a given area.

The two or three days before and after the important function are sprinkled with a round of very special social functions in location up to 300 miles away from the prime project.

There will be tapings on various television programs, meetings with rich members of the party faithful, a meal with labor leaders, a hand-shaking session at a plant gate, a speech at a local fair ground, a very special press conference for high school editors, a tour of a senior citizen center, a trip to Delano for pictures with a hungry farm worker, and a two hour lunch session with the editorial board of a major metropolitan newspaper.

EACH SUCH MEETING is begun with an oath of "no candidacy" and a pledge bring complete unity and harmony to the Democratic Party. The candidate will then introduce his wife, children, a long-lost fraternity brother living in the community, a former John Kennedy public relations staff member now acting as his consultant, the local county friends of the leader — and show a picture of his dog.

The major targets of these Potomac bards have been President Richard Nixon and his policies. They have zeroed in until recently on the Nixon war policy. Recent changes in the poll findings and loud screams from organized labor brought a switch to a combined attack on unemployment and the soft economy, with the war policy cited as the cause of the slump.

The candidates are joined on various platforms by members of the legislature, mayors, county chairmen, and other future office seekers. Each brings his own photographer for a quick file picture — just in case lightning happens to strike.

IT HAS BEEN THEORIZED perhaps not all these men are really candidates — rather part of a team effort to take news space away from Nixon.

This theory becomes more acceptable when it becomes apparent that a whole group of candidates have former Kennedy trouble shooters on their staff and they raise the same political issues without even a change in phrasing.

Perhaps money is so short they all have to use the same speech writer — who hasn't been given time to change his phrases.

Worthy Effort By San Rafael Church

In a time when "normal" adults are confused by the many issues of today, including religion, and their children even more confused, it is a pleasure to find out that people still worry about the not so "normal" child. The First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael is offering a class in Christian education for the mentally retarded boys and girls in Marin County. This church deserves recognition for their efforts through religious education to help these children cope with our confused world of today.

Fairfax Police Chief Deserves Backing

After all these years, there are still many references in all the media and from people outside the media, too, to McCarthyism and witchhunting. Still, the McCarthyism is practiced by the Fourth Estate to every day.

The I-J is still trying Chief James R. Orr in its headlines. If "executive sessions" are to protect employees when their transgressions, if indeed there exist any, are being discussed, what good does this do — if the news is leaked and no one is around to confirm or deny? How very convenient!

The things that are "alleged" and "reported" are printed — newsworthy, I'll grant — but McCarthyism and grossly unfair, nonetheless.

Well do I remember the inch-high red headlines when Chief Orr said a "no-no" when trying to extract his 13-year-old daughter from a place that was so unsavory that it was later closed down; on his own time, too. He was described as being "bleary-eyed" and the implications were that he was intoxicated. You will remember, too, that he was off duty.

I worked at City Hall for a couple of years and had much opportunity to observe the chief, and never did I ever note anything that would indicate that he was other than a gentleman — a very gentle gentleman — softspoken, courteous, and considerate . . .

To criticize Jim Orr because he hasn't cleaned out all the "hippies," the "long hairs," or whatever designation you may choose (all rather nebulous labels, world-wide — in Podunk, in New York, in San Francisco, everywhere. Some parents would tell you, "But these are our children!" And so many of them are! . . .

I hope that everyone who has been helped by Fairfax's courteous, helpful, efficient, trained (these guys are always going to school for more training!) police department will attend all meetings and hearings and back up the man who is responsible for the excellent way I feel the police department has been run.

Parents Now Have To Educate Children

I think Mr. Hugh M. Brown did pretty well in clearing up what one of your reporters found "mysterious" about the petition which was presented to the Mill Valley School Board in his letter appearing in last night's I-J (Sept. 30). However, to further clarify the point, I might add that the situation is so critical that my husband and myself have found it necessary to spend several hours daily working with our children (who attend Alto and Edna Maguire Schools in Mill Valley) just to give them an understanding of basic concepts, instill healthy study habits, and answer their questions, because we have found that they are not being taught these things in school due to overlarge and multi-grade classes and "new" teaching methods which just aren't working.

It seems that in the effort to utilize teaching concepts which they can label "modern, up to date, progressive," etc., the schools have completely lost sight of the basic formula for constructing a sound educational foundation. The concepts, themselves, are not entirely to blame, as properly applied, they could be entirely effective, but as the situation stands, they are resulting in confusion and frustration on the part of the children which has to result, eventually, in complete loss of interest when a child has tried his very best and only gets more confused for his efforts.

I'm sure there are many factors which have brought about the present situation, one of them being cuts in school budgets due to lack of funds. This is very discouraging since we are all aware of the constant increase in taxation that is called for to finance the school systems. The results that the taxpayers are paying more and more money for less and less education. Parents are having to undertake the job of educating their children themselves . . . Parents have always been and always will be a valuable asset to the success of school-oriented programs, but I doubt that there are many parents who have the time or energy to continue channeling energies into PTA projects, etc., while having to simultaneously devote considerable time daily to actual teaching. I know I can't.

Callous Hanoi Negotiators Use War Prisoners As Pawns

WASHINGTON — The callous and illegal treatment of U.S. prisoners of war in North Vietnam, violating nearly every provision of the Geneva Convention, has been a cunning tactic by Hanoi.

It is a cruel experience for the mothers, wives and relatives of the POWs and understandably they have been bringing pressure in every direction — Hanoi, Paris and Washington — to get their release.

Americans share their hurt and pain.

THE GREATEST CRUELTY of all is the way the Hanoi government and its negotiators in Paris have played upon the emotions of the American people and especially the families of the POWs in periodically appearing to offer release of the prisoners in return for U.S. troop withdrawals and then withdrawing the apparent offer after it had stirred hope and confusion.

Whenever Hanoi could find willing channels such as third-party emissaries, sympathetic reporters or peace-at-any-price politicans like Sen. George McGovern, they have assured them that if President Nixon would set a fixed date for troop withdrawal, the American prisoners would be on the way home.

Undoubtedly, Senator McGovern is totally sincere in reporting that this is what the Hanoi negotiators in Paris have said to him, but these negotiators have shown themselves totally insincere in what they alluringly offer.

They do say this to the McGoverns but say something quite different when they sit at the conference table in Paris.

They say one thing to those who do not have authority to negotiate and another thing to U.S. officials who have authority to negotiate.

THIS IS DECEPTIVE double talk and the release of American POWs will be achieved sooner when it is seen for what it is.

When he was in Paris this month, Senator McGovern went to see the Communist side and he said afterward that they "removed all doubt" in his mind that "our prisoners will be released if we withdraw our forces."

That was on Sept. 12, and since then McGovern has been demanding that the President accept this Hanoi offer forthwith.

But the Hanoi negotiators do not make this offer to the U.S. negotiators.

To McGovern they say that the release of the prisoners is tied only to troop withdrawal.

To the U.S. government they say that the release of prisoners is tied to the whole seven-point settlement proposals which are packed with other conditions.

ON SEPT. 16, Nguyen Thanh Le, speaking for the Hanoi negotiators, explicitly repudiated the "offer" which McGovern said removed all his doubts. Le said: "There are two fundamental problems — the military and the political — and they are tied one to the other."

Hanoi defined the military problem as U.S. troop withdrawal and defined the political problem as requiring the United States to withdraw its support from the Saigon government and give no further American economic or arms assistance.

Le had told Senator McGovern that prisoner release was conditional only upon troop withdrawal.

But Le told the U.S. government after he had seen McGovern that prisoner release was conditional upon several other things.

The Viet Cong seven-point proposal, Le told our officials, "forms a whole and it is indispensable to reach agreement on the whole package."

This is the way Hanoi has been using the prisoners as propaganda pawns, to inhumanely play upon the hopes and fears of their families in the United States. And unfortunately, the McGoverns have been playing into their hands.

BY NO MEANS NEUTRAL

Fascinating Possibility: Agnew As Columnist

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

WASHINGTON — You would expect any self-respecting newspaperman to seek a court injunction against it to protect the honor of his trade. You would assume any network executive would shiver at the idea as an invitation of the fox into the chicken coop. Most particularly, you would think anyone in the highly competitive columning business would see it as taking unfair advantage of publicity bought at public expense.

But I, for one, for the good of my country, hope Spiro Agnew does make the switch from politics to journalism.

IT IS NOT so outlandish as it seems. I cannot certify how long it has been gestating there in the vice president's mind, although it surfaced publicly at least as early as March, 1970, when he even rated a career in the Fourth Estate ahead of the presidency itself.

"I can't say I'm enraptured with the idea (of being President)," he said. "The thing that becomes increasingly attractive to me is a syndicated column." And a year later, he was still dropping hints to prospective employers, as when he not only volunteered but demanded to do the editing of his remarks on a CBS news commentary show following a Nixon speech.

Those are only a couple of the visible tips of this underlying journalistic ambition. Whatever has been going on privately, it has tickled into life rumors here and among his old acquaintances at Annapolis, Md., about succulent contract offers for his post-vice-presidential opinions.

IF YOU LIKE, you can see his whole campaign against the media (as currently staffed) as a buildup to his job-seeking among them. He beat the New York Times over the head, and it came around to running his thoughts unedited on its opposite-editorial page — as if he did not get enough exposure in the news columns. That is one way to answer his charges that the only opinion that gets printed is "radiclib" stuff out of the brows of East Coast pansies.

That was an untruth when he first uttered it, because he conveniently ignored the many other editorial outlets where the only opinion that gets printed is just as consistently his own kind. But it worked, and because it gave semi-official status to the prejudices of great crowds of other Americans, it created him a loyal audience of fans. So sometime in the future, when he sticks his press card in his golfing cap and goes calling on publishers, he will find many of them clamoring to print his wisdom. And those who don't clamor can be blackjacked niftily with his old accusations about framing-up to keep red-blooded Americanism out of circulation.

The subject arises now because the approach of the presidential campaign resurrects the question of whether Mr. Agnew will run again, and because after resting his speechwriters during the summer, he has renewed his headline hunt. Admittedly the headlines are not so big as they used to be, because it's getting to be old stuff, but he still bags them, and he still knows that the more outrageously he phrases his occasionally respectable thoughts, the more prominent the play they will get.

THE CAMPAIGN and the return of the roadshow are not unrelated. It would not be totally surprising to hear Agnew announce one day soon that he would not run again because he was going into nongovernmental punditry (also because he had a good contract and also had had a hint or two from across the alley at the White House). But it is more credible that he is setting himself up to go either way next year.

By stepping up his oratory, Agnew virtually guarantees that he will be retained on the ticket as long as Mr. Nixon needs to cater to the right wing of his party. But by the same showmanship, he increases his star quality and market value in case the President decides he needs to pacify the progressives in his party by tapping someone like Virginia's Gov. Linwood Holton. Certainly anyone as politically sensitive as Mr. Nixon would smooth the way for his current vice president to exit gracefully, making it appear his own choice whether it was or not.

Agnew is not the only person who will be indignant at these suggestions. My colleagues far and wide are likely to resent my giving a modest plug to the professional prospects of one more interloper, this one their sworn enemy. But consider, gentlemen, that the longer the vice president remains vice president, the better his actuarial chance of becoming President. I promote him as a journalist out of pure patriotism.

Apartment Opponents Might Take Cue From Larkspur

Corte Madera residents opposed to apartment buildings in their community might take a few lessons from their neighbors in Larkspur.

The case in point is the 630-unit Meadowsweet Station development (labeled a row of barracks by one town official) east of Highway 101 and south of the H. H. Koch and Sons luggage plant.

Urged on by homeowners' groups, about 180 residents packed Granada School a couple weeks ago to voice their concerns to the town's planning commission.

Their objections — increases in traffic, population and taxes — were well taken but possibly not taken soon enough.

THOSE 180 RESIDENTS, if they are to succeed in stopping the project, have many long hours of work ahead. They must show why the development would be detrimental to their town instead of relying on a mass outpouring of simply "we don't like it."

As demonstrated in Larkspur, the time to stop — or at least forestall — a development is months before it is presented to town officials.

Organized opposition to apartments in Larkspur took more than a few bloody noses fighting developers before coming up with a means of controlling growth.

Faced with a less than cooperative council (much like Corte Madera's) the residents, spearheaded by the Larkspur Town Meeting, demanded and received a review of the city's master plan.

It was their argument, supported to some extent by facts and figures that no one knew the "proper" esthetic and economic population for Larkspur and that it was time to find out.

WHAT THAT master plan review will produce is anyone's guess, but at least it has given the city a legal tool for refusing to consider large developments.

It has also given the city an excuse to rezone certain properties from residential use to some other if the review so recommends.

Already one large development — the fortress-like structure for 600 persons atop Bon Air Hill — has been shelved until the master plan review on residential zones is undertaken.

Another major project which has been shuffled over to the planning consultant is the Tiscornia Estate's development plan for its extensive holdings.

Whether either one or both will be altered or abandoned as result of the master plan review can't be said, but at least development proposals aren't running rampant through city hall as they were a year ago.

THE PEOPLE'S SCHOOLS

Special Schools For All —Except Top Students

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

The State of California mandates and helps finance an assortment of schools for the academically backward; but a San Francisco high school for the academically excellent has been attacked in court as a case of illegal discrimination.

Suit was filed last week by the Youth Law Center, an Office of Economic Opportunity agency, to force the San Francisco Board of Education to convert Lowell High School into a neighborhood comprehensive high school.

Even since the 19th century, Lowell has been the high school for San Francisco's top students. It admits boys and girls from throughout the city on the basis of their academic scores. It is strictly an academic high school, preparing students for college, and has no vocational courses.

This, claims the suit filed for the Youth Law Center, makes Lowell discriminatory.

SPECIAL SCHOOLS are provided under state law for mentally handicapped students, physically handicapped students, and other types of "exceptional students." But "exceptional" does not include exceptionally bright.

These special schools receive special funding from the state. But there is no extra state funding for facilities for the brilliant students, the academically outstanding. Local school districts sometimes try to provide special programs for these students, but they must do so within their own financial structure — they get no extra money from the state.

San Francisco has put extra funds into Lowell High School, making possible advanced science, mathematics and language courses that are not offered in the city's other high schools.

The Youth Law Center charges that in doing so, the board of education "provides Lowell with the best teachers, the most money, the newest and most sophisticated equipment, facilities and resources and a wide variety of courses, teaching methods and academic opportunities available at no other high school."

Susanne Martinez, Youth Law Center attorney who filed the suit, said this setup denies equal opportunity for all students in the city.

THE ASSORTMENT of special schools established under state law for less able learners provide special equipment, facilities and faculty to make it possible for these students to receive training that is not offered in the ordinary comprehensive high school.

Additionally, if suitable special educational facilities for such students are not available in the local public school system, the students may be sent to private schools and the state will pick up a major portion of their tuition, with the school district where they reside being required to pay the rest.

The act goes even farther. It provides that, even though the county or school district has a special class for the particular type of handicapped student, he may be sent to a private school — at public expense — if it is determined that the class is not adequate for his needs.

THUS, THE STATE already is paying tuition at private schools for physically and mentally handicapped and "exceptional" students for whom it also is providing special public schools — and this without any "voucher system."

If, however, a local high school fails to offer sufficiently advanced courses for a very bright student, the parents in most cases must either "make do" with what the school has or send the child to a private school at their own expense.

An exception is in San Francisco, where advanced courses tailored for the top students are provided at Lowell High. But that, say the OEO layers, is illegal discrimination.

Oil Spill Removal Unit Prototype Is On Display

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — The shiny new prototype of an oil spill removal device, which resembles the paddlewheel of an old riverboat, went on display yesterday in San Francisco near famed Fisherman's Wharf.

Called "Clean Sweep" by its developer, Lockheed Missiles & Space Co. of Sunnyvale, the four-foot diameter, seven-foot long unit is mounted between the twin hulls of a catamaran.

The Clean Sweep concept is a series of parallel metal discs joined by overlapping metal vanes set in slots around the outside edge of the "drum."

As the unit rotates in a slick, oil is drawn into the drum and adheres to the sides of the discs. Wiper blades inside wipe oil from the discs. The oil runs into a central channel inside the unit's axle and is pumped to storage.

Napa Couple To Have Exhibit

The Sandcastle Gallery in Point Reyes Station will hold an exhibit from Oct. 17 to Nov. 14 featuring the works of William and Lucy Case of Napa.

Mrs. Case will show acrylic paintings and her husband will display sculptures in welded steel, magnesite, terra cotta, wood, bronze and mosaics.

The gallery is open Thursday through Sunday from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Closed Meeting Is Moved Up

Today's closed meeting of the Tiburon City Council to discuss a possible condemnation suit against Leonard B. Fleischman for possession of land at Strawberry Cove has been moved up from 6:30 to 6 p.m.

The meeting was called after Fleischman turned down the city's offer to buy the land, site of a proposed apartment project, for $125,000.

Fleischman told the council he wanted either $250,000 or another piece of property in Southern Marin on which he could build 72 apartments or 20 houses.

Deputies Think Burglaries Solved In Arrest Of San Francisco Youth

Tiburon sheriff's deputies believe they have solved 10 burglaries in the Reedlands area with the arrest of a 17-year-old San Francisco youth.

Lt. Angelo J. Mecchi said yesterday Hugo Rolando Marinez has been cited to Marin juvenile authorities for allegedly burglarizing several homes in the area since late September. He also is suspected of being responsible for others, Mecchi said.

He said deputy Norman Johnson began investigating a rash of burglaries Sept. 27 and obtained a description of Martinez from several residents who said they had seen him in the neighborhood.

On Thursday, Mecchi said, plainclothesmen blanketed the Reedlands area, but Martinez did not show up. He did appear Friday and was taken in for questioning, after which he was cited on suspicion of burglary and released to his father.

Mecchi said Martinez, a native of Guatemala, could not speak English and had to be questioned through an interpreter.

No propeerty from any of the burglaries was recovered, Mecchi said. The thefts mostly involved petty cash and samll amounts of jewelry. No total amount of loss was available.

COLLEGE EXHIBIT — A sculpture of lightweight, weatherproof concrete by Petaluma sculptor Mary Fuller McChesney is included in her one-man sculpture exhibit in the Darwin Gallery at Sonoma State College Campus in Rohnert Park, through Oct. 31.

ART REVIEW

McChesney Art At Sonoma State

By ADA GARFINKEL

The sculpture of Mary Fuller McChesney of Petaluma reminds one of pre-Columbian art — and this is her source of inspiration — but only its forms, not its ethnic or religious sources.

Thirty of this sculptor's pieces are handsomely installed in the spacious, high-ceilinged Darwin Gallery on the Sonoma State College campus at Rohnert Park, through Oct. 31.

Among Mrs. McChesney's most striking and complex works is "Great Southern," which won a merit award in the 1971 San Francisco Art Festival. Another, entitled "Sun Moon Stars Rain," is conceived as an anthropomorphized four-figured group entity in an overlapping and intertwining marriage rite of bodies, arms, and legs.

Many of this artist's sculptures are of animals — a lion, an otter, a frog. However, two related pieces, entitled "Sisyphus #1" and "Sisyphus #2" are about the mythological Greek king who was doomed to roll a heavy stone endlessly uphill, and were inspired by a poem by the late French poet, Albert Camus.

In one case, it was an event such as the devastating earthquake in the Yugoslavian city of Skopje some years ago that inspired a highly angular and attenuated death figure formed of crusty, rock-and-stone compound.

In her most compelling work, it is the quality of fierceness that is so arresting. She achieves this effect by use of tiny, white, saw-toother sea shells as teeth and eyes for her figures. Or by the use of railroad spikes which pierce the "Great Southern" diety.

Mrs. McChesney's favorite material is lightweight concrete which she pours in large pieces and then carves with a knife or axe, "depending upon how long the work takes and how hard the block has become" — and which she likes because this material is so suitable for outdoor placement.

On occasion, however, a special find or a gift will combine into a new product, as when musician Lu Watters presented her with an anchor chain and her husband, painter Robert McChesney, found a long piece of redwood, with both gifts ending up as a carved saxophone player . . . with an anklet of chain.

Mrs. McChesney also is a writer — short stories, mystery novels and an art book which will be published in 1972. Some of her ideas she records on tape while doing routine cutting or filing.

There is no conflict for her in the two different media. "There is sort of a feedback — while my hands are working, I am thinking, " she says.

Author, 90, And His Dog To Graduate

A 90-year-old author from Los Angeles is among 11 persons who will graduate with their dogs Saturday from Guide Dogs for the Blind, North of San Rafael.

James B. Garfield, a former free lance radio actor during the 1930s, has authored several books, including "Follow My Leader," written for nine to 12-year-olds and required reading in many elementary schools.

Others who will be graduating at the 2:30 p.m. outdoor ceremonies are Charlotte O'Mara of Alameda, Betty Beck of Portland, Alan Blanchard of Berkeley, Della Germolus of Oakland, John Ludwig of Millersville, Md., Dolores Mann of Los Gatos, Robert Rekart of El Paso, Tex., Jerico Skinner of Red Bluff, Adolph Smith of Brainerd, Minn., and Mary Thompson of Half Moon Bay.

Two Marin 4-H members, Marianne Hersko of San Rafael and Katie Haught of Novato, will be on hand to present guide dogs they have raised for the school.
